GRAP-IV till Dec 2, was an abject failure: SC

ambasting authorities over the high ⊿level of air pollution in the National Capital and surrounding areas, Supreme Court on Thursday termed the implementation of Graded Response Action Plan (GRAP-IV) measures as an "abject failure" saying GRAP-IV measures in Delhi will continue till Monday (December 2, 2024), except for schools and colleges. A Bench of Justices Abhay S Oka and Augustine George Masih noted that the Court Commissioners' showed an "abject failure" on the part of authorities to control trucks and other inter-state vehicles' traffic into Delhi to implement GRAP-IV curbs in letter and spirit.

Meanwhile, amid escalating pollution levels in Delhi, the Commission for Air Quality Management (CAQM) has empowered member of pollution secretaries control bodies in Uttar Pradesh, Harvana, Rajasthan and Delhi to take legal action against project proponents and agencies for gross violations of pollution control norms at construction sites.

"We make it clear that all GRAP IV measures except the measures which are modified in respect of the schools will continue to operate till Monday. In the meantime, the Commission for Air Quality Management (CAQM) will hold a meeting and come out with the suggestion about moving from GRAP IV to GRAP III or GRAP II. We also make it The SC also asked the CAQM clear that it is not necessary that all measures which are provided in GRAP IV should be dispensed with," the Bench said. The SC further clarified that the entry of all trucks, those carrying essential goods or providing essential services and LNG/CNG/electric/BS-VIfitted trucks, were banned in the National Capital as per GRAP-IV measures. The Court also said that the Commission for Air Quality Management (CAQM) will meet and suggest easing the easing of GRAP IV norms to GRAP III or II on December 2. The Court also said that action against officials for 'serious lapse' implementation of GRAP-IV measures needs to be expedited to consider implementing a "combination" of GRAP IV and III measures in New Delhi, and the measures have to be put on record for discussion on the next date of hearing on Monday. The CAQM's submission that show cause notice has been issued to authorities, including the Delhi Police Commissioner, under Section 14 of the CAQM Act, 2021 was also taken into record. The SC said it expects replies to the notice by Monday (December 2, 2024).

On the issue of action against officials for a "serious lapse" in ensuring the GRAP IV curbs, Additional Solicitor General Aishwarya Bhati said notices have been issued to commissioner of police, commissioner (traffic), additional chief secretary, transport commissioner, commissioner (MCD) seeking explanation by December 2. The Bench said the action against officials needed to be expedited. Bhati said the AQI was in "manageable limits" and the court should consider relaxing the norms.

The Bench took note of a media report related to Punjab wherein a land record officer and president of the Sangrur Block Patwari Union, reportedly admitted to advising farmers to burn stubble after 4 pm, to avoid satellite detection.

"We are not sure of the correctness of this news but if it is correct it is very serious. The (Punjab) state officials cannot permit any farmer to take advantage of the fact that detected which take place during a few hours of the day. The Punjab government should immediately issue instructions to all officers not to indulge in any such activities," the Bench said.

In a recent meeting, the CAOM issued directions to strengthen the monitoring and enforcement of orders issued for air pollution control construction and demolition sites. The CAQM said member secretaries pollution control boards and committees in Uttar Pradesh, Haryana, Rajasthan and Delhi, as part of the statutory sub-committee "Safeguarding Enforcement", could take legal action against project proponents and agencies responsible for violations at construction sites, according to a statement. It also directed the officials to shut down noncompliant sites and recover environmental compensation charges. The CAOM also reviewed the implementation the GRAP, which prescribes measures to tackle pollution based on air quality levels, and emphasised the need for strict enforcement. Meanwhile, pollution levels in Delhi marginally increased to 325 at 4 pm, maintaining the air quality within the very poor' category as the national capital recorded the season's coldest morning of the season Thursday with the minimum temperature settling at 10.1 degrees Celsius, 0.2 notches below normal.

Security personnel conduct investigation at the site after a blast was reported near a PVR at Prashant Vihar, in New Delhi

Blast in Prashant Vihar, near Crime Branch office

SAUMYA SHUKLA NEW DELHI

 A^{low} intensity blast occurred on Thursday near the Crime Branch office and PVR cinemas in Prashant Vihar area in Delhi's Rohini, this explosion took place about 500 meters away from the Central Reserves Police Force (CRPF) school where a bigger blast had ripped through the boundary wall. However, even though the blast on Thursday was of lower intensity, a 28-year-old driver was injured.

The blast was reported by people at around 11.47 am when the residents in the vicinity heard a loud explosion. While initially they assumed it to be a gas cylinder blast, on stepping out they saw a cloud white smoke rising from the area, which had a bad chemical smell.

The victim who sustained minor injuries has been Chetan identified as Kushwaha, who was talking on a phone next to a three wheeler parked near to the place where the blast took place. Kushwaha was working as a driver for Kalpana Sharma, who told The Pioneer that he was waiting for the three-wheeler to be repaired

When we heard the loud blast, we all immediately came out of our homes and saw Chetan injured. He had bloody red eyes, an injury on his lips and his clothes also got soiled and hence we took him to the doctor immediately. We also made a PCR call and the police came in sometime," she said, adding that ever since she inhaled the smoke from the explosion, she has had trouble in her throat. Around the crime scene, white powder marks were seen on the street. His son also said that when he rushed to the spot, he saw a white stone-like substance there.

Coincidently, this blast took place on a day when former Chief Minister and AAP supremo Arvind Kejriwal was holding a press conference on "the deteriorating condition of law and order in the Capital".

The explosion took place in front of a sweet shop near a park in the same area where a strong blast ripped through a wall of a CRPF school on October 20. The spot was near to the Crime Branch office, Fun City mall, St. Margaret's Senior Secondary school, Bansi Sweet among other residential places. The entire area was cordoned off immediately after a bomb detection team, dog squad, Special Cell, Crime Branch and Delhi Fire Services reached the spot. White power was recovered from the spot. However, a probe is underway to ascertain more details about the explosion, officials said.

A senior police officer said film screenings inside underway multiplex at the time of the blast. Panic ensued among visitors and residents as smoke engulfed the area. A video showing a cloud of smoke around the multiplex emerged on social media following the incident. The distance between the PVR and blast site is a few meters.

PTI ■ NEW DELHI

 $F^{\text{air trade regulator CCI on}}_{\text{Thursday ordered a probe}}$ against Google and its affiliates for alleged unfair business practices with respect to listing of real gaming app While passing the Store. order, CCI said the Commission directs Director General ('DG') to cause an investigation to be made into the matter under the provisions of Section 26(1) of the Act".

Commission The directed the DG to complete the investigation and submit a consolidated report within 60 days. The probe follows a complaint by Winzo Games, accusing Google of abusing its dominant position and unfairly favouring select gaming categories, thereby distorting competition.

In its 24-page order, the regulator noted that the selective inclusion of DFS and Rummy apps gives them an undue competitive advantage. "Direct access to end-users via the dominant Play Store provides a significant edge to DFS and Rummy apps, potentially disadvantaging other RMG applications," the Commission said in its order. The CCI also flagged concerns regarding Google's sideloading warnings displayed when users attempt to download RMG apps. These warnings, Winzo claimed, tarnish its reputation and discourage potential users from accessing its app.

A team of the Enforcement Directorate (ED) was attacked and one of their officials suffered injuries on Thursday morning after it arrived at a farmhouse as part of its investigation into a cyber fraud-linked money laundering case related to the UAE-based Pyypl payment aggregator. An FIR has been registered, and authorities are now working to track down the attackers.

took place at a farmhouse that was raided by ED team led by Suraj Yadav in the Bijwasan area which falls under the Kapashera police station in southwest Delhi. The official who suffered injuries in the attack was identified as an additional director of ED.

According to police, the farmhouse belonged to a man named Ashok Kumar, a Chartered Accountant (CA). A picture of a broken chair, kept in the farmhouse, was shared by the ED on X. Shortly after the incident, the ED said in a statement that the searches were part of a money laundering investigation against "organised" cyber crimes like Phishing, QR code cheating and part-time job fraud leading to duping of many people. The agency said it analysed these cases with the help of the Indian cyber crime coordination centre (I4C) and the Financial Intelligence Unit (FIU). "It was found that an organised network of CAs and crypto traders was at work. Around 15,000 mule accounts were used to layer proceeds of cyber crimes. Subsequently, debit and credit cards were obtained which were used to top up virtual accounts on Pyypl and funds were layered to buy crypto-currency," the ED

It said "incriminating" material including multiple PAN cards, bank cheque books, cards, seals and CPUs have been seized. At one premises at Bijwasan, suspect Ashok Sharma and his brother assaulted an ED officer and managed to escape after causing hurt. An FIR is being filed. Searches are on," it said.

Sources said that the Chartered Accountant had a connection with a cyber app fraud case and the network was being run by some Chartered Accountants (CAs). The accused fled the scene in the ensuing chaos. After the attack, local police were called to the spot immediately to control the situation and ensure the safety of the officials.

Think before you like, share, follow 'bad-characters' online

STAFF REPORTER ■ NEW DELHI

m iking, sharing, or}$ social media posts or profiles, associated with gangsters and criminals can now put you at risk, as the Delhi Police have intensified their monitoring of such online activities. According to police sources, the social media profiles of 'bad-character' elements will be continuously scanned to zero-in on them. In police 'bad-character' terms, elements are those who are arrested or apprehended multiple times for crimes they commit and were sent to jail or correctional homes, but sharing their posts on social they again involve themselves in criminal activities.

A senior police official said, We have directed all the police stations and posts in different districts of Delhi to keep a strict vigil on the social media activities of 'badcharacters." He added that a list will be prepared of gangsters which these 'badcharacters' are following.

"Police of all the 15 districts and all units like Special Cell, Crime Branch, Railways and Metro were asked to prepare a list of those criminals who are following any gangsters on social media, liking or media to know associations with gangsters," he said.

The officer further said that many of the 'bad-characters' were arrested in the past for posing pictures or videos with firearms on social media. "During interrogation, we got to know that they are doing such activities to increase followers on their social media profiles," he said.

Another officer said that the social media monitoring team of the Delhi Police will keep an eye on different profiles who are sharing videos or reels of gangsters Even the gangsters are looking for juveniles and young people as their potential target," the officer said.

"Local associates of the gangsters keep an eye on youths who are either posting their pictures with weapons on social media or involved in any petty crime. These associates share their profile with the gangsters; later the gangsters provide money and weapons to these youths to commit crimes," he added, suggesting that parents must track their children's activities on a daily basis.

