SIT formed to probe PDS rice smuggling

PNS VIJAYAWADA

The State government has formed a Special Investigation Team (SIT) to probe the illegal export of PDS rice in Andhra Pradesh.

Chief Secretary Neerabh Kumar Prasad issued Government Order (GO) Rt No 2103 on Friday to investigate cases registered in Kakinada district and other related offences. The Chief Secretary informed the DGP about the growing concern over illegal PDS rice exports in the State, stressing the need for a focused investigation to take strict legal action against the culprits. The DGP was directed to form an SIT to conduct a comprehensive investigation into the matter.

The investigation follows numerous complaints from beneficiaries, civil society groups, and public representatives regarding the organised smuggling of PDS rice to foreign countries. The government has observed that the smuggling network operates efficiently, exploiting the very systems meant to ensure food security for vulnerable populations. IT job scams dog Vizag fresh grads

PNS VISAKHAPATNAM

Fresh engineering graduates in Visakhapatnam are increasingly falling victim to fraudulent IT companies that exploit their desperation for jobs, leading to emotional and financial distress. These scammers prey on young professionals eager to start their careers, often leaving them devastated.

In a recent case, several victims were forced to pay Rs 1.5 lakh each just to resign from fake jobs. A parent of one such victim shared, "It's heartbreaking to see our children, full of hope and ambition, fall prey to such deceit."

The downturn in the global IT sector has worsened the situation, with fewer job opportunities avail-able. Every year, thousands of engineering graduates from the Uttarandhra region enter the job market, making them prime targets for fraudsters. These fake companies use various tactics to deceive job seekers. "They promised us great jobs but demanded a deposit of Rs 2 lakh. After giving us fake offer letters, they disappeared," recalled one victim. In another shocking incident near Green Park Hotel, around 40 ob seekers were defrauded of Rs 70 lakh. The company rented office space for just one day, conducted interviews, and vanished without a trace. Earlier this year, another company recruited 30 graduates, promising annual salaries of Rs 1.8 lakh. However, these recruits were forced to pay advance cheques of Rs 3 lakh to Rs 6 lakh.

Despite promises of training and salary increases, most were never assigned any work or given the training they were promised. "I asked about my work assignment, and they mocked me, saying I wasn't capable," shared one frustrated employee. Those who chose to resign were further harassed, with their certificates and cheques held back. The company demanded an additional Rs 3 lakh to release these documents. "We felt helpless. We had no choice but to pay up to get our children's documents back,' said one distressed parent.

As a result, many parents turned to the police and a local MLA for help. Although the MLA intervened, the company still insisted on the Rs 1.5 lakh payment to return the certificates

One year of Congress or one more of BRS?

¬oday marks the first anniversary of Revanth Reddy's swearing-in as the second Chief Minister of Telangana. He and his Congress party came to power promising change. Change from the Kalvakuntla Chandrasekhar Rao (KCR) headed two-term Bharat Rashtra Samithi (BRS) rule, which the voters concluded had become autocratic, corrupt, deceitful, apathetic, and antithetical to the aspirations that fuelled the separate Telangana statehood movement.

A year into its rule, voters have become disillusioned with the Congress's ability to bring change. Except for taking down the barricades in front of Pragati Bhavan and renaming it Praja Bhavan, in every aspect of governance, from style to substance, the Congress rule is indistinguishable from the earlier BRS rule.

On occasion, it has even outdone the BRS, shocking voters who believed they had already seen the worst and believed any change could only be for the better.

Two days into Congress' rule, state farmers received a warning shot. Before the elections, Revanth Reddy had promised to waive off farm loans up to rupees two lakhs on Sonia Gandhi's birthday, which falls on December 9th. Voters believed no Congress leader would have the nerve to renege on a promise made in the name of the party's first family, no less Sonia Gandhi, its matriarch. Yet, Revanth Reddy ignored the promise for months, only to announce a new date, August 15th, fearing pending loans in value, burdening the rest with additional interest and penalties.

Finally, only a few days ago,

Congress washed its hands off

If delayed, partial delivery is the fate of a promise made in the name of Sonia Gandhi, wouldn't it be insulting to Sonia Gandhi if a Congress state government dares to fulfil pledges made in the names of non-family, state-level leaders, which its "Six Guarantees" signed by Revanth Reddy and Bhatti Vikramarka are? Can any Congress state-level leader dare to insult Sonia? Except for token promises like free

Minister's language from those of the BRS. bus rides for women, Congress, as expected, reneged on all the substantial guarantees that it had promised to fulfil within 100 days of coming to power. As a result, no farmer or tenant farmer gets Rythu Bharosa -Rs 15,000 per acre per year, no farm labourer receives Rs 12,000 per annum, no senior, widow or other promised beneficiary gets Rs 4,000 monthly pension, no student got a rupees five lakh Vidya Bharosa card or an international school in their Mandal to attend, no woman receives Rs 2,500 per month nor does any unemployed youth receive monthly dole as guaranteed.

Promising the moon to win and reneging on those promises after the elections was the hallmark of KCR and his BRS government. Within a year, voters have realised Congress is even better at this deceptive game. The Congress's guaran-tees proved to be only as good as KCR's Dalit Bandhu. Unfortunately, breaking promises is not the only aspect in which Revanth Reddy's rule is a continuation of KCR's rule.

Take the case of education in the state. KCR reduced the allocation for education in the budget from around 11% to 6.5%. Congress made no improvements. Consequently, frequent reports of food poisoning, mass hospitalisation, and, on occasion, student deaths from sub-standard food served in government schools continue to this day. Similar is the case with healthcare. A cursory look at government hospitals across the state, particularly Osmania Hospital, is enough to show that no 'Change' has reached poor patients.