Farmers' Protest Intensifies as Tensions Escalate Outside DMCH in Ludhiana

PNS CHANDIGARH/LUDHIANA

udhiana witnessed a dra-Lmatic escalation in the ongoing farmers' protest as tensions erupted outside Dayanand Medical College and Hospital (DMCH) on Thursday. A group of farmers gathered to meet their leader, Jagjit Singh Dallewal, who has been detained and hospitalized since Tuesday. Their demands to meet Dallewal were met with a heavy police presence, culminating in a heated confrontation that resulted in the detention of two protesting

The agitated farmers staged dharna outside the Out-Patient Department (OPD) of the hospital, raising slogans Government for what they termed as suppressing their democratic movement. The protests stemmed from the refusal of authorities to grant access to Dallewal, whose detention has become a flashpoint for the larger farmer agi-

Dallewal, a prominent police custody 58 hours ago to prevent him from starting a fast-unto-death at the Khanauri border on November 26. He was later transferred to DMCH for medical observation. Farmers alleged that Dallewal has been kept incommunicado, with neither visitors allowed nor any communication permitted with him since his detention. It has been learnt that Dallewal has been continuing his fast under detention. The situation outside DMCH remained tense throughout Thursday. Farmers demanded clarity on who ordered Dallewal's detention and insisted on his immediate release. Police officials, however, stood firm, citing directives from higher authorities.

An altercation ensued, with farmers questioning the legality of the detention and demanding the presence of senior officials on the spot. When their demands went unmet, they intensified their protests, leading to a temporary shutdown of hospital services. Police ultimately detained two Mann once claimed to be the farmers to diffuse the situation, though many protesters remained stationed outside DMCH, vowing not to leave without meeting their leader.

A video message by Dallewal's grandson, Jigarjot Singh, added fuel to the fire. 'My grandfather is a man of resolve who won't bow to any pressure," he said, urging the farmers to intensify the protests. This call resonated strongly, as groups of farmers from various districts, including a contingent of over 100 farmers from Amritsar's Pandher Kalan village, moved towards Khanauri to strengthen the ongoing agitation.

The protests have been fueled by unresolved issues, including the implementation of Minimum Support Price (MSP) guarantees and other agricultural reforms. Farmer leaders have accused the Punjab Government of betraying their cause, claiming that it has adopted oppressive tactics similar to those of the Central Government.

"Chief Minister Bhagwant

farmers' advocate, yet his actions now mirror those of the BJP-led Central Government," said Sarwan Singh Pandher, a senior farmer leader, leading the current agitation along with Dallewal. At the Khanauri border, a meeting of the Samyukt Kisan Morcha (Non-Political) outlined the next steps. The farmers announced a demonstration against Chief Minister Mann in Sangrur on December 2 and issued a 10-day ultimatum for meaningful dialogue. If no resolution is achieved, they plan to march to Delhi on December 6, this time without tractors, opting for a symbolic foot march

As the Dallewal-led movement enters its third day, the Punjab Government appears to be scrambling to contain the fallout. Emergency meetings with police and farmer representatives have yet to yield tangible results. Meanwhile, farmers have categorically stated that negotiations will only proceed if Dallewal is brought back to the protest site at Shambhu border.

Hry CM inaugurates Sports Complex & Girls' Hostel in Hisar

PNS CHANDIGARH

Haryana Chief Minister Nayab Singh Saini on Thursday inaugurated the sports complex and girls' hostel at Maharaja Agrasen Medical College, Agroha in Hisar. The Chief Minister also announced a grant of Rs 31 lakh from his discretionary fund for the Institution. The Chief Minister, while paying homage to Maharaja Agrasen, said that this college would continue the mission of humanitarian service initiated by Maharaja Agrasen.

'The sapling planted by OP Jindal has become a large banyan tree today, which is a matter of pride for us. This medical college is significantly contributing to our goal of providing health services to every individual," Saini added.

He said that these two new facilities at the medical college would be highly beneficial for the students. The sports complex built on an area of 4 acres, includes three multipurpose halls, a swimming pool, a gym, a yoga room, and a restaurant, built at a cost of Rs. 10 crore. The girls' hostel, constructed at a cost of Rs. 5.70 crore on an area of 3 acres, has 54 rooms, providing improved residential facilities for students.

Saini said, "The Central Government under the leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi has approved the excavation of the archaeological site at Agroha, creating hope for the unveiling of its ancient heritage. We will preserve this great heritage along the lines of Rakhigarhi," he said.

The State Government has honored Maharaja Agrasen's teachings by naming Hisar Airport after him, which is nearing completion and will soon be inaugurated. This will benefit Haryana, Punjab, and Rajasthan, and the airport's development will turn the region into an industrial zone corridor, said Saini.

The Chief Minister said that Prime Minister Modi has envisioned transforming India into a medical hub, and strengthening its medical infrastructure to realise this vision. A medical college is being set up in every district of Harvana. Presently, the state has 15 medical colleges, of which 9 were established during the present state government's tenure, with 9 more under construction. Additionally, land has been finalized for medical colleges in Fatehabad, Charkhi Dadri, and Palwal and the construction of these medical colleges will begin soon. This will increase the number of medical colleges

The state has started free dialysis facilities for kidney patients in all government hospitals and medical colleges from October 18. Besides this, under the Ayushman Bharat scheme, free treatment up to Rs. 10 lakh annually has been started for senior citizens above 70 years of age. The Chirayu Ayushman Scheme has already provided claims worth Rs. 1,477 crore for the treatment of 11.65 lakh patients in the state, Saini added.

Support Song for Sukhbir Badal Sparks Controversy Ahead of Akal Takht Verdict on Dec 2

PNS CHANDIGARH

Tn Punjab's politically-charged Latmosphere, a song in support of Shiromani Akali Dal (SAD) former president Sukhbir Singh Badal has taken social media by storm — just days before the Akal Takht Sahib is set to pronounce its verdict on him. The song, composed by Haryanvi singer Rocky Mittal, portrayed Sukhbir as "a victim of conspiracies" while sharply criticizing the rebel faction within the party. Released on social media, the song accused the dissident leaders of betrayal and central agencies of orchestrating a vendetta against the Akali stalwart.

Rocky Mittal, who has a significant following on YouTube, is no stranger to controversy. In the song, he called Sukhbir a leader who resisted Delhi's alleged dominance. The video even depicted Punjab Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann in a subservient role to AAP supremo Arvind Kejriwal, fueling politMittal's song goes further, questioning the role of central agencies in Sukhbir Badal's ongoing troubles, making it a direct appeal to rally support for the nbattled leader.

This sudden support comes at a critical time for Sukhbir, who was declared tankhaiya (guilty of religious misconduct) earlier this year by the Akal Takht Sahib.

Meanwhile, the rebel SAD ders have raised eyebrows at the timing of Mittal's intervention. They argued that the song aimed to sway public sentiment before the December 2 judgment, which could potentially determine the political fate of Sukhbir Badal and key ministers from his tenure

SAD's rebel faction, led by senior leaders like Sukhdev Singh Dhindsa, Prem Singh Chandumajra, Bibi Jagir Kaur, Parminder Singh Dhindsa, convened Chandigarh to submit their resignations, emphasizing their commitment to Akal Takht Sahib's decision, reafical discourse in the State. firming their dedication as humble Sikhs ready for any religious or political service. Convenor Gurpratap Singh Wadala accepted their resignations > Mittal's own journey has been equally dramatic. Formerly aligned with the BJP, Mittal joined Congress in 2022, releasing a song titled 'Mujhe Maaf Karna, Rahul Mere Bhai'. While his shift to Punjab's political narrative was unexpected, his latest creation has ignited speculation about his motives. Critics questioned whether the song represents genuine solidarity or strategic positioning in Punjab's comlex political landscape.

As December 2 approaches, the Akal Takht Sahib, under Jathedar Giani Raghbir Singh, has urged all stakeholders to avoid public statements, maintaining the sanctity of the decision-making process. The call for restraint comes amid heightened speculation over the consequences of the verdict, which could redefine SAD's trajectory and Punjab's political future.

brewing water dispute Abetween Punjab, Haryana, and Rajasthan has come to light, with the Puniah Government accusing the state of Haryana of utilizing more than its allocated share of water from the Bhakra Main Line Canal, impacting Rajasthan's rightful share. Punjab's Water Resources Department has officially raised the matter with Rajasthan Government through a letter, following a meticulous 15-day water measurement exercise conducted earlier this month.

The controversy stemmed from the concerns raised by Rajasthan in a Northern Zonal Council meeting held in Chandigarh, where it was alleged that Haryana was not releasing water appropriately from the Bhakra Main Line Canal. The canal is a critical lifeline for Rajasthan, supplying water for irrigation and drinking purposes. Rajasthan had claimed that the state was receiving less than its entitled share, putting its agri-cultural and drinking water needs claims, initiated a detailed assessment from November 1 to November 15. According to Punjab's findings, the Bhakra Main Line released 6062 cusecs of water daily during this period slightly above the required 6017 cusecs. However, Rajasthan's allocation of 623 cusecs was not being honoured fully, with the state reportedly receiving only 423 cusecs per day — amounting to a shortfall of 199 cusecs daily, raising serious questions about Haryana's water management and distribution practices.

Punjab, acting on these

Punjab has clarified the situation to Rajasthan and emphasized Haryana's overuse of shared water resources, urging immediate corrective measures.

Punjab Government has identified 390 points along the canal from its origin to Haryana's entry point, where water was meticulously measured. These findings, presented to both states, underscored discrepancies in Haryana's water usage.

Haryana, for its part, has countered by alleging that Punjab is releasing less water than required, hampering its ability to transfer Rajasthan's share effectively. This blame game further complicated an already contentious issue, with Rajasthan having previously approached the Supreme Court for redressal.

The issue of water sharing has long been a point of contention among the three states, with the Bhakra Main Line Canal being a key component of the Sutlej-Yamuna Link (SYL) system. Water disputes in the region have historical roots, often fueled by growing demands and changing hydrological conditions. Rajasthan's reliance on the canal system is particularly critical, as the state faces acute water scarcity in several regions. The shortfall reported by Punjab has exacerbated the situation, jeopardizing the livelihoods of farmers and access to drinking water in affected districts. Punjab's proactive measurement initiative aimed at bringing transparency and accountability to water distribution. The state has urged Haryana to adhere strictly to allocation norms and ensure Rajasthan receives its due

The latest dispute underscored the need for long-term solutions to inter-state water conflicts in India, including improved monitoring systems, equitable sharing agreements, and better conflict-resolution mechanisms. Punjab's letter to Rajasthan signaled a step toward addressing these challenges, but the resolution of the matter will require cooperation among all stakeholders.

As the states prepare for further dialogue, Rajasthan awaits fair treatment of its water needs, with hopes that the issue will be amicably resolved to avoid furvention remains a potential turning point in this ongoing saga. Army assures 72-km

Relief for border

In a major breakthrough for Punjab's border communities, Ćabinet Minister for NRI Affairs Kuldeep Singh Dhaliwal on Thursday announced that the Army has agreed to widen the crucial 72-kilometer Ajnala road. Currently 5.5 meters wide, the road will be expanded to seven meters, easing traffic congestion and improving connectivity in the border

During a meeting at the 11 Corps Headquarters in Jalandhar Cantt, Minister Dhaliwal held discussions with Chandpuria and his team, resulting in this long-awaited decision. The road, falling under Army jurisdiction, has long been a bottleneck, particularly during the cane harvesting season, when overloaded trolleys create persistent traffic snarls. The Minister highlighted that he had raised the matter with the Ministry of Defence, leading to today's on-the-spot review by Army officials. The widening project is expected to commence in 2025, with further discussions underway to extend specific stretches to 10 meters in high-traffic zones like the cane belts. "This project will significantly enhance connectivity, benefiting farmers, residents, and troops stationed along this critical border belt," said Dhaliwal.

Punjab launches aggressive campaign to reduce road accident fatalities

PNS CHANDIGARH

PThursday launched a road safety campaign aimed at significantly reducing road accident fatalities across the State. Unveiling a comprehensive strategy during the 15th meeting of the Punjab State Road Safety Council (PSRSC) at Punjab Bhawan, Punjab Transport Minister Laljit Singh Bhullar emphasized a zero-tolerance approach to traffic violations while introducing stringent accountability measures and state-of-theart interventions.

Bhullar announced mandatory monthly review meetings to evaluate the progress of departmental action plans and issued a stern warning to underper-forming departments. "If deficiencies are found in any department's action taken shared additional initiatives to enhance student well-being "Students in Classes XI and XII as well as college-going youth, will be trained in life skills and dents in all the government and first aid. Nursing students, college students will also be groomed as master trainers to prevent diseases like dengue and other vector-borne illnesses," he said, adding, "This year, due to the success of our War on Dengue campaign, dengue cases in Punjab have reduced by 50 percent."

Highlighting the issue of intestinal worm infections among children aged one to 19, Dr Balbir explained that Albendazole tablets are distributed twice annually to combat tapeworms and other parasitic infections. "Today, on National Deworming Day, around 72 lakh tablets have been distributed to students in government, aided, and private schools. Additionally, a Mopup Day will be observed on December 5 to ensure no child is left untreated," he said.

Haryana's Pinjore Gardens to be thrown AAP Punjab to begin accepting open as heritage wedding destination s the wedding season gains A momentum, Yadavindra Gardens, popular as Pinjore Gardens, in Haryana's Panchkula district will now be thrown open as an exclusive heritage wedding destination. The move by the Haryana Tourism Corporation Ltd (HTC) will offer couples a unique opportunity to celebrate their special day in a setting of historic grandeur and scenic beauty in Piniore.

The initiative beginning with a four-month pilot project aims to promote sustainable tourism and highlight the region's rich cultural heritage, an HTC spokesperson said on Thursday. Located about 25 km from Chandigarh on the Ambala-Panchkula-Shimla highway, the Yadavindra Gardens is nestled in the picturesque foothills of the tury complex is known for its expansive lawns, historic structures, ornamental fountains, and panoramic views, making it an ideal location for weddings, the spokesperson said in a statement. The gardens offer a range of rental options designed to accommodate different event preferences and budgets.

"The complete garden rental is available at Rs 10 lakh plus applicable taxes per function, while options for the Jal Mahal, stage, and gathering space are priced at Rs 6 lakh plus taxes. The Rang Mahal to Jal Mahal and stage area package is offered at Rs 8 lakh plus taxes per function," the statement said. "In addition, guests can enjoy elegant accommodation with 20 rooms and suites, including the renowned Rang Mahal and Sheesh Mahal.

Room rates range from Rs

2,339 to Rs 6,000 per night, and Shivalik range. The 17th cen- early booking is recommended to ensure a seamless experience," it added.

The HTC has also established comprehensive guidelines to maintain the heritage and cultural integrity of the gardens during events. Temporary decorations must be pre-approved and align with the site's aesthetics. Organisers are also required to follow environmental guidelines, including waste management, limited use of firecrackers, and sound and light restrictions. "Security measures are mandatory to manage crowds and protect the property. Additionally, the gardens offer ample parking spaces in coordination with the local authorities with optional valet services. Event planners will also have access to a designated kitchen area, with event setups

for four months during which the HTC will evaluate the feasibility and revenue potential of the Yadavindra Gardens as a destination wedding venue. "The initiative reflects the tourism department's dedication to balancing financial sustainability with the preservation of cultural and historical sites," he said.

It also underscores Haryana Tourism's commitment to showcasing heritage sites through innovative solutions that benefit tourism and support local economies. "Event managers are encouraged to feature the HTC logo and branding in their promotional materials to highlight the venue's historical significance and reinforce its appeal as a premier choice for elegant, heritage-inspired weddings, the spokesperson said.

m olstered}$ by the bypoll win, the ruling Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) in Punjab is set to make a decisive leap in its preparation for the municipal corporation elections by initiating the candidate application process soon. The key decision, announced during a series of strategic meetings led by AAP Punjab president Aman Arora on Thursday, marked a critical step in the party's plan to consolidate its urban governance footprint.

Arora, presiding over day-long meetings at the party office in Chandigarh, engaged with senior leaders, district incharges, and organizational teams representing major divisions, including Patiala, Phagwara, Jalandhar, and Ludhiana. "The Municipal Corporation elections are a golden opportunity to strengthen AAP's commitment to transnance. We are determined to deliver leadership that serves the people with integrity and vision," he said.

AAP's decision to prioritize merit, integrity, and a serviceoriented mindset in candidate selection is seen as a transformative approach. Arora emphasized that the process would be rigorous, ensuring that only the most capable individuals represent the party. "Our focus is on selecting candidates who embody the values of honesty, dedication, and a deep understanding of local issues," he remarked

The grassroots-driven stratgy reflected AAP's resolve to foster a connection with urban voters, reinforcing its narrative of a citizen-centric governance model. Feedback from districtlevel leaders and party workers will play a vital role in shaping the party's election campaign, further strengthening its reach at the community level.

The meetings resonated with optimism following AAP's recent by-poll successes, which have reinvigorated the party cadre. Leaders, including Local Government Minister Dr Ravjot Singh, expressed confidence in the party's ability to replicate its winning formula in the local body elections. "Our by-poll victories have shown that the people trust AAP's vision for Punjab. We are confident of setting new benchmarks in the upcoming municipal elections," Arora added.

Discussions during the meetings revolved around campaign strategies, organizational outreach, and urban governance reforms. AAP's plan included intensifying grassroots outreach, leveraging its success in rural development, and translating that into actionable urban initiatives. The leaders outlined efforts to ensure participation from all organithe importance of cohesive teamwork in achieving electoral

The sessions also provided a platform for MLAs, ministers, and district heads to collaborate and strategize. Key participants included Ministers Harbhajan Singh ETO, Dr Balbir Singh, and Mohinder Bhagat, along with MLAs Raman Arora, Madan Lal Bagga, and Daljit Singh Garwal. Their inputs highlighted the shared vision of strengthening urban local bodies under AAP's administration. The enthusiasm among party workers and leaders was palpable, with many asserting that Punjab's urban electorate is ready for change. "The people of Punjab know that AAP delivers on its promises. We are committed to creating a model of urban governance that prioritizes people's welfare over political gains," Arora

One nation, one subscription

While heralded as a potential game-changer for academia, the ONOS has ignited intense debate among scholars and researchers

n the series of 'one nation' comes yet another addition and this time it is about subscription of academic journals. The Indian government's recent approval of the 'One Nation, One Subscription' (ONOS) scheme has sparked considerable debate within academic and research communities. Touted as a transformative step for Indian academia, the scheme seeks to centralise access to academic journals and publications for higher education and research institutions across the country. While the initiative promises benefits such as cost efficiency and wider access to resources, concerns about its implementation, implications for academic freedom and necessity remain significant. Under the ONOS scheme, managed by the Information and Library Network (INFLIB-NET), over 6,300 institutions will have access to 13,000 e-journals from 30 major international publishers through a unified digital portal. With a budget allocation of Rs 6,000 crore for its first three years, the government aims to empower approximately 1.8 crore

Smaller institutions, often constrained by limited budgets, could benefit immensely from comprehensive access to high-quality publications. Students and researchers in remote or underfunded regions may now have the same access as those in premier institutions, fostering equity in education and research. Centralising subscriptions could also significantly reduce costs. A unified portal ensures that these resources are opti-mised, potentially freeing budgets for other academic priorities. This could encourage more efficient and effective research practices. Despite its potential benefits, the ONOS scheme has raised several concerns. One major issue is the lack of clarity on how journals will be selected. Academic needs are diverse, varying by discipline, institution and research focus. Centralising the decision-making process risks overlooking specific requirements, leading to an inadequate or unbalanced collection of resources. Critics argue that the government could limit access to publications or perspectives it disagrees with, thereby influencing academic discourse. Another critique is that the scheme might disrupt established systems that currently work well. Many institutions already have mechanisms to access journals through collaborations, institutional networks like the Developing Library Network (DELNET), and platforms like JSTOR. Moreover, the scheme's centralised approach risks reducing the autonomy of academic institutions. Faculty members, who currently play a significant role in determining which journals their institutions need, might find themselves sidelined. This loss of autonomy could hinder academic innovation and responsiveness to emerging research trends. It would be hasty to implement the scheme which has advantages for sure, but the concerns of academicians must be addressed.

Countering China's African influence

Prime Minister Modi's visit to Nigeria highlights India's bid to rejuvenate ties with the African nation and counter China's growing influence through partnerships little over two months after China's assiduous wooing of Nigeria, India sought to do the same during PM Narendra Modi's recent visit to the African nation. The prime ministerial visit, coming after a gap of 17 years, should inject fresh momentum into bilateral ties. It should also, hopefully, help a bit in countering Beijing's growing influence in Nigeria, a country with whom India has enjoyed close and robust ties for decades but now finds itself in competition with

While India and Nigeria have 'a strategic partnership, the African nation and China elevated their ties to 'a comprehensive strategic partnership' this year. The courting of Nigeria as well as dozens of other African countries was done bilaterally as well collectively at the ninth Forum on China-Africa Cooperation (FOCAC) Summit in early September in Beijing. These summits have been held regularly since the first one in 2006, with one even being held virtually during the Covid-19 pandemic. India, however, has floundered in not being able to organise an African summit since the last one in 2015, ostensibly due to the pandemic and geopolitical tensions, but amounts to a lack of strategic foresight. China is making deeper inroads into the African continent for both strategic as well as economic reasons. Strategically, it can project itself as a geopolitical force countering arch foe US. Moreover, strengthening its foothold in the world's second most populous continent comes with the lucrative advantage of having access to the huge market as well as the rich mineral resources there. For many cashstrapped African nations, China has been a pivotal lender of loans for much-needed infrastructure construction, but it comes with the perils of running up huge

China is also Nigeria's biggest bilateral lender and the two sides decided to forge close economic ties when Chinese President Xi Jinping and Nigerian President Bola Ahmed Tinubu met in Beijing ahead of the FOCAC Summit. It's in the backdrop of all this that PM Modi's recent visit to Nigeria assumes even greater significance. While he made it clear that India gives "high priority" to its strategic partnership with Nigeria, the visit yielded only three pacts – on survey cooperation, cooperation in customs matters and culture exchange programmes.