Similarly, the Congress had taken no serious steps against any bigwig of the earlier BRS regime. Though Congress, like the Bharatiya Janata Party, has accused the BRS leaders of massive corruption through Kaleswaram, Bhagiratha, sheep distribution, and egg and poultry feed procurements, to name a few, it hasn't filed a single case against any of them even a year after coming to power, giving rise to a widespread perception that Congress leaders are shielding BRS leaders for a price. Congress leaders never tire congress leaders level the of saying their rule is "People's Rule" (Praja Palana). Yet, the Revanth Reddy government outdid even the BRS government in curbing citizens' fundamental rights. Just a few days before Diwali, it imposed section 163 of BNSS (earlier section 144 of CrPC) for an extended period of 32 days across the twin cities, curbing the fundamental rights of more than 1.2 crore citizens who call Hyderabad-Secunderabad their home in one fell swoop, reminding twin city dwellers of Indiramma Palana and her Emergency days.

Finally, the Congress claims it appointed Arekapudi Gandhi, a BRS MLA, as the Public Accounts Committee Chairman. But BRS claims he is a Congress MLA. Gandhi won as MLA from Serilingampally constituency on the BRS symbol. BRS and Congress are so identical that neither party can recognise their MLAs from the other party. Even MIM sees no difference between the two earlier, it was a friendly party of BRS; today, it is a friendly party of the Congress. No wonder the Congress's politics, governance, and even its Chief Minister's language are identical to those of the BRS. (The author is BJP TS spokesperson.)

The SP highlighted that various schemes are being imple-mented for the welfare of the Home Guards, including a Cooperative Credit Society, a digital identity card, a police canteen card, and two days of paid leave per month. A voluntary compensation revealed. The SP presented appreciation letters to 14 home guards on the occasion. ASP Ashok Babu, DSP R Srinivasa Rao, K Srinivasa Rao and other officials were among those who took part in the programme.

'JATHA' STOPPED AT SHAMBHU BORDER Farmers suspend march for a day after cops fire tear gas shells

PNS SHAMBHU

Protesting farmers on Friday suspended for the day their foot march to Delhi to press for var-ious demands, including a legal guarantee for MSP, after some of them suffered injuries due to tear gas shells at the Punjab-Haryana border.

Earlier in the day, a 'jatha' of 101 farmers began to march towards the national capital from their protest site at the Shambhu border but was stopped a few metres away by multilayered barricading erected by Haryana security personnel.

As the group reached the barricades, security personnel lobbed multiple tear gas shells to disperse the protesting farmers and force them to retreat to their protest site.

Covering their eyes and mouths, several protesting farmers rushed to cover the tear gas shells with wet jute bags to counter the smoke. Many of them were seen uprooting iron nails and barbed wire installed on the road to deter their march.

Chanting 'Satnam Waheguru' and holding their union flags, several farmers of the 'jatha' crossed the initial layer of barricades easily but could not proceed further.

A few of them were seen pushing an iron mesh put up by security personnel down the bridge constructed over the Ghaggar River. One of the protesters climbed the roof of a tin shade where security forces had been stationed. He was forced to climb down. Water cannon vehicles have also been deployed at the Shambhu border point.

The Haryana Police asked the farmers not to proceed further, citing a prohibitory order clamped by the Ambala district administration under Section 163 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS) that

Opposition MPs protest in Parl over Adani issue

PNS NEW DELHI

Wearing black masks with "Modi, Adani bhai-bhai" print-ed on them and holding a copy of the Constitution, several Opposition MPs led by the Congress held a protest march inside the Parliament complex on the Adani issue on Friday.

The protest saw several leaders from some of the INDIA bloc parties marching and raising slogans against the Adani group, its owner Gautam Adani and the government.

MPs from the Rashtriya Janta Dal, the Jharkhand Mukti Morcha and the Left parties joined the protest. The Trinamool Congress and the Samajwadi Party, which have so far stayed away from any denunciation of Adani, stayed away from Friday's protest as well. The decision has been seen by the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) as a "division" in the opposition bloc. Leader of Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi and his sister Priyanka Gandhi Vadra, the newly elected MP from Wayanad, were among those who led the agitation.

Priyanka Gandhi later alleged that the government was scared of holding a discussion on the Adani issue and wondered why it was so. "They don't have the courage to discuss the Adani issue (in Parliament). Why is there a problem in discussion ... discussion happens in democracy only, they are afraid of it as well," she said.

Govt lists steps taken under National TB Elimination Programme in LS

PNS NEW DELHI

The interventions under the Tuberculosis National Elimination Programme (NTEP) have been re-strategised to reduce tuberculosis cases and mortality through targeted interventions, free services, private sector engagement, enhanced diagnostics, and comprehensive support for vulnerable populations, the Lok Sabha was informed on Friday. The World Health Organization's (WHO) Global TB Report 2024 shows India accounted for 26 per cent of global TB cases and deaths in 2023, Minister of State for Health, Anupriya Patel, said in a written reply in the Lower House. The Union Health Ministry through the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) conducted a National TB Prevalence Survey in 20 states and group of states to assess the burden of TB at subnational levels, Patel said. The prevalence of all forms of TB cases for all ages was reported at 312 per lakh population in the country, she said.

"Based on the prevalence survey, NTEP interventions have been re-strategised to focus on vulnerable populations to reduce TB incidence and mortality," the minister said. The interventions/steps that have been taken under the programme include targeted interventions in high TB burden areas through state and district specific strategic plans, provision of free drugs and diagnostics to TB patients, and active TB case-finding through campaigns in key vulnerable and comorbid populations, among others, she said.

Parliament passes Bharatiya Vayuyan Vidheyak, replacing 90-year-old Aircraft Act

PNS NEW DELHI

Parliament on Thursday passed a bill to replace the 90vear-old Aircraft Act to further improve the ease of doing business in the fast-growing aviation sector.

The Bharatiya Vayuyan Vidheyak 2024 was passed in the Rajya Sabha by a voice vote. It was earlier cleared by the Lok Sabha on August 9.

The bill seeks to remove redundancies and replace the Aircraft Act, 1934, which has been amended 21 times.

Replying to the debate on the bill in the Upper House, Civil Aviation Minister K Rammohan Naidu said the change in title of the bill from English to Hindi, to which many members raised objections, was done to "showcase the India's heritage and culture", and "there was no violation of Constitutional rule". It will be difficult to pronounce the name of the bill in Hindi initially but one will get used to it, he added.

The bill focuses on enhancing safety, regulatory oversight, and consumer protection while aligning with inter-national standards. The bill also promotes self-reliance in aircraft manufacturing, encourages investment, and establishes robust governance structures for civil aviation authorities.

Responding to concerns of some MPs over skyrocketing airfare, the minister said the government has worked on improving accessibility to a certain extent through Udan scheme and is committed to making it affordable for passengers.

"Through Udan scheme, we have kind of addressed the accessibility. We are now addressing the affordability factor," he said.

Naidu further said the air ticket pricing mechanism is deregulated and it remains a "win-win situation for everyone"

He also stressed on the need to develop local airports to accommodate more passen-

He explained that the airfares are deregulated globally and in India since 1994. However, the ministry monitors the airfares and airlines have liability to inform it before they decide a fare for a particular route.

The civil aviation ministry monitors the ticket pricing and a meeting was held with airlines on the issue of airfares in August.

Airfares were lower during the two days before Diwali this year compared to the same period last year, Naidu said, adding that in major sectors, ticket prices came down by 2 to 42 per cent.

Delhi court acquits tuition teacher in minor student's rape case

'CONSENSUAL RELATIONSHIP'

PNS NEW DELHI

A Delhi court has acquitted a man in an alleged case of rape of his minor pupil in 2019 and observed the complainant was in a consensual relationship with him.

Additional sessions judge Ajay Nagar was hearing the case against a tuition teacher against whom the girl, a class 12 student at that time, got a complaint registered alleging she had been repeatedly raped between 2015 and 2018, besides being threatened and forced to watch porn

The court, however, underpassed on December 5, the lined material contradictions court considered the evidence in the girl's statements. and held, "Accused is acquitted In a 45-page judgement of all charges...

Elaborating on the reasons behind its verdict, the court said the prosecution could not prove the complainant was a minor at the time of the alleged offence and therefore the provision for aggravated penetrative sexual assault under the Protection of Children from Sexual Offence Act could not be invoked. It noted the complainant's testimony of having looked at a "vulgar picture inadvertently" and resiling from her statement that the accused showed her pornographic videos. Moreover, the explanation given by the survivor for not disclosing such facts of sexual abuse to her family members or police is not plausible," the court said, "after the alleged rape, the girl did not raise an alarm and instead, she accompanied the accused, who dropped her home". Noting her testimony about being "attracted" towards the accused and writing him "love letters", the court held the girl was having "a consensual and romantic relationship" with the accused. It took note of submissions of defence counsels Nivesh Sharma and Ritu Singh about the complainant wanting to marry the accused, but getting a false rape case registered as he married another woman.

"It is clear from the record that the accused got married to some other woman somewhere in the year 2018 but before the registration of FIR in the present case. No plausible explanation has been given for not making the complaint against the accused for more than three years which clearly shows that it was the case of a consensual and romantic relationship between the accused and the survivor," said the court.

Plunging into instability

France's political instability and economic crisis deepens as Prime Minister Michel Barnier ousted in a rare no-confidence vote n a dramatic turn of events. French Prime Minister Michel Barnier was ousted in a no-confidence vote on December 5, 2024, marking a rare political upheaval in France's post-war history. The motion, which garnered 331 votes, united far-right and left-wing lawmakers against Barnier's government, plunging France into political instability at a critical juncture. At the core of the crisis lies the contentious 2025 budget. Facing a massive budget deficit, Barnier's government proposed a budget aimed at saving Euro 60 billion. The proposal included austerity measures that sparked widespread discontent across the political spectrum. Barnier's decision to bypass parliamentary approval for parts of the budget using special constitutional powers was a key trigger for his removal. Interestingly, both the Left and the Right united to oppose the budget. By forcing the noconfidence vote, opposition lawmakers saw an opportunity to challenge a government struggling to unite a fragmented parliament. The ouster is a significant blow to President Emmanuel Macron, who now faces daunting challenges in appointing a successor capable of navigating a polarised parliament.

Macron's leadership has been weakened, and his coalition has failed to maintain a majority, leaving his administration vulnerable to opposition maneuvers. France's political landscape is now marked by deep uncertainty. The immediate challenge is ensuring fiscal continuity, as the lack of an approved 2025 budget could further erode investor confidence. Right now Macron has limited options. Macron may try to quickly install a new leader, aiming for stability before symbolic events like the reopening of the Notre-Dame Cathedral.

However, finding someone who can secure cross-party support is a tall order. If the situation gets worse Macron could rely on emergency measures to extend the 2024 budget provisions or pass the 2025 budget by decree. However, such actions would carry significant political costs and might deepen the crisis. The turmoil comes at a precarious time for France and the European Union. With Germany grappling with its coalition government's collapse and the return of Donald Trump to the US presidency, Europe's political stability is increasingly in question. France, as the EU's second-largest economy, plays a critical role in the bloc's cohesion. Domestically, the crisis is a test of resilience for Marine Le Pen, whose National Rally party supported the no-confidence motion. While Le Pen seeks to position her party as a stable alternative to Macron's government, prolonged instability could expose vulnerabilities in her leadership. France faces a soaring budget deficit, high inflation, and growing public dissatisfaction over austerity measures. The fragmented parliament reflects a divided electorate, complicating governance and increasing the likelihood of legislative deadlock. The road ahead requires deft political maneuvering to restore stability and address the systemic challenges that threaten France's economic and social fabric.

India's maritime legacy: Lessons from history

ANOOP SHARMA

Revisiting India's maritime legacy can drive advancements in naval strength, trade security and regional cooperation, paving the way for a strong maritime future

ndia has a rich maritime history dating back to the Indus' Valley civilisation. People of ancient Indian empires such as Mauryas and Cholas were active seafarers who undertook long and arduous voyages for trade, cultural, religious and political causes. Various regional powers and rulers such as Marathas, Marakkars and even Mughals tried to contest the ascendancy of European naval supremacy in Indian waters. The esent-day Indian Navy was born out of the Royal Indian Navy in 1947, with already meagre assets divided between India and Pakistan. As a result, the Indian Navy was initially a coastal force responsible for coastal defence and protection of maritime trade. The Indian Navy proved its met-tle during the liberation war of Bangladesh in 1971.