India will have to do some real heavy lifting in the coming years if the 14 areas of bilateral cooperation identified in the joint statement are to come to fruition. Among these are the Bilateral Investment Treaty, the Double Taxation Avoidance Treaty and the Agreement on repurposed Line of Credits. India's outreach to Nigeria at the nignest ievel was required given that Africa's most populous nation enjoys much heft in the region and beyond. It's a founding member of the African Union (AU), which India helped bring into the G-20's fold last year. Nigeria is now also a BRICS partner state. The country is also a member of OPEC, with President Tinubu also being the current chair of ECOW-AS (Economic Community of West African States). A fresh push to boost bilateral trade and investments by Indian companies in Nigeria is imperative.

There are already over 200 Indian companies in the manufacturing sector with investments worth $27 billion in Nigeria. While India remains among the top 5 trading partners of Nigeria, bilateral trade unfortunately decreased to $7.89 billion in 2023-24 from $14.95 billion in 2021-22. This is attributed to a reduction in Indian oil imports from Nigeria as it chose to import oil from Russia, taking advantage of the cheaper rates being offered due to the conflict with Ukraine. With the joint statement with Nigeria talking about India's willingness to go in for longterm contracts for crude and LNG purchases, bilateral trade might pick up once again. Significantly, India has also evinced interest in investing in Nigeria's oil and gas sector. Terrorism and piracy also figured as areas of cooperation in the joint statement. Nigeria for many years has been battling the Íslamic radical group Boko Haram, which has also been attacking oil and gas infrastructure in the country. India, interestingly, has offered technical knowhow on security for pipelines in Nigeria. Maritime domain cooperation is also of crucial importance to combat piracy. Nigeria abuts the Gulf of Guinea through which passes crucial sea lanes for transporting crude oil. India had deployed at least two warships, INS Sumedha in 2023 and INS Tarkash in 2022, in the piracy-prone Gulf of Guinea. With Chinese vessels on the prowl across the oceans, these deployments were not without strategic significance.

Overall, India needs to move and move fast, delivering on its promises made during PM Modi's visit to Nigeria. It has no time to lose in majorly upscaling its traditional robust ties with African nations, especially with China increasingly grabbing strategic space in the continent. Unpaid care workers: The neglected workforce

These workers, predominantly women, form the invisible backbone of families and communities, shouldering critical responsibilities without recognition or compensation npaid care workers play a crucial yet often overlooked role in sustaining families and communities. These individuals, typically family members and predominantly women, take on essential caregiving and household tasks without formal salaries or wages. Their contributions range from managing daily domestic duties to supporting vulnerable family members and even volunteering in community-based activities. Despite the significant value they provide, their work remains largely unrecognised, unregulated, and uncompensated, often leaving them economically insecure and lacking social protections.

This group includes several key roles. Household caregivers provide daily care for children, elderly relatives, or family members with disabilities, handling tasks like cooking, cleaning and offering emotional support. Childcare providers, especially in low-income families, often include mothers or grandmothers who look after young children, offering informal education and pensated.

Family health caregivers manage tasks such as administering medication, assisting with mobility, and caring for chronically ill relatives. In rural areas, unpaid care work often extends to agricultural labor, including farming, collecting water, and gathering firewood, which are essential for household survival but remain uncomThe economic contributions of unpaid care work are immense, supporting families and enabling formal economic activities by ensuring the wellbeing of individuals. However, the lack of formal recognition and compensation leaves these workers vulnerable to financial instability and limits access to social protections.

A related but distinct category includes 'Anganwadi' workers, who occupy a middle ground between unpaid and paid care work. Employed under the Child Integrated Development Services (ICDS) programme, they receive a modest honorarium rather than a formal wage. This compensation is often irregular, lacks benefits like retirement or health insurance and fails to provide the stability of formal employment. Consequently, while Anganwadi workers are technically paid, their financial insecurity mirrors the challenges faced by unpaid care workers.

Despite their critical contributions to the care economy, Anganwadi workers remain undervalued and undercompensated. Many are forced to take on additional jobs to make ends meet. Their situation highlights the broader societal neglect of care work, where contributions—paid or unpaid are undervalued and often relegated to the margins of discourse. economic Addressing these issues requires recognising care work's essential role in social and economic systems and implementing policies that ensure fair compensation and protection for all care

SIDHU SPARKS CONTROVERSY

Madam — The former cricketer and commentator Navjot Singh Sidhu, whose wife is suffering from cancer has come out with propaganda on social media that neem leaves, lemon juice, turmeric, and cinnamon helped cure his wife's breast cancer and started advocating it as a simple remedy for those who have been suffering from it. As a celebrity, Sidhu should have advised the people to ensure good health with a periodical medical checkup since the dreaded disease affects lakhs every year in India. His irresponsible statement, while taking into account the false claims that celebrities used to promote wrong products by endorsing commercials for their self-promotion, as well as to claim the fat check, calls for a stringent warning. Sidhu's experience on his wife's issue shouldn't deviate people who are already suffering and availing treatment in their Tall claims in social media need strong rebuttal with penalisation for their unemotional behaviour. In 2019 the BJP leader Pragya Singh Thakur had similarly claimed that Gau Mutra (cow urine) had cured her of cancer, whereas she was operated on for tumour removal in 2008 at JJ Hospital in Mumbai as reported by Dr Rajput. When the flashback runs like this, Sidhu's claim at these advanced medical times has been thoroughly misled while the global research has not yet found anything concrete to counter cancer to date is the reality. Controlling the growth and extending longevity by itself can be considered to be a miracle and we can only seek blessings for the safe health of Sidhu's wife and thousands in the need of this hour.

TRUMP 2.0: STEEP TARIFFS ON CARDS

Trump's policies are likely to create ripples across economies, including India

he fireworks have started, even before people across the globe have ushered in Christmas and New Year's festivities. The Trump presidency 2.0 could be a game changer, potentially recalibrating several global geopolitical and economic partnerships. First, the Biden era days of strategic partnership with nations worldwide would be replaced with a more transactional approach which President Trump in his second stint is likely to institutionalise. Even before taking charge, Presidentelect Donald Trump has vociferously spelt out his tariff-based external affairs policy.

He had during campaigning talked about imposing nearly 60 per cent tariffs on China imports. Recently he has said that one of the first executive orders, he is likely to sign after assuming office on January 20, would be to impose tariffs on Canada, Mexico and China imports. Of course, the caveat is, unless, they stop sending illegal immigrants and ban drugs across to the US. Donald Trump knows his tariff-based foreign policy approach has bipartisan support among Democrats and Republicans. It feeds well into his Made in America, local job creation narrative which catapulted him back to the White House in a non-consecutive term. India is overseeing this space, as it knows very well that even though the first tariff bullets may not be fired at India, eventually many will. Mr Trump has already spoken about India's high tariffs in his election rallies and notwithstanding the amount of good, the Indian IT services sector has done for the US, he needs to send home hard messages. The only saving grace in the upcoming US-India bilateral relationship, under President Trump 2.0 would be the personal equation, the president-elect has with Prime Minister Modi. Knowing each other for a long period and having observed each other's style of governing, can be an initial advantage but not a long-term solution. Key Indian trade interlocutors are in high demand, especially those who have been in government during Trump's first presidency.

At some point in time, the issue of tariffs would come up in the bilateral conversations, where hard-nosed negotiations may be required. India and US under the Biden administration managed to establish a formal institutional framework for settling trade and tariff issues in the form of a Trade Policy Forum (TPF). The TPF platform provides trade representatives from the US and India to meet regularly to discuss and find solutions to mutual areas of concern. To be sure the TPF mechanism existed even under the Trump administration, but with one meeting and a new Indian government under Prime Minister Modi (with less focus on trade and external affairs policy), it served little purpose. Chances are, given Donald Trump's style of functioning, the TPF may be relegated to the background and several transactional bilateral meetings would be formatted to, minimise the friction in the trade relations.

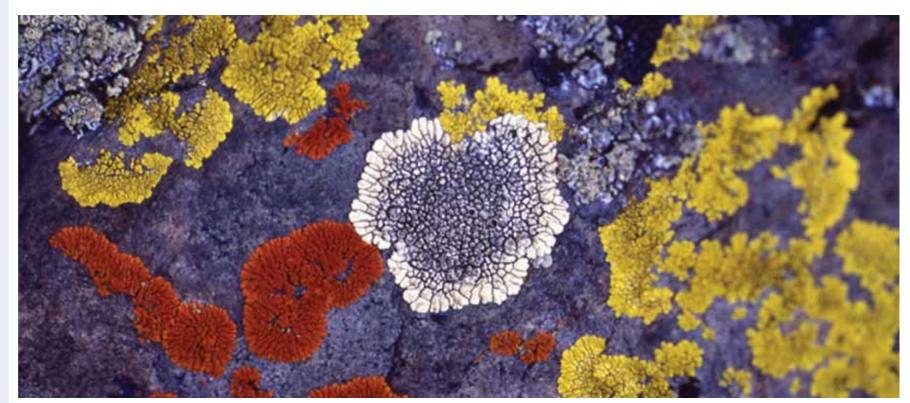

It may be worth noting that India has a trade surplus with the US, a point Mr Trump will keep in mind to extract his side of the deal. Meanwhile, the expected tightening of the trade environment between the US and China would have a significant impact on the global economy. China would have to find newer markets to push some of the goods, which could be too expensive to export to the US. India and its neighbouring nations would have to brace up. Prices of items in the US, most of which are imported from China could add an extra burden on household budgets, which in turn could push rate hikes.

These global headwinds will shape, the narratives for a long time to come. It could have an inflationary impact on global oil prices and growth of the several global economies. India's Reserve Bank has already cautioned that the slowdown in the global economy, protectionism, and tariffs are three key factors that will shape India's economy next year. It would be another tightrope with clever hands of the juggler on rope which can carry India for the next few years.

Climate change and Lichens: The tiny titans of nature

Lichens, the silent guardians of our ecosystem, are under threat from climate change and need to be saved, write BKP SINHA and ARVIND KUMAR JHA ibrant patches of colour adorning some tree trunks and rocks may draw your attention as you move in the forest. Although they appear as mere stains or growths; they are intricate organisms called lichens, a product of a mutualistic alliance between fungus and algae. Making it a unique creation of nature, the fungus absorbs water and nutrients from the air while an organic compound is generated by the photosynthetic partner. Thus while fungi build a house; its algal partner supplies food as the breadwinner. Similarly, if fungi did not provide a secure structure, the algae would die homeless in harsh

The absence of cuticles and roots and their direct reliance on the atmosphere for nutrients, however, makes lichens highly vulnerable to pollutants. Found in a variety of shapes and colours, ranging from delicate leafy structures to crusty patches, they thrive in diverse habitats, from rocky mountainsides to rain forests and deserts. They can grow on soil, humus, stones, rocks, bricks, plaster, leaves, tree trunks, decaying wood and even on glass. Overtly so simple and insignificant in the face of the dominant bias of human beings that often considers a forest just as an assemblage of trees and vegetation mix, lichens play an extremely vital role in ecosystems. Lichens are known to play a crucial role in soil formation, breaking down rocks through biogeochemical and biochemical weathering and creating nutrient-rich soil paving the way for other plants to grow. They produce unique compounds with potential medicinal properties, PLANTS TO GROW such as antibiotics and antifungals. They are used in medicine, food, fodder, perfume, spices, and dyes. Researchers are exploring these compounds to develop new drugs and sustainable materials. By understanding the adaptations and biochemical properties of lichens, one can unlock new possibilities and contribute to a more sustainable future. Lichens can survive at extreme temperatures and altitudes in which no creatures the edge of the forest than deep in the forest. They will be lesser near the towns as the air quality deteriorates Many lichens are incredibly sensitive to air pollution, particularly due to sulphur dioxide and nitrogen oxides, as also to the level of heavy metal pollution. All lichens, however, are not equally sensitive to air pollutants. Different lichen species exhibit different sensitivity to specific air pollutants. Consequently, lichens are wellsuited as biological indicators for monitoring environmental

More than seventeen thousand species of lichens are reported to cover around seven per cent of the world's surface. India, a land of diverse landscapes and climatic conditions, is home to rich biodiversity and harbours about 3,000 fascinating species of lichens. Some European countries like Germany, Italy, Portugal and Slovenia; considering lichen's response to pollution; have positioned them as bio-monitors and bio-indicators and included them in their air-pollution-related policy documents. Much of India's lichen diversity, however, remains relatively unexplored as regards their ecological significance and potential applications. Yet another crucial issue in the Indian context is the undervaluation of lichens in India.

When the diversion of forest land for rainforest purposes is proposed, the net present value (NPV) of the forest is calculated and the amount is recovered from the project proponents. Calculation of NPV does not consider the aspect of the immense value that lichens have from ecological as well as economic points of view. This is evident from the fact that the per hectare NPV of forests of Eco-class-I and Ecoclass-II categories that have emerged as a popular bio-moniforests of types Tropical Wet-E v e r g r e e n / S e m i -Evergreen/Moist-Deciduous/ Littoral and Swamp have been assigned the same value. It is essential that realistic values are assigned to the forests of different types and the monetised value of lichens and their services are duly incorporated therein. Climate change has serious implications for the lichens. Higher temperatures can disrupt the delicate balance between the fungal and algal partners. Extreme heat can lead to desiccation and reduced growth rates. Altered rainfall patterns can affect the availability of water, which is crucial for lichen growth and reproduction. Further, climate change can exacerbate air pollution tion, harming lichens. A rise in pollution load in the air breaks the lichen cell resulting in bleaching of the organism, and the same is followed by its An extremely valuable natural demise. Again, acid rain, caused resource the lichens are, they are by releasing sulphur dioxide and nitrogen oxides, can damage lichen tissues. Climate changeinduced alterations in habitats may result in the loss of suitable environments for their growth while fragmentation of habitats can critically limit dispersal and gene flow. The importance of exploring the roles of different organisms involved in the complex eco-processes in the context of global changes cannot be overestimated.

In this context, lichen is increasingly being recognised globally as a bio-indicator of 'Global Change Drivers' that are seen as interconnected stressors like climate change, pollution, land use change, and loss of biodiversity contributing to large-scale environmental impacts. The mapping of epiphytic lichen diversity to assess ecological changes has toring approach in Europe and a European standard has been adopted under the Committee European d Normalisation (CEN) framework. It aims to provide Standard Operating Procedures (SOP) to ensure reliability, consistency and objectivity while simultaneously improving data quality and comparability across space and time.

Needless to say, it is high time that India, possessing almost eighteen per cent of the world's lichen species and being global-ly the third-highest air-polluted country only after Bangla Desh and Pakistan, prioritises her efforts in this direction. Detailed exploration and study of lichens can also yield many more useful species for an unexpectedly wide variety of ecological as well as human needs and pursuits including their widespread use as bio-prospecting agents.

reportedly in a losing evolution-ary race against climate change. A 2022 study reveals that it could need more than one million years to adjust to the ecological crisis created due to just one degree

Celsius of warming.
With the unabated pace of global warming, lichens, considered one of the most unique and hardy species and a bio-monitoring tool, are facing the danger of getting obliterated from the face of our planet.

Well, the next time you encounter a tree or rock adorned with colourful lichens, take a moment to appreciate these remarkable organisms. Let us work towards their conservation as their beauty and ecological significance make them an integral part of our natural world.

Educate. Advocate. Act Now: Confronting antimicrobial resistance

Awareness is crucial to stop misuse of antibiotics to stop antimicrobial resistance and its harmful side-effects

A ntimicrobial Awareness Week (WAAW) 2024' under the theme 'Educate. Advocate. Act Now,' we are reminded of both the remarkable achievements of antimicrobial medicine and the escalating threat posed by antimicrobial resistance (AMR). This year's theme serves as a clarion call for individuals, healthcare providers and policymakers to unite in protecting these life-saving drugs. Through education, advocacy and immediate action, we can address the growing crisis and secure a healthier future for all. Life Before Antibiotics: A Fragile Existence For much of human history, infections posed a dire threat to survival. Minor injuries, routine childbirth, or surgical procedures often led to fatal outcomes due to the lack of effective treatments. Ancient civilisations turned to natural remedies such as herbs, honey and garlic, but able. these measures were often inadequate. The concept of

A New Era of Medicine The discovery of penicillin by Alexander Fleming in 1928 marked a turning point in medical history. By the 1940s, penicillin was wide-

AMR: A Global Crisis in the Making

While antimicrobials transformed healthcare, their misuse and overuse have driven the global crisis of antimicrobial resistance. Mismanagement of these drugs has undermined their effectiveness, allowing resistant strains of bacteria to flourish.

Misuse and Overuse: Antibiotics are frequently prescribed for conditions like viral infections (e.g., the common cold), where they have no effect. In agri-used excessively, often to promote animal growth rather than treat illness. This practice creates resistant bacteria that can transfer to humans through the food such Examples Methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) highlight the danger of resistance. Once easily treatable, infections like MRSA now require lastresort drugs, which are often more toxic, expensive, and less effective.

Underuse: Failing to complete prescribed antibiotic courses, skipping doses, or using leftover medications allows bacteria to survive culture, antimicrobials are and develop resistance.

The Innovation Gap: Despite the urgent need for new treatments, the development of antibiotics has stagnated. No new classes of antibiotics have been discovered in recent decades, leaving humanity vulnerable to resistant pathogens. Developing antibiotics is an expensive and time-consuming process and limited financial incentives deter pharmaceutical companies from pursuing research in AMR and fostering respon-

Simple practices, such as completing prescribed courses and avoiding sharing or stockpiling antibiotics, can significantly reduce resistance. Dhaka High Court refuses to ban ISKCON in Bangladesh

The High Court on Thursday refused to ban ISKCON's activities in Bangladesh, a local newspaper reported days after a lawyer was killed in a clash between security personnel and supporters of a Hindu leader arrested on sedition charges. The lawyer had sought a ban from the high court on the International Society for Krishna Consciousness (ISKCON) after placing some newspaper reports related to the organisation on Wednesday. The court had asked the attorney general to inform it about the steps taken by the gov-ernment regarding ISKCON's recent activities, according to The Daily Star.

Hindu leader Chinmoy Krishna Das, who was arrested this week, was earlier expelled from ISKCON. His arrest triggered clashes on Tuesday during which Advocate Saiful Islam, an assistant public prosecutor, was killed. When the High Court proceedings started on Thursday, the attorney general's office placed the information sought by the court before the bench of Justice Farah Mahbub and Justice Debasish Roy Chowdhury, The Daily Star said. Additional Attorney General Aneek R Haque and Deputy Attorney General Asad Uddin informed the HC bench that three separate cases have been filed in connection with the murder of lawver Saiful Islam Alif and ISKCON's activities, and 33 accused have been arrested in these cases.

The bench then hoped that the government would remain cautious about protecting the law and order situation and lives and properties of the people of Bangladesh, the newspaper added. India on Tuesday noted with "deep concern" Das' arrest and denial of bail, and urged Dhaka to ensure the safety and security of Hindus and all other minority groups. Separately, a group of Supreme Court lawyers sent a legal notice to Bangladesh the notice.

"ISKCON has been operating in Bangladesh as a radical organisation, engaging in activities designed to provoke communal unrest," the notice alleged. Citing a book by former Bangladeshi intelligence officials, the notice alleges that ISKCON has been promoting religious events "with the intent of inciting sectarian violence," "imposing its beliefs on traditional Hindu communities, and forcibly recruiting members from lower Hindu castes, the newspaper said.

Pakistan, China hold military level talks on counter-terrorism

PTI ISLAMABAD

Dakistan and China military officials held talks on counter-terrorism and regional security amid unease following the recent attacks on Chinese nationals.

General Zhang Youxia, Vice Chairman of the Central Military Commission (CMC) China and one of China's two top military leaders, is visiting Pakistan along with a high-level delegation, according to a military statement.

General Zhang held a one-onone meeting with Army Chief Gen Asim Munir on Wednesday, followed by delegation-level discussions. According to the statement, the engagements focused on "matters of mutual interest, regional security dynamics, measures for regional stability, and enhancing bilateral defence cooperation."

General Zhang spoke about Pakistan's ongoing counter-terrorism efforts, which remain a key topic of discussion between the two countries due to the rising frequency of attacks targeting Chinese nationals working in Pakistan

Newspaper Dawn reported that there have been media reports that Beijing is seeking a more proactive role in ensuring the safety of its citizens in Pakistan, but the Foreign Office has emphasised that counter-terrorism cooperation between the two countries is based on mutual respect for each other's sovereignty.