The decisive and bold actions by the Navy in the 1971 war made the nation realise the potential of the silent, yet dynamic and effecve element of the comprehensive national power. Commencing with the international humanitarian and disaster relief operations in the aftermath of the 2004 Tsunami, the Indian Navy has significantly stepped up its operational tempo.

The recent successes of the Indian Navy in anti-piracy operations in the Gulf of Aden protecting mariners of various nationalities, including Pakistanis, have been internationally appreciated. Indian Navy ships have evacuated personnel of the Indian diaspora and citizens of friendly foreign countries from conflict areas such as Lebanon (2006) and Yemen (2015).

Ancient Indian Maritime Culture As India strives for its rightful position on the global stage, we need to revive and study the historical and indigenous Indian maritime strategic thought. Our scriptures, treatises and literature reference the rich ndian maritime strategic culture. Other powers that arose in the Maratha Admiral Kanhoji Indian sub-continent such as Satavahanas, Pallavas, Pandyas, Cholas and many others continued the rich maritime traditions of the Indian civilisation well past the decline of the mighty Mauryan empire. The adoption of a new naval ensign inspired by the spirit of Shivaji's maritime endeavours is a step in this direction that needs to be ingrained in the ethos of all maritime and naval endeavours of the nation.

Maritime Shivaji's Endeavours: The Marathas were the only Indian power between the 17th to early 19th centuries who successfully challenged the growing European influence in Indian waters.

Shivaji, his son Sambhaji Maharaj and their able Admirals such as Mayank Bhandari, Dautat Khan, Sidhoji Gujar and legendary Kanhoji Angre raised and maintained a strong Navy of over 5000 personnel compris-ing over 300 vessels at its peak. Noted historian Jadunath Sarkar acknowledges that "Nothing proves Shivaji's genius as a born statesman more clearly than his creation of a navy and naval bases". The Maratha naval prowess was further consolidated under deep draught British ships with shallow water crafts, utilising the shelter of shallow natural harbour and fortress with mounted heavy guns were akin to typical sea denial and littoral warfare operations practised by modern navies. Such was the Maratha naval supremacy that even a combined Anglo-Portuguese assault on Kolaba island of Mumbai in 1772 failed to dislodge the Marathas. Strategic Maritime Culture of Cholas The earliest mention of Chola's naval prowess dating back to Roman records of the 1st century AD highlights the presence of a flourishing port at Kaveripatnam and the King's fleet escorting merchant ships into the harbour. The Periplus of the Erythrean Sea mentions the voyage of the early Chola ship 'Colandia' from Kaveripatnam to islands

Despite the lack of a rudder and magnetic compass, the Cholas seafarers could traverse the distance between India and Southeast Asia in twelve to fifteen days, indicative of their Blue Water capability. The maritime endeavours of c Cholas provide valuable insights for stakeholders of the contemporary Indian maritime strategy. The Indian maritime outlook for the in the Pacific Ocean. The Indian Ocean Region that has evolved from the 'Look East' to 'Act East' and the Security and Growth for All in the Region (SAGAR) can draw inspiration from India's maritime legacy. From chaos to comfort: Reflecting on Delhi's transit transformation

Once reliant on rickety DTC buses plagued by poor service, Delhi now boasts a state-ofthe-art metro network, revolutionising travel and making commuting a breeze

I must catch the 1800 hrs train from there!, requested my colleague, Madhu Jasrai, as we were leaving the office in the Bhikaji Cama Place complex. "Sure, why not !!" I replied nonchalantly. "I have some work on the other side of town, and it is prudent to travel by the metro, instead of taking risks, and getting grid-locked in the peak traffic" she explained. I could not have agreed more.

After she got off at Dhaula Kuan, I resumed my journey towards Dwarka, and instinctively, my mind, always in a mad rush, raced back in time, to the days when Delhi didn't have a mass transit system. The entire credit goes only to the South Korean army, who quietly watched this spectacle from a distance and did not interfere in any way. If the army wanted, it could have followed the President's orders and fired on the crowd of common people and also arrested the MPs who had reached the Parliament building. South Korea is one of the most developed and industrialised countries in the world. South Korea's economy is the 12th largest in the world and the fourth largest in Asia. No one is able to understand this decision of the President despite there being no unrest of any kind. Experts are even saying that President Yoon Suk Yeol and his wife Kim Kyeon-hee must have taken such a step due to corruption charges against them. Now they will have to step down from their post themselves, or else they will be removed by bringing an impeachment motion against them in the Parliament. Just removing them will not work, but they should be put in jail. Since the founding of South Korea in 1948, several presidents have declared a military emergency. The most recent-and perhaps the most infamous-occurred in 1979 after the assassination of President Park Chung-hee, a former general who had occasionally used martial law to crack down on political protests and opposition since seizing power in 1961.

and order. This incident, involving a former terrorist armed with a sophisticated weapon, highlights glaring inadequacies in security protocols at one of India's most revered religious sites. While CM Bhagwant Mann has commended the police for averting a tragedy, it is evident that more robust measures are required to prevent such incidents.

The fact that the attacker, Narain Singh Chaura, was allowed to enter the premises with a weapon exposes lapses in intelligence and ground-level vigilance. Although frisking at religious sites is a sensitive issue, safeguarding lives and ensuring the sanctity of such locations must be paramount. The opposition's call for Chief Minister Mann's resignation reflects widespread frustration over the perceived deterioration in law and order. This incident should compel the Punjab government to take immediate steps to review and strengthen security arrangements, especially at religious and public places. Failure to act decisively risks not only public safety but also the reputation of the state. Vishal Mayur | Tumakuru

CURBING CUSTODIAL CRIMES

Madam — Two recent judgements-one from the Delhi High Court and the other from a special court in Bengaluruconvicting policemen for custodial torture and death of the accused have sent a strong message on putting in place a robust mechanism to end the scourge once and for all. 687 persons died in police custody between April 1, 2018, and March 31, 2023, a damning indictment of the police.