Under the regional stability head, the two sides exchanged views about the Indian role in the region and the developments in Afghanistan, particularly the presence of terrorist groups, Dawn added.

The CMC vice chairman's visit follows a trip by Gen Li Qiaoming, commander of the People's Liberation Army Ground Forces, to Pakistan in late August

Additionally, over 300 Chinese troops arrived in Pakistan to take part in the joint China-Pakistan anti-terrorism exercise, Warrior-VIII, amid escalating militant attacks in the country. The opening ceremony for the drills was held on n influential Indian-An influential indian-American organisation has urged US President Joe Biden and President-elect Donald Trump to call on the government of Bangladesh to protect the minority Hindu community in the country.

In separate letters to Biden and Trump, the Foundation for India and Indian Diaspora Studies (FIIDS) on Wednesday expressed grave concern over the escalating human rights violations against religious minorities in Bangladesh and the recent arrest of Hindu spiritual leader Chinmoy Krishna Das Brahmachari.

Bangladesh's minority Hindus have faced over 200 attacks, including those on their temples, since the fall of Sheikh Hasina's Awami League government on August 5, according to the FIIDS.

Das was arrested on Monday in a sedition case and later denied bail by a court, triggering protests by community members in various locations, including the capital Dhaka and the port city of Chattogram. He was a member of the International Society for Krishna Consciousness (ISKCON) and was recently expelled.

Calling for an independent inquiry into the violence against minorities, Khanderao Kand, President and Chief of Policy and Strategy, FIIDS requested Biden to urge Bangladesh Chief Advisor Yunus Mohammed to release Das, provide protection to minority communities and publicly commit to upholding secular principles.

"Bangladesh's progress as a democratic and inclusive society depends on safeguarding the rights of all its citizens, including its most vulnerable populations. We trust that your leadership will champion these values and help restore hope for those who continue to face oppression and displacement," he said. In his letter to Trump, Kand said, "As the incoming leader of the free world, you have the unique opportunity to prioritise the protection of vulnerable communities and reinforce America's commitment to religious freedom and human

the interim government to ensure Das' release, safeguard ISKCON's operations and protect minority communities from further violence and encourage Bangladesh to reaffirm its secular constitution and hold free and fair elections to restore democratic governance. strongly condemn Bangladesh for its atrocities against minorities, the arrest of a Hindu monk and its shocking attempt to ban the humanitarian religious minority organisation, ISKCON, while ignoring jihadi extremist organisations," Kand told PTI. Bangladesh is rapidly descend ing into a radicalised Islamic state, all under the watch of the US, the State Department, and the UN who must act now to restore democracy and protect minorities. I request not only President Biden but would urge President Trump and his transition team to give priority to restoration of peace and protect minorities in Bangladesh," he said.

Instead of taking action against radical Islamist groups, the Bangladeshi government has shockingly labelled ISKCON, a globally respected humanitar ian organisation, a "religious fundamentalist organisation' Kand said.

This baseless accusation, spearheaded by the attorney general, comes alongside a petition to ban ISKCON, which has fed millions worldwide, promoted interfaith harmony, and provided critical humanitarian aid in Bangladesh during disasters. Such a move undermines global religious tolerance and human rights, he said.

In a social media post, popular African-American singer Mary Millben condemned the attacks on Hindus in Bangladesh. "The imprisonment of Chinmoy Krishna Das and the continued attacks against Hindus and other minorities by extremists in Bangladesh must be addressed now by world leaders. We must preserve religious freedom, and the safety of all people of faith globally," she said.

Russian missile, drone attack targets Ukraine's energy infrastructure

Russia conducted a "massive" attack against Ukraine's energy infrastructure on Thursday, firing nearly 200 missiles and drones and leaving more than a million households without power, Ukrainian officials said.

Russia's second major aerial attack on Ukraine's power grid in less than two weeks amplified fears that the Kremlin aims to cripple the country's power generation capacity before winter.

"Attacks on energy facilities are happening all over Ukraine," Energy Minister Herman Halushchenko said in a post on Facebook. He added that emergency power outages were implemented nationwide. In some regions, Kalibr cruise missiles with cluster munitions smashed into civilian targets, Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy said, calling it "an insidious escalation." Cluster munitions release numerous small bombs over a wide area, making them dangerous to civilians both during and after an attack

Ukrainian officials have and equipment to push warned recently that Russia was stockpiling cruise and ballistic missiles, presumably for another pre-winter aerial campaign against Ukraine's power grid. Ukrainian officials have in the past accused Russia of weaponising winter."

Around half of Ukraine's energy infrastructure has been destroyed during the almost three years of war with Russia. and rolling electricity blackouts are common. Kyiv's Western allies have sought to help Ukraine protect power generation with air defense systems and funds for rebuilding.

Russia in previous years has targeted Ukraine's electricity generation, aiming to deny civilians critical heating and drinking water supplies during the bitter winter months and break Ukrainian spirits.

The attacks also seek to hobble Ukraine's defense industry that is now producing missiles, drones and armoured vehicles, among other military assets. The war has been going in Russia's favour in recent months as its bigger army uses its advantages in manpower Ukrainian forces backward in eastern areas, though its offensive has been slow and costly. Explosions were reported in Kyiv, Kharkiv, Khmelnytskyi, Lutsk, and many other cities in central and western Ukraine.

Zelenskyy urged Western countries to accelerate delivery of promised air defence weaponry. Ukrainian officials in the past have grumbled that military aid is slow to arrive. "Each such attack proves that air defense systems are needed now in Ukraine, where they save lives, and not at storage bases," Zelenskyy said on the Telegram messaging app. The head of Ukraine's presidential office, Andrii Yermak, said in a Telegram post that Russia had stockpiled missiles to strike Ukrainian infrastructure and wage war against civilians during the cold season. "They were helped by their crazy allies, including from North Korea," he wrote.

Western governments and South Korea say North Korea in recent months has intensified its military support for The head of the Lviv region in western Ukraine, Maksym Kozytskyi, said the attack left more than half a million households without electricity. Over 280,000 households in the northwestern Rivne region were without electricity because of the attack, according to regional Gov. Oleksandr Koval. Running water supplies were also patchy in affected areas. Some schools in Rivne city switched to online classes There were also strikes on the bordering Volyn region, where 215,000 households had no

electricity, regional head Ivan

Rudnytskyi said. All critical infrastructure that lost power was switched to generators. Energy infrastructure was also targeted in the western Ivano-Frankivsk region, local officials said. Air defences were activated there, and emergency power outages were introduced.

Local officials ordered the opening of "points of invincibility" — shelter-type places where people can charge their phones and other electrical devices and get refreshments during blackouts.

Bangladesh seeks Hasina's trial in ICC

Bangladesh has sought to pursue deposed prime minister Sheikh Hasina's trial in the International Criminal Court even as she faced a trial in a domestic tribunal on charges of crimes against humanity, office of the interim government chief Muhammad Yunus said here on Thursday.

"The Chief Adviser Yunus discussed the issue of Hasina's trial with International Criminal Court (ICC) prosecutor Karim A Khan who called on him at his official Jamuna residence," an official of the chief adviser's press wing said.

Hasina fled to India on August 5 following widespread protests against her Awami League-led government over a controversial job quota system. Three days later, Yunus, a Nobel laureate, took over as the Chief Adviser of the interim government.

He said Yunus, during his meeting with Khan on Wednesday, told him that Bangladesh intends to pursue the charges against Hasina and her allies particularly on charges of carrying out "massacre" during the July-August mass uprising and enforced disappearances during the past 15 years of her rule.

Dozens of cases are now being processed at the Internal Crimes Tribunal of Bangladesh (ICT-BD) against Hasina, her cabinet colleagues, several of them being in jail or on the run at home and abroad while Dhaka sought Interpol help for her repatriation from India

Yunus, earlier, said his government would also seek her return from India to stand trial.

The ICC prosecutor, however, said the international court would like to extend cooperation to ICT-BD, which by now, has issued an arrest warrant for Hasina and several top-ranking members of her Awami League party.

According to the press wing, the duo during their discussion, also discussed the Rohingya crisis and humanitarian assistance for them, the Myanmar situation alongside the prosecution and accountability of atrocities during the July-August mass movement in Bangladesh.

Khan informed Yunus that his office had formally sought an arrest warrant for Myanmar's military government chief Min Aung Hlaing for crimes against humanity regarding the treatment of Deposed prime minister of Bangladesh Sheikh Hasina on Thursday condemned the arrest of Hindu spiritual leader Chinmoy Krishna Das and said the leader must be released immediately.

"A top leader of the Sanatan religious community has been unjustly arrested, he must be released immediately," Hasina said in a statement. "A temple has been burnt in Chittagong. Previously, mosques, shrines, churches, monasteries and homes of the Ahmadiyya community were attacked, vandalised and looted and set on fire. Religious freedom and security of life and property of people of all communities should be ensured," the former prime minister said in the statement posted on Awami League's X account. Hasina fled to India on August 5 following wide-spread protests against her Awami League-led government over a controversial job quota system. Three days later, Yunus, a Nobel laureate, took over as the Chief Adviser of the interim government. Israel-Hezbollah ceasefire holds

AP ■ TYRE (LEBANON)

Thousands of Lebanese displaced by the war between Israel and Hezbollah militants returned home on Wednesday as a ceasefire took hold, driving cars stacked with personal belongings and defying warnings from Lebanese and Israeli troops to avoid some areas.

If it endures, the ceasefire would end nearly 14 months of fighting between Israel and Hezbollah, which escalated in mid-September into all-out war and threatened to pull Hezbollah's patron, Iran, and Israel's closest ally, the United States, into a broader conflagra-

The deal does not address the war in Gaza, where Israeli strikes overnight on two schools-turned-shelters in Gaza City killed 11 people, including four children, according to hospital officials. Israel said one strike targeted a Hamas sniper and the other targeted militants hiding among civilians.

The truce in Lebanon could give reprieve to the 1.2 million Lebanese displaced by the fighting and the tens of thousands of Israelis who fled their homes along the border. "They were a nasty and ugly 60 days," said Mohammed Kaafarani, 59, who was displaced from the Lebanese village of Bidias. "We reached a point where there was no place to ical extremist wings.

The US- and France-brokered deal, approved by Israel late Tuesday, calls for an initial twomonth halt to fighting and requires Hezbollah to end its armed presence in southern Lebanon, while Israeli troops are to return to their side of the bor-

Thousands of additional Lebanese troops and UN peace-keepers would deploy in the south, and an international panel would monitor compliance. Israel says it reserves the right to strike Hezbollah should it violate the terms of the deal. Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's office said troops arrested four Hezbollah operatives, including a local commander, who had entered what it referred to as a restricted area. It said troops have Hezbollah supporters declare victory despite devastation: Israel can claim major victories in the war, including the killing of Hezbollah's top leader Hassan Nasrallah and most of its senior commanders, as well as the destruction of extensive militant infrastructure.

A complex attack involving exploding pagers and walkie-talkies, widely attributed to Israel, appeared to show a remarkable degree of penetration into the secretive militant group.

The battered Hezbollah has lost much of the mystique it acquired by fighting Israel to a stalemate in the 2006 war. Yet the Shiite militant group still managed to put up heavy resistance, slowing İsrael's advance while firing scores of rockets, missiles and drones across the border each day. "This is a moment of victory, pride and honour for us, the Shiite sect, and for all of Lebanon," said Hussein Sweidan, a resident returning to the port city of Tyre. Sporadic celebratory gunfire was heard at a main roundabout in the city, as drivers honked their horns and residents cheered.

Israel carried out heavy strikes until the ceasefire took hold, pounding targets in the already hard-hit southern suburbs of Beirut known as the Dahiyeh, where Hezbollah was headquartered. Residents returning to its rubble-strewn streets on Wednesday projected defiance. "We don't care about the rubble or destruction. We lost our livelihood, our properties, but it's OK, it will all come back," said Fatima Hanifa, evoking the rebuilding after the 2006 war.

"It will be even more beautiful. And I say to Netanyahu that you because we are back and the others (Israelis) didn't come back." Other Lebanese are more critical of Hezbollah, accusing it of having dragged the economically devastated country into an unnecessary war on behalf of its patron, Iran. They control us and we can't do anything about it. This war killed whoever it killed and now they're telling us it's a victory," said a young man who was returning from neighbouring Syria after being displaced from the eastern Bekaa province. He spoke on condition of anonymity, fearing retribution.

have lost, and lost, and lost

Trump has threatened to impose tariffs on products from Canada and Mexico if the countries don't stop what he called the flow of drugs and migrants across southern and northern borders. He said he would impose a 25 per cent tax on all products entering the US from Canada and Mexico as one of his first executive orders. A Canadian government official said on Wednesday that Canada is preparing for every eventuality and has started thinking about what items to target with tariffs in retaliation. The official stressed no decision has been made. The person spoke on condition of anonymity as they were not authorized to speak publicly. When Trump imposed higher tariffs during his first term in office, other countries respond-ed with retaliatory tariffs of announced billions of new duties in 2018 against the US in a tit-for-tat response to new taxes on Canadian steel and aluminium.

Many of the US products were chosen for their political rather than economic impact. For example, Canada imports USD 3 million worth of yogurt from the US annually and most comes from one plant in Wisconsin, home state of then-House Speaker Paul Ryan. That product was hit with a 10 per cent duty.

Another product on the list was whiskey, which comes from Tennessee and Kentucky, the latter of which is the home state of then-Republican Senate leader Mitch McConnell.

Trump made the threat Monday while railing against an influx of illegal migrants, even though the numbers at Canadian border pale in comparison to the southern border. The US Border Patrol made 56,530 arrests at the Mexican border in October alone — and 23,721 arrests at the Canadian one between October 2023 and September 2024.

Canadian officials say lumping Canada in with Mexico is work with the Trump administration to lower the numbers from Canada. The Canadians are also worried about influx north of migrants if Trump follows through with his plan for mass deportations.

Trump also railed about fentanyl from Mexico and Canada, even though seizures from the Canadian border pale in comparison to the Mexican border. US customs agents seized 43 pounds of fentanyl at the Canadian border last fiscal year, compared with 21,100 pounds at the Mexican border. Canadian officials argue their country is not the problem and that tariffs will have severe implications for both countries. Canada is the top export destination for 36 US states. Nearly USD 3.6 billion Canadian (USD 2.7 billion) worth of goods and services cross the border each day. About 60 per cent of US crude oil imports are from Canada, and 85 per cent of US electricity imports are from Canada. Canada is also the largest foreign supplier of steel, aluminium and uranium to the US and has 34 critical

"Canada is essential to the United States' domestic energy supply," Deputy Prime Minister Chrystia Freeland said.

Trump has pledged to cut American energy bills in half within 18 months, something that could be made harder if a 25 per cent premium is added to Canadian oil imports. In 2023, Canadian oil accounted for almost two-thirds of total US oil imports and about onefifth of the US oil supply.

Prime Minister Justin Trudeau is holding an emergency virtual meeting on Wednesday with the leaders of Canada's provinces, who want Trudeau to negotiate a bilateral trade deal with the United States that excludes Mexico.

Zuckerberg dines with Trump in Mar-a-Lago

AP ■ FORT LAUDERALE(US)

Donald Trump dined on Wednesday with Meta CEO Mark Zuckerberg at the president-elect's Mar-a-Lago club in Florida, bringing together the Facebook founder and the for mer president who was once banned from that social network.

Stephen Miller, who has been appointed deputy chief of staff for Trump's second term, said Zuckerberg, like other business leaders, wants to support Trump's economic plans. The tech CEO has been seeking to change his company's perception on the right following a rocky relationship with Trump

"Mark, obviously, he has his own interest, and he has his own company and he has his own agenda," Miller said in an interview on Fox News about the meeting. "But he's made clear that he wants to support the national renewal of America under Trump's leadership.

A spokesperson for Meta confirmed that Zuckerberg and Trump met on Wednesday, saying he was invited for dinner with the presidentelect and other members of his team to talk about the incoming administration.

Trump was kicked off Facebook following the January 6, 2021 attack on the US Capitol. The company restored his account in early 2023. During the 2024 campaign, Zuckerberg did not endorse a candidate for president. Zuckerberg has since taken a more positive stance toward Trump. Earlier this year, he praised Trump's response to his first assassination attempt, calling it "badass." Zuckerberg also complained that senior Biden administration ials pressured Facebook to COVID-19 content during the pandemic.

Still, Trump in recent months had continued to attack Zuckerberg publicly. In July, he posted a message on his own social network Truth Social threatening to send election fraudsters to prison in part by citing a nickname he used for the Meta CEO. "ZUCKERBUCKS, be careful!" Trump wrote.

The Thanksgiving eve visit also comes as tech mogul Elon Musk has become more influential in Trump's Make America Great Again movement, contributing an estimated UŠD 200 million through his political action committee to help elect Trump. Musk is the billionaire owner of the X social network, a competitor to Musk has spent considerable time at Mar-a-Lago since the election, and Trump selected him to lead an outside advisory panel known as the "Department of Government Efficiency (DOGE)" to identify waste with Vivek Ramaswamy, a venture capitalist and former GOP presidential candidate.

US embassy in Pak issues securiy alert for Peshawar

The US Mission here has issued a security alert urging its citizens not to visit Peshawar in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province in northwest Pakistan until December 16 due to "security concerns." The security alert titled 'Threat to Serena Hotel, Peshawar' advising the US Mission personnel to avoid the said hotel in Peshawar, the capital of the province, was issued on Wednesday and advised caution with immediate effect. "US citizens are encouraged to avoid the hotel and the area around the hotel during this period and reconsider travel plans," the statement read and reminded the US citizens to revisit the 'Do Not Travel' advisory issued in September for the same province "due to terrorism." The September 10 advisory lists the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa at 'Level 4' of the threat perception in the 'Do Not Travel' category.

"Active terrorist and insurgent groups routinely conduct attacks against civilians, non-governmental organisations, government offices, and security forces. "These groups historically have targeted both government officials and civilians. Olive Café & Bar Launches 'Winter Menu' also unveils 'Sunday Brunch'

Chandigarh: Ushering in the winter season, Olive Café & Ba (OCB), Chandigarh, has unveiled its new 'Winter Menu alongside a sumptuous 'Sunday Brunch' curated by their Head Chef Karl Whittaker. The menus were unveiled during a press meet hosted by Chef Whittaker, who shared with the media a refreshing take on Mediterranean flavours-celebrating vibrant, comforting dishes crafted with seasonal ingredients Chef Karl has over a decade of experience in culinary arts. He trained in French cuisine in the UK and later worked as head chef in Florence, Italy, Talking about the Winter Menu, he informed that from the Black Rice Kisir Salad, with its nutty pistachios, pomegranate and fresh herbs, to the Himalayan Trout En Papillote, delicately infused with fennel and herbs, every dish reflects a balance of flavours. The Vadouvan Chicken, marinated in a blend of spices and orange, is a hearty favourite that pairs bold flavours with thoughtful preparation. For those looking for something indulgent, the seasonal special Potato Dauphinois Pie offers a rich, cheesy twist with homemade pastry and fresh vegetables The new menu also introduces subtle innovations that add variety and excitement to the dining experience. Grilled meats vibrant salads, and small plates inspired by the coastal kitchens of Southern Europe and North Africa make it perfect for relaxed lunches or cozy dinners.

Air India sees growth from domestic, short international flights in 2025

PTI NEW DELHI

Air India will see most of the air traffic growth coming from domestic and short-haul international operations in 2025 as more narrow-body planes are joining the fleet and legacy wide-body aircraft will be going for retrofit next year, the airline's chief Campbell

Tata Group-owned airline, which has embarked on a five-year transformation journey, expects to have a fleet of 400 planes by 2027. Currently, the total fleet strength of Air India Group, including Air India Express, is around 300 aircraft.

During a select media briefing, Wilson, who has been at the helm of Air India for more than two years, said the airline group has a domestic market share of around 29 per cent and 55 per cent on the metro to metro routes.

On top 120 domestic routes, the market share is about 40 per cent, he said.

According to him, the retrofit of legacy wide-body aircraft will start in early 2025.

"We had hoped to start retrofit of 787s and 777s by now. Unfortunately, the global supply chains in some areas are still recovering and seats in particular are a challenge..

"Once it (retrofit) starts in 2025, we will be doing 3-4 aircraft every month until the full legacy 40 wide-body aircraft are completed," Wilson said.

About growth for 2025, he said it will primarily come from domestic and shorthaul international flights as most of the aircraft that are coming in are narrow-body "We are also taking the aircraft for the programme. So, the number wide-body available will shrink a little bit," he added. consolidating its airline business, Air India has merged Vistara with itself and AIX Connect has been integrated with Air India

Express. The CEO and MD of Air India noted that there is a delay in getting all the 50 white tail aircraft, which were earlier expected to join the fleet by December this year. Out of the total 50 white tail Boeing 737 MAX aircraft, at least 35 have joined the fleet. These planes are being operated by Air India

Express. "50 white tail aircraft, all of them were to come by December this year.