Generally, custodial deaths go unreported but for vigilante organisations and proactive families that have a keen nose for suspecting foul play. The Supreme Court guidelines in all cases of arrest or detention are clear-cut. During custodial detentions, mandatory documentation and presence of legal counsel are compulsory. Additionally, every police station should have CCTV cameras installed in strategic points.

FIRSTCOLUMN SURVIVING THE TECH-DRIVEN ERA

Amid rapid technological obsolescence, the need for reinvention has never been more critical t would be worthwhile to examine how organisations are structured and articulated. In the long haul organisations blessed with individuals willing to experiment, innovate and embrace technology will be the ones that survive. At the pace that technology with its variants is fashioning itself, numerous applications unravelling virtually by the minute, and the level of obsolescence and attrition of equipment is becoming extraordinarily high. In such a scenario, humans and organisations will be subsumed by various products and their variants. The human mind can no longer remain in the typewriter mode. The garden of Organisational Theory and Behaviour is dotted with eminent scholars. Three pioneers, Adam Smith, Charles Babbage and Robert Owen provided the ballast and the basic groundwork.

Adam Smith advanced the argument that countries and organisations would profit by adopting the tenets of division of labour, what is now termed as specialisation. Charles Babbage in his seminal work postulated: Through the division of labour, the time required for learning a job or skill gets drastically reduced. Right at the stage of infancy wastage of material gets minimised and diminishes. The mind is propelled to take up serious tasks upon attaining superior skills. Way back in 1789, Robert Owen at 18 went on to acquire a factory. He was a utopian, way ahead of his times. In 1825, he promulgated regulated working hours, child labour laws, public education and business involvement in various community projects - a precursor to CSR.

In today's wired world, individuals work from their dwellings. Places with the latest technology and gizmos at their disposal. Over the last decade, the entire paradigm of organisational behaviour has metamorphosed. Technology stares at organisations with peering eyes, the complexity and dynamics of structures having undergone a complete metamorphosis. Let us look at the Indian Railways. There was a time when the operating and manufacturing departments held sway in the decision-making process. Today, it is the technical departments that are the game changers. The concept of fixed work hours is history. The workforce must be alert 24x7. Thus, employees need to brush up on their skill sets to brace for the challenges of the virtual world.Let us examine the model of direct teaching through online classes- one-onone, between the teacher and the tutee. The very paradigm may affect teaching techniques in schools and universities. Similarly, qualified doctors instruct their colleagues through Skype or other means during complex surgeries. In such a scenario, scores of organisational structures, government or those in the private sector must adapt radically in order to survive. The workforce must continuously upgrade their skill set or face extinction. Perhaps emotions of warmth may be lost in the maze of technological evolution. The philosophy of an organisation, its goals and objectives and the behavioural pattern between the structure and the workforce have been stranded in a traffic jam of the kind one encounters in major cities of India like Gurugram. Stephen Hawking has in a rather depressing prognosis, predicted that life would be extinct on this planet on four grounds - nukes, global warming, man-made viruses or robots. Thus, the human mind should re-invent itself and current organisational behaviour and theories or prepare a blueprint to discover a sister planet to inhabit. Aeons ago, Aristotle wrote, "We are what we repeatedly do." This paradigm will have to change for organisations to survive. South Korea faces its gravest political crisis

Yoon's actions threaten the democratic foundations painstakingly built over decades, echoing a legacy of authoritarianism that South Korea has fought to overcome resident Yoon Suk-yeol has plunged South Korea into a political crisis that risks echoing the darkest chapters of the nation's history. As his administration teeters on the edge of a dramatic shift, Yoon has turned to martial law, invoking emergency powers in a desperate gambit to silence political opposition and maintain control.

The implications of his actions are profound, not just for his presidency, but for South Korea's ongoing struggle with its totalitarian past, its relationship with foreign powers, and its own identity as a modern democracy. South Koreans fought so hard to build a democratic system. Under South Korea's Constitution, the president has the authority to declare martial law in the face of military threats or a national emergency. However, the reasons Yoon provided for his declaration-opposition-driven impeachment efforts, budgetary clashes, and an increasingly fractured political spectrum-hardly constitute a national crisis of the magnitude that would justify such a drastic measure. The events surrounding Yoon's attempt to invoke emergency powers are not isolated; they represent the continuation of a deeply ingrained political pattern, where martial law is not only a tool of governance but a reminder of a nation's struggle between democracy and repression. The debate surrounding Yoon's leadership has drawn comparisons to previous impeachments in South Korea, particularly those of Roh Moo-hyun and Park Geun-hye. Roh, in 2004, faced impeachment over election law violations, though the Constitutional Court reinstated him. Less than a decade later, Park was ousted through impeachment over a corruption scandal. Yoon, while not yet facing the same fate, is set to have his impeachment voted on today following his controversial declaration of martial law, which lasted only six hours and was rejected by lawmakers and the public. Whether or not he survives, South Korea remains trapped in a cycle of political crises, where democratic ideals clash with despotic impulses, reflecting a historical legacy that has shaped the nation for over a century. To understand the scope of South

Korea's political turmoil, one must look at the country's history with martial law-a tool that has long been used by political elites to stifle dissent and assert control.

THE South Korea's 20th century is defined by foreign intervention, IMPLICATIONS division, and military rule. Following Japan's brutal annexa-OF HIS ACTIONS tion of Korea in 1910, martial law ARE PROFOUND. became a key instrument of colonial repression, aimed at quelling NOT JUST any resistance to Japanese imperial rule. The atrocities of this FOR HIS period, from forced labour to the PRESIDENCY, sexual enslavement of women, left deep scars on the Korean psy-BUT FOR che. SOUTH KOREA'S It was a time when the very concept of Korean autonomy seemed ONGOING impossible, as external powers sought to mould the country to STRUGGLE WITH fit their interests. The end of Japanese rule in 1945, after World ITS TOTALITARIAN War II, did not herald peace for PAST, ITS the Korean Peninsula. Instead, Korea was divided into two zones RELATIONSHIP of occupation: the Soviet-controlled North and the American-WITH FOREIGN came at a cost. The U.S., though a key ally, often dictated the direction of South Korean politics, using its military presence to enforce stability while limiting the country's true political autonomy. By 1953, when the armistice was signed, the U.S. had established a major military presence in South Korea, which would grow over the coming decades. This military dominance, coupled with South Korea's internal political instability, created fertile ground for martial law to flourish as a means of maintaining control.One of the most infamous instances of martial law came in 1961 when General Park Chunghee seized power in a military coup. Park's regime, which lasted for over a decade, was charac-

South Korea's political structure. It is also a reflection of the country's broader struggle with its geopolitical position. As the U.S. continues to view South Korea as a critical ally in its efforts to counter China's rise, the country's internal divisions risk undermining its role as a stable partner in the region. The growing U.S. military presence over the decades, with South Korea becoming home to the largest U.S. military base in a foreign country-Camp Humphreys-has been a key feature of this relationship. The presence of 28,500 U.S. troops, the THAAD missile defence system, and the constant military drills aimed at countering the threat from North Korea and China, have turned South Korea into a crucial outpost for American interests in East Asia. In this context, the political instability surrounding President Yoon and his administration is more than just an internal affair—it is a matter of global significance. The U.S. cannot afford to let South Korea's internal divisions spiral out of control, especially as tensions with North Korea and China continue to escalate. If South Korea cannot reconcile its internal political fractures, it risks becoming an unreliable ally in the eyes of its most important partner. This would have significant consequences, not just for South Korea, but for the broader geopolitical ramifications of NATO's eastward expansion and the "Pivot to Asia" strategy coined by former President Barack Obama, which continues to haunt Asian countries. pragmatic and groundbreaking decision has emerged from Pakistan's government corridors, approving its cricket board's acceptance of India's proposed hybrid model for hosting ICC events. This strategic approach, which includes matches at neutral venues such as the UAE, is a lifeline for Pakistan cricket. It ensures the preservation of Pakistan's hosting rights for the prestigious ICC Champions Trophy, scheduled from February 19 to March 9, 2025. Such a decision could have alienated the PCB from the ICC and key stakeholders, given India's significant influence in global cricket. His expertise in revenue generation could lead to record-breaking media deals, benefiting smaller boards through equitable revenue sharing. By integrating advanced technologies and data-driven strategies, Shah could modernize ICC tournaments, appealing to younger audiences and enhancing the game's global appeal. As an Indian, Shah might face allegations of favoring BCCI interests. Ensuring inclusivity and addressing member concerns will be crucial. Balancing the dominance of cricketing giants like India,

The ICC Champions Trophy 2025 holds immense promise under Jay Shah's leadership, with the potential to set benchmarks in competitiveness, innovation, and fan engagement. Pakistan's pragmatic decision to embrace the hybrid model ensures its pivotal role in this journey, preserving its cricketing ambitions while fostering international collaboration. The GDP slowdown in September quarter was not "systemic" and the economic activity in third quarter, with better public expenditure, is likely to compensate for the moderation, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman said on Friday

RBI keeps interest rates unchanged, cuts CRR as economy slows

PNS MUMBAI

The Reserve Bank of India on Friday kept its key interest rate unchanged citing inflation risks, but cut the Cash Reserve Ratio that banks are required to park with the central bank, boosting money with lenders to support a slowing economy.

With India's GDP seeing a sharper-than-anticipated dip in the July-September period to 5.4 per cent -- its slowest pace in seven quarters, inflation on the uptick and rupee under pressure, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) had few choices to make.

Its monetary policy committee, which consists of three RBI and an equal number of external members, kept the repurchase or reportate unchanged at 6.5 per cent for a record 11th meeting in a row.

Four of the six members of the panel voted for a status quo in rate, while retaining its policy stance at "neutral". External members - Nagesh Kumar and Ram Singh - voted for a quar-ter-point reduction.

Das said the Cash Reserve Ratio -- the proportion of deposits that banks must set aside with the central bank -has been cut by 50 basis points to 4 per cent, effective in two tranches on December 14 and December 28. The cut will infuse Rs 1.16 lakh crore into the banking system and will soften short-term interest rates and can reduce the pressure on bank deposit rates.

"At this juncture prudence and practicality demands we remain careful," Das said. A status quo is "appropriate and essential," he said, adding if growth slowdown lingers beyond a point, "it may need policy support"

RBI lowered its growth forecast for the year ending March 2025 to 6.6 per cent, from its earlier projection of 7.2 per cent. This even though Das said GDP slowdown bottomed out in the July-September quarter and has seen a pick-up in subsequent months due to festival spending and strong agriculture output.

Asserting that previous governments weighed development to votes, Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Friday said the progress of the northeast was not given much emphasis earlier due to fewer population and votes in the region.

Inaugurating the Ashtalakshmi Mahotsav here to celebrate the vibrancy of the northeast, he said the government of Atal Bihari Vajpayee was the first to create a dedicated ministry for the region and also earmarked 20 per cent budget of every ministry for its development. "In the last decade, we have seen a wonderful journey of the development of the northeast but it was not easy. We have taken every possible step to connect the northeastern states with India's growth story. "For a long time, we have seen how development was weighed against votes. Northeastern states had less votes and low seats so previous governments did not pay attention to the development of the region," he said.

Modi said he strongly believes that the coming days are of eastern India and the northeast. Like Mumbai, Hyderabad, Chennai and Bengaluru, cities of the region such as Guwahati, Shillong, Imphal, Itanagar and Aizawl will be new beacons of growth, the prime minister said.

SHRIRAM ALLURI

With a voice that weaves together the threads of East and West, Shriram Alluri is redefining the sound of indie rock. In an exclusive chat with The Pioneer, the Hyderabad-born musician opens up about his journey, his inspirations, and the city that shaped him

AARTI SREENATH aarti.sreenath9@gmail.com

hriram Alluri is not just an indie rock musician and songwriter; he's a force redefining crosscultural music. Hailing from Hyderabad, his journey is proof of the universality of music. Growing up immersed in India's classical melodies, Bollywood hits and Tollywood tunes, his first encounter with rock music as a teenager ignited his creative spark. Picking up a guitar set him on a path that led to recording his debut album, Man of Truth, at Brighton Electric Studios in 2015.