They will stretch up to June next year and that in itself has a little bit of impact., Wilson said responding to a query about delays due to issues at Boeing, including the recent strike. "It is not clear for how long the impact will be. Six months is reasonable for some aircraft.," he said. Generally, white tail planes are those that were originally manufactured particular airline and later taken by another airline.

eteran journalist Rajdeep Sardesai launched his latest book, 2024: The Election That Surprised India, on Constitution Day at a packed auditorium in Teen Murti Bhavan. Nonfiction books dealing with politics and politicians generally evoke significant interest, especially when penned by a journalist with extensive experience in covering politics and elections. Sardesai's latest work was eagerly anticipated, and the wait proved worthwhile. The book offers a compelling exploration of one of India's most dramatic and unpredictable general elections, held just a few months

This is Sardesai's third book on elections, following his analyses of the 2014 and 2019 general elections. In this new volume, he delves into the missteps of pollsters and pundits, who failed to predict the outcome accurately, and critiques the mainstream media for its perceived one-sided narratives. Sardesai examines why the BJP's "Char Sau Paar" campaign slogan, intended to project overwhelming confidence, failed to resonate with voters as expected. He also sheds light on Rahul Gandhi's Congress, which mounted a surprising comeback after years of setbacks.

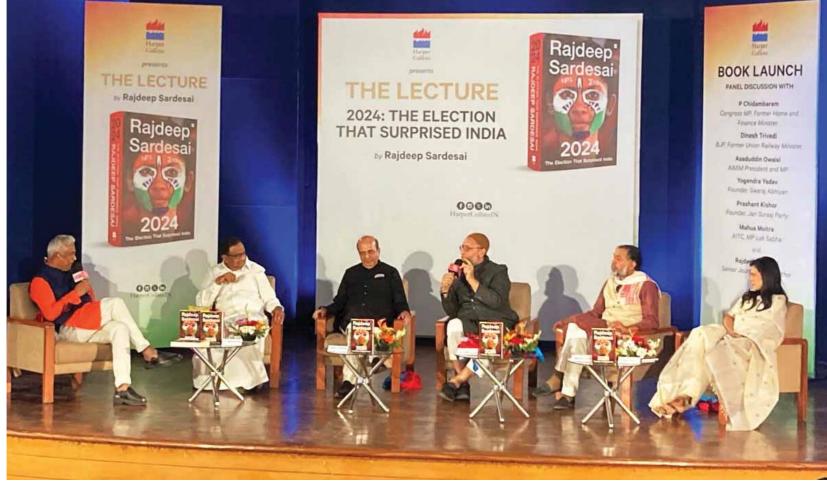

The narrative explores the operational strategies of the Modi-Shah political team, the role of enforcement agencies during the elections, and the controversies surrounding the fairness of the electoral process. Sardesai highlights the fierce battles in state elections and provides nuanced insights into who truly emerged victorious—and who faltered in India's increasingly polarised political

In his characteristic unsparing and incisive style, Sardesai charts the dramatic changes in Indian politics over the last five years, offering readers an insider's perspective on the personalities, strategies, and events that defined the 2024 elections. Building on his bestselling accounts of the 2014 and 2019 elections, this book is a must-read for anyone seeking to understand the shifting sands of power and politics in India. One may agree or disagree with his interpretation and insights, especially since he is not the same as he once was, but the book is a good read and definitely has a shelf life.

A LIVELY LAUNCH EVENT

◄he book launch was more than a literary occasion; it featured a L panel discussion moderated by Sardesai himself, with luminaries from various political parties in attendance. The event, held in a packed auditorium, was marked by engaging debates that delved into the key questions surrounding the electoral verdict that stunned the nation.

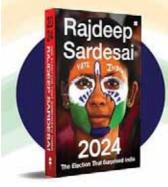

The distinguished panel included prominent political figures such as P. Chidambaram, senior Congress leader; Mahua Moitra, the fiery Trinamool Congress MP; Dinesh Trivedi, former Railway Minister; and Asaduddin

Adding a unique twist, the panellists took playful potshots at Sardesai himself, "roasting" him in a rare and humorous turn of events. Sardesai, clad in an orange kurta (perhaps making a statement), took the jabs in stride with a smile and humour. On a more serious note, the discussion refreshingly candid. Chidambaram painted a picture of optimism for the Congress, emphasising the growing disillusionment with the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) under Prime Minister Narendra Modi. dominance because they understood the electorate's pulse more effectively than the Delhi-centric political establishment. Asaduddin Owaisi was humorous yet thought-provoking, raising concerns about the marginalisation of Muslims and other minority communities under the current regime. He criticised the BJP's focus on religious polarisation, warning that it was detrimental to India's secular fabric. Owaisi also called for greater unity among Muslim voters and reiterated his party's commitment to representing marginalised voices while building alliances with like-minded regional players.

Yogendra Yadav, a psephologist-turned-politician, countered Dinesh Trivedi's assertion that there were no minorities in India and that "all are Indians." Yadav argued that while leveraging community votes was not new, the BJP had spearheaded campaigns that effectively rendered Muslims second-class citizens. Throughout the discussion, Sardesai kept the conversation dynamic, challenging panellists with incisive questions that encouraged them to think beyond the obvious.

The debate was intense, often bordering on contentious, as the political heavyweights offered divergent perspectives on the state of the nation. From discussions on the BJP's electoral strategies to the role of opposition unity, caste politics, and the influence of social media, the conversation reflected the multifaceted nature of Indian politics. The panellists, despite their differing ideological positions, agreed on one point: the 2024 elections marked a watershed moment in Indian politics and that the rightward shift in Indian politics is real and here to stay. While this shift

The Wife and the Dancing Girl By ANUJA CHANDRAMOULI (PRICE: ₹395, PAGES: 272)

The Wife and the Dancing Girl, Anuja Chandramouli weaves a tale of searing passion and heartbreak inspired by Silapathikaram, the timeless Tamil classic by Ilango Adigal. This story explores the intricate love triangle between Kannagi the devoted wife, Madhavi, the enchanting dancing girl, and the man they both loved fiercely. Through moments of breathtaking passion and harrowing despair, Kannagi and Madhavi navigate the depths of love and loss, armed with fragile hope and the bitter truth that exquisite pleasure often comes at the cost of endless pain. Chandramouli's retelling is both tender and tragic, delivering a romance that transcends time and leaves an

With growing inequality and 1% of the population holding a disproportionate share of wealth, the book questions whether this disparity is inevitable or the of a pro-rich Challenging conventional beliefs, Mohanty examines issues like inequality, health, education, employment, and privatisation from a refreshingly radical perspective. He deconstructs the narratives of governments, media, and academia, exposing myths about wealth creators and economic progress. The book warns of the dangers posed by fiscal stress, economic slowdowns, and unchecked privatisation without ensuring efficiency and Offering a bold and insightful perspective, TATe've all heard the adage: never udge a book by its cover. While this is sound advice, there are exceptions. One Foot in the Ruin and Other Poems by Janhwij Sharma is one such exception where the cover perfectly mirrors the book's essence. The image—a lone wayfarer treading an uneven, weathered path amidst ruins, with distant figures barely visible—evokes a sense of solitude and introspection. Towering hills frame the background, while trees and bushes border the ruins in the foreground. Rendered in shades of black, white, and grey, the photograph conjures an atmosphere steeped in history, timelessness, and philosophy. It invites the reader to reflect: What is life if not a journey, and what are we if not wayfarers navigating an unpredictable path? This evocative cover sets the tone for the meditative and poignant journey that unfolds within the book. The title poem, "One Foot in the Ruin," found on page 166, epitomises this theme. Accompanied by a photograph of an abandoned street in Hampi, the poem reads:

One foot in the ruins... I walk on the weather-beaten path setting one foot in the ruin I may wander wander aimlessly carelessly ceaselessly but never to get lost but maybe at times to find new paths, new goals embark on a new journey or simply to return home.

Traditionally, ruins evoke somberness, loss, and mystery. Sharma, however, takes a refreshingly different approach. He portrays the ruins not as dead relics but as sites of exploration, learning, and renewal. The poet walks through them not to lose himself but to discover new meanings, new paths, and, ultimately, a way home. In these lines, Sharma shares a hopeful philosophy: life, no matter how unpredictable or transient, holds potential for growth and return. This hopeful outlook resonates in another short poem, "Silent Spaces," on page 41, paired with a photograph of the Red Fort's barracks in Delhi:

Silent spaces haunting... filtering rays of hope offering glimpses of hope rather than despair. Similarly, in "Is There a Way' (p. 77), paired with a photograph from Fatehpur Sikri, the poet muses on the stories ruins whisper:

Is there a way to hear the ruins still telling tales of its proud past with all moments it lived cherished and felt... Time feels alive within these ruins... all that will one day remain Here, Sharma's ruins filter light, will be the ruin's whispering tales to those who could hear. Sharma's ability to hear and convey these "whispering tales" makes this collection profound. Of the book's five sections—North, West, Central, South, and East—each rooted in different regions of India, the Central section lingers in memory. For example, the poem "Excavated" (p. 159), paired with a photograph of Sarnath, explores time and its interplay with history:

Unearthed remains brought to fore testaments of the era silent long back... Time unwinds and time unwraps bringing ruins to another life time now stands still...

Similarly, "In His Shelter" (p. 162), set against an image of a shrine in Hampi, reflects on the timeless pursuit of divine shelter:

In perpetual obeisance prostrations before the divine seeking His shelter and blessings humbly forever...

Sharma's poems often delve beneath the surface of ruins to unearth enduring values, faith, and hope. This sentiment finds expression in Speak" (p. 120), inspired by the Ellora Caves:

Hewn out of rock/sculpted over time/lasting forever. Stones speak/louder than words/echoing memories/with ceaseless gaze.

The poet also captures spiritual and surreal elements, as in "The Other World" (p. 203), paired with an evocative photograph from Assam: Passage for the ultimate departure there is deathly silence around...

one never dies as they say no need to ever mourn those who leave...

Balanced against these profound reflections are moments of lightheartedness, as in "Craftsman's Prank" (p. 112), inspired by a seemingly purposeless carved handle on a wall at Adalaj Vay, Gujarat: Why is it there/I ponder what purpose does it serve/makes me think harder...

Surely he is having a good laugh/even in his grave.

This blend of spirituality, history, and human touch showcases Sharma's ability to see both the solemn and the whimsical in his subjects. Whether contemplating eternity or musing on a craftsman's playful detail, his poems bridge past and present, light and impermanence. The book's concluding poem, "Through the Ruin" (p. 32), paired with a photograph from Sarai Amanat Khan Amritsar, encapsulates the collection's overarching message:

Through the ruin... And I walk alone/framed through the shadow, ravaged by time... And I walk ahead/through the voids of reaching the destination/where my future will be.

As we reflect on the book's title and its solemn promise, we find that One Foot in the Ruin does not burden readers with heaviness. Instead, it uplifts, offering hope and perspective. Sharma's work reminds us that ruins, like life, hold stories worth hearing and lessons worth cherishing. Both the poetry and photographs take readers on an evocative journey across India, making this book a treasure worth exploring.