'HYD IS MY PLACE OF BIRTH,

TIGALLY CHAINED TO MY

With Evari Kosam, a Telugu-language single produced by Grammy-winner Tommaso Colliva, he seamlessly blended Western rock with his roots. This groundbreaking track marked a turning point, allowing him to share a piece of his heritage with global audiences. Well, after spending over a decade in the UK, Finland and various parts of India, his return to Hyderabad has been a tale of nostalgia, discovery and reckoning with change. "Hyderabad has been treating me with tough love. I was born here, went away for a while, and returned a couple of years ago. It seems the city hasn't taken kindly to my hiatus. I'm still trying to get my claws into its ground." The return, while emotionally grounding, came with its own set of apprehensions. "I needed to be home. Being part of the global indie music space had tested my limits, and I felt like I was floating in space along with my high-flying dreams. Coming back gave me firmer soil to stand on. But some of my apprehensions have proven to be right. The city isn't as accommodating to my profession as I'd hoped." For him, Hyderabad is both familiar and foreign. Having lived in the city from the time of his birth until 10th standard, "Returning feels like being both at home and a stranger in the city all at once. The Hyderabad of my childhood was vastly different. It's all built up now, but there's nowhere to go. What hasn't changed, though, is the essence of home-family and food. The food here, whether home-cooked or from the city's eateries, is a unique blend of cultures and cuisines. But it's a gut health hazard," he adds with a laugh. Among his fondest memories is a latenight escapade that speaks volumes about his family's love and the city's vibrant culinary culture. "When I was nine, I woke my parents up at 10:30 pm, demanding chicken. They were flummoxed but indulged me, taking me to the country club for a late-night feast. It's a memory I cherish deeply," he recalls. Professionally, Hyderabad poses significant challenges for an independent musician like him. "The city isn't built for my profession. There aren't enough live venues for indie music. It's up to the artists here to create that scene. However, the obstacles haven't deterred me. I pursue my work, keeping in mind the Buddhist saying, 'One isn't entitled to the fruits of one's labour.' The struggle fuels my art," he says. He also feels the city could do more to foster intellectual and creative exchange. "I dislike the lack of stimulating conversations and the exchange of ideas between independent minds. Maybe I need to explore more spaces in the city to find those connections," he reflects. Despite the challenges, His bond with Hyderabad remains unshaken. "It's my land of birth romantically chained to my heart," he says. "But my mind seeks beyond its defining and confining shores." For him, Hyderabad is both an anchor and a launchpad, a city that grounds him while pushing him to dream beyond its limits.

Shahana Goswami on 'Beyond takes, discovering deeper truths' in Despatch

TEJAL SINHA tejal.sinha30@gmail.com

n a world where drama often takes center stage, Shahana Goswami's understated yet powerful performances have become a bea-con of nuanced storytelling. With a career spanning over a decade, Goswami has solidified her position as one of India's most versa-tile and sought-after actresses. From her breakout role in Naseeruddin Shah's critically acclaimed Firaaq to her captivating performances in Rock On!! and Viceroy's House, Goswami has consistently proven her ability to bring complexity and depth to her characters. With her latest role in Kanu Behl's Despatch, she once again showcases her remarkable range and talent, delivering a nuanced and emotion-ally charged performance that leaves a lasting impact. In a gripping series like Despatch, she delivers a nuanced performance, navigating the intricate web of relationships and moral dilemmas. We had the opportunity to sit down with her and discuss her approach to her role. When asked about her character's role within the layered narrative of Despatch, The Honeymoon Travels Ltd fame shared, "To start with, Shweta's character, though she is a journalist, she's a financial journalist, and it's never really explored in the film because you see her only with respect to being Joy's wife. So the dynamic that you see between them is purely a husband-wife relationship, and the journalistic aspect is never, it never plays out between them. There was nothing specific in terms of the layering of the realities of the journalistic world that came into play. It was more the layering of the emotional realities of that." According to Shahana, the portrayal of women in male-dominated industries like journalism is often secondary or unexplored. However, she believes that Despatch offers a refreshing take on this trope. "I think it's best to watch the series and form your own opinion. But I can say that Despatch features several strong female characters, and the storytelling does a great job of explaining what makes someone brave and the power that can be hidden behind someone who's perceived as brave," the Rock On fame shared.

In an intimate conversation with The Pioneer. the versatile and accomplished actress Shahana ving till the point that we find something new, till we find something unexpected, till we discover a chance upon a reality that may not come obviously to you, but in that moment, playing it out again and again, you end up exploring or coming across or stumbling upon a dif ferent reality or different way of expressing and reacting and responding." When asked about how Despatch challenged or expanded her creative boundaries, Goswami credited director Kanu Behl's method of working. "It's to do with Kanu's method of working and how he works," she explained. "Starting from the workshop process, we really went down to the bare bones of the character, the histories, the shared histories... it was a really very, very interesting process." However, when asked about her character's relationship with the themes of power and truth within the media world, the Ra.One star noted that this aspect of the series did not apply to her character. The dynamics between their characters is emotionally and psychologically complex and she shared her insights on what makes this relationship so compelling. She noted that this dynamic was carefully crafted through extensive discussions and workshops with her co-star Manoj Bajpayee and director Kanu Behl. "We would keep finding the right kind of choreography through those emotions and things while doing the scenes," she said. When asked about her character's role in reflecting the moral decay of the central protagonist, the Break Ke Baad fame clarified that her character's dynamic with the protagonist doesn't necessarily serve as a mirror to his moral decay. "I don't think that there is any specific moral decay that this dynamic shows in his character, except for just a failed marriage and a possi-ble aspect of philandering," she explained. "But that's never real-ly expressed to be the case. He's already kind of sepa-rated from his wife... so him having a relation-ship with somebody else is possibly something that happened after the separation." Despite having limited screen time in Despatch, her performance leaves a lasting impact on the audience. When asked about her approach to ensuring her character's impact, she humbly attributed it to her enjoyment of the process. "I didn't do anything to make sure. I only played the part and enjoyed playing the part, and I liked the character, the draft, and the journey, and the process." Goswami also appreciated the opportunity to do multiple takes with a specific focus on discov-ering deeper truths. "It's not just doing take after take for the sake of it, but with very specific motivations towards going deeper, finding more truth," she said. "Allowing yourself to fatigue to a point where you then discover something new ... it felt very natural and very safe."

Navigating the fascinating

She credits her nuanced performance to the direction of Kanu Behl. Known for his exacting and meticulous approach, Behl's process can be demanding, but Goswami found it to be a collaborative and rewarding experience.

⁴Kanu is definitely somebody who is exacting, but the beauty with him is that his exacting is not with him knowing what he wants," the Firaaq star explained. "It's to discover, and he wants to discover it with you. So, the great thing is that his desire is only to keep drisaid. Kerala Blasters FC head coach Mikael Stahre is confident of his team's defending collectively in the coming match.

Other opening matches include Paris Saint-Germain vs. Atletico Madrid and Brazilian club Botafogo playing at Major League Soccer's Seattle Soccer's Sounders in Group B; Monterrey against Inter Milan in Group E; and Real Madrid facing the Saudi club Al-Hilal potentially a showdown pitting superstars Kylian Mbappé for Real Madrid and Neymar for Al-Hilal if the Brazilian great remains with that club.

"Anytime that you have certain things where soccer is big and vou bring it to the U.S., it's going to be a great atmosphere and to be a great atmosphere and entertaining," said baseball great Ken Griffey Jr., part of the Sounders' ownership group. His club will get the chance to play one of the world's storied teams in PSG during group play. "I'm going to leave that one alone," Griffey said, smiling. The draw was held Thursday in Miami, with the 32 teams finally finding out their first three opponents in the newly expanded event. The tournament will be held in the U.S. From June 15 to July 13, using 12 stadiums in 11 different cities. The final will be at MetLife Stadium in East Rutherford, New Jersey, the same stadium that will play the scores are tied 4-4 after eight games which was the case here too. The Chennai-born Indian knows that he will have to punch hard against his gritty Chinese opponent, who has a habit of coming up with well-disguised tricks when the chips are down.

World number one and five-times world champion Magnus Carlsen minced no words while doing a recap of the ninth game and said that the time was running out for Gukesh.

"I think we have finally arrived at a moment when Gukesh is not a favourite in this match anymore, it's as pure a 50-50 match as it comes," said Carlsen.

If the deadlock is not broken after 14 rounds, Gukesh could well surrender the initiative to his Chinese opponent when the games are played under the faster time control to determine the winner. Liren is said to have an advantage in short games. Gukesh, one of the architects of India's maiden Chess Olympiad title triumph recently, said after the draw in the ninth game on Thursday that he would like to improve his performance in critical moments. ...Hopefully, at some point when I do the right things, I believe that the results will come," he had said. The youngest-ever challenger to the crown was guilty of letting go a very promising position to settle for a draw in the marathon seventh game, something which would have rattled him.

But he didn't allow the morale to sag in the eighth game. He declined a draw initially through repetition which would have ended the game earlier, thus showing his intent to win at all cost.

In the ninth game, the Indian got an opportunity to exert some pressure on his 20th turn but Liren surprised him. Gukesh could be slightly disadvantaged in the remaining five games as Liren will have white thrice, but the Indian said there was not much difference having black or white pieces. "Nowadays there is not much difference between white and black, because of the computers .. All the lines that were considered dubious, the computers make them work. Now it's an equal game with both colours, so I wouldn't say it's a huge advantage," Gukesh had said on Thursday.

tollywood PUSHPA 2: THE RULE MIRED IN CONTROVERSIES

llu Arjun and director Sukumar's much-anticipated film, Pushpa 2: The Rule, released on Thursday. With inflated ticket prices, the makers anticipated huge boxoffice numbers on the first day. However, to everyone's surprise, the film found itself embroiled in controversies. Many fans criticised the high ticket prices, especially since Allu Arjun had often claimed his fans are his greatest strength. This hike led to lower audience turnout in several top centers. From the second day onward, bookings began to drop significantly in major cities, delivering an unexpected shock to the makers.

One of the major controversies is a tragic incident at Sandhya Theatre, RTC Cross Roads in Hyderabad, where a stampede occurred during a screening of the film attended by Allu Arjun and some team members. A woman lost her life and her son being hospitalised. Initially, neither Allu Arjun nor the filmmakers issued a statement regarding the incident. However, after mounting criticism, they released an official statement. Meanwhile, a case has been filed against Allu Arjun, the movie's makers and the theatre management.

The makers had planned to hold a press conference on Friday but cancelled it at the last moment without providing an explanation. It is speculated that they are avoiding media interactions amidst the ongoing controversies.

Another controversy arose even before the film's release when reports surfaced that music director Devi Sri Prasad was unable to deliver the background score on time. Consequently, the team brought in Sam CS, Ajaneesh and SS Thaman for the background score. Despite their contributions, only Sam CS was credited in the title cards, while Ajaneesh's name appeared in the thank-you cards. Thaman's name was omitted entirely, sparking criticism online for the lack of acknowledgment.

Additionally, certain dialogues in the film have caused a stir on social media. A specific line, reportedly aimed at industry veteran Chiranjeevi-often referred to as "Boss"-has drawn significant backlash. The dialogue, "Evadra Boss? Evadikira Boss? Aadi ki aadi kodukku, aadi tammudu ki, kooda nene Boss' ("Who is the Boss, and for whom? I am the Boss for him, his son, and his brother"), is being widely discussed and criticised for its implications.

Meanwhile, Allu Arjun's visit to Nandyal has also sparked controversy. Despite defending the visit on multiple occasions, many Mega Fans (Chiranjeevi's fanbase) have turned against him, with reports suggesting they are actively campaigning against the film. With high ticket prices, average reviews and fan backlash, the burning question is whether the film can recover and turn a profit, or if it will face losses like the first installment. Only time will reveal how audiences will respond in the coming davs.
