SIX PERSONS KILLED IN GUJARAT
Six persons died after the cable wire of a cargo ropeway snapped at Pavagadh Hill in Gujarat’s Panchmahal district on Saturday, officials said. The incident at Pavagadh Hill, which is famous for the Mahakalika Temple at the summit, occurred around 3pm, they said. The GST Council’s decision to bring all products, except those under the sin and luxury goods category, under five per cent and 18 per cent slabs, while reducing it to zero on a host of essential items, will come into effect from September 22.

Modi appreciates Trump’s sentiments

ASHOKE RAJ ■ New Delhi

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Saturday “deeply” appreciated US President Donald Trump’s “positive assessment” of the India-US partnership, in a social media post that comes amid growing trade and geopolitical tensions between the two democracies.

Modi’s remarks followed Trump’s comments at a press conference in Washington, where the American president hailed the “special relationship” between India and the US and reaffirmed his personal rapport with the Indian Prime Minister - even as he voiced disapproval of some of India’s recent actions.

“Deeply appreciate and fully reciprocate President Trump’s sentiments and positive assessment of our ties,” Modi said on X (formerly Twitter). “India and the US have a very positive and forward-looking Comprehensive and Global Strategic Partnership,” he added.

The statement marks the first public exchange between the two leaders since a phone conversation on June 17. Ties between New Delhi and Washington have been under strain following President Trump’s decision to double tariffs on Indian goods to 50 per cent, in response to India’s continued purchase of discounted Russian crude oil. New Delhi has slammed the move as “unfair, unjustified and unreasonable.”

At the White House briefing, President Trump said, “I will always be friends with Modi, he is a great Prime Minister, he’s great. I’ll always be friends, but I just don’t like what he’s doing at this moment.”

Despite his critical remarks, Trump downplayed concerns about the bilateral relationship. “India and the United States have a special relationship. There is nothing to worry about,” he assured.

Trump’s comments appeared to be an attempt to steady diplomatic waters following a string of controversial statements and actions from his administration. On Thursday, he posted on social media that the US risked “losing India and Russia to deepest, darkest China,” citing the recent camaraderie between Modi, Chinese President Xi Jinping and Russian

PM speaks to French President Macron

“The leaders reaffirmed their commitment towards further strengthening of the India-France Strategic Partnership, in line with the Horizon 2047 Roadmap, the Indo-Pacific Roadmap, and the Defence Industrial Roadmap,” the statement read.

Canada flags funding of Khalistani extremist groups, says Report

ASHOKE RAJ ■ New Delhi

Canada’s Finance Ministry has formally raised alarms about the threat posed by Khalistani extremist groups operating within its borders. The warning, part of the Ministry’s 2025 Assessment of Money Laundering and Terrorist Financing Risks, details how these groups are raising funds — often by abusing charitable organisations — to support violent activities.

The Canadian report underscores the growing concern about extremist financing, placing Khalistani groups like Babbar Khalsa International and the International Sikh Youth Federation in the same category as designated terrorist organisations such as Hamas and Hezbollah.

According to the report, these groups have been “observed by law enforcement and intelligence agencies to receive financial support originating from Canada.”

“Khalistani violent extremist groups have been known to use networks to solicit donations from diaspora communities to raise and move funds, including through Non-Profit Organisations (NPOs),” the report said.

The document adds that these networks have evolved over time — from once-extensive and structured fundraising mechanisms to fragmented pockets of individuals still loyal to the Khalistani cause but not necessarily affiliated with any specific organisation.

Poll panel plans voter roll exercise across country

RAJESH KUMAR ■ New Delhi

After carrying out the special intensive revision of voters’ list in poll-bound Bihar, the Election Commission (EC) is planning to roll out this exercise across the country. The poll body has called a conference of Chief Electoral Officers (CEOs) in Delhi on September 10 to discuss the preparedness of pan-India to roll out the SIR with its State representatives.

There are indications that the exercise would commence later this year ahead of Assembly elections in Assam, Kerala, Puducherry, Tamil Nadu and West Bengal in 2026. The primary aim of the intensive revision is to weed out foreign illegal migrants by checking their place of birth.

The move assumes significance in the wake of a crackdown in various States on illegal foreign migrants, including from Bangladesh and Myanmar.

The CEOs have been asked to make PowerPoint presentations on 10 key points for the meeting which include number of current electors in their State/UT, qualifying date of the last SIR, number of electors in the last SIR, whether the electoral rolls of the last SIR have been digitised and uploaded on the CEO’s website, status of mapping of current electors with the last SIR electors, suggested additional documents to ensure only Indian citizens are included, rationalisation of polling stations (limiting to 1,200 voters per booth), number of polling stations after rationalisation, status of appointment and training of DEOs, EROs, AEROs, BLOs and BLAs and any other suggestions.

This is the third meeting of CEOs after Gyanesh Kumar took over as the chief election commissioner in February. But the September 10 meeting assumes significance as the preparedness of a pan-India special intensive revision will be discussed.

The Commission has said that after Bihar, the special revision will be carried out in the entire country.

Eventually, the poll authority will begin special intensive revision in the entire country “for the discharge of its constitutional mandate to protect the integrity of the electoral rolls”. As part of the intense review, poll officials will carry out house-to-house verification to ensure an error-free voters list.

In its June 24 order regarding Bihar, the poll body had already indicated that SIR would eventually be implemented nationwide. “Under Section 21 of the Representation of the People Act, 1950, along with other applicable provisions, the Commission is empowered to direct a Special Intensive Revision of electoral rolls, including preparation of fresh rolls.

Uttarakhand to crack down on spurious medicines

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ Dehradun

Uttarakhand government will soon undertake an intensive campaign against the manufacturing and sale of spurious medicines in the State. An order in this regard was given by the chief minister Pushkar Singh Dhami during a high level meeting at his residence on Saturday.

The order of CM comes in the wake of recent arrests made by the Special Task Force (STF) of the people involved in the business of spurious medicines under the names of branded pharmaceutical products.

On a stern note, the CM said that any attempt to compromise with public health will not be tolerated. He directed the district magistrates, Police and Health departments to undertake an intensive campaign to completely end the manufacture and sale of fake medicines in the State. Dhami said that strict action should be taken against those dealing in fake medicines and the entire network should be demolished.

He said that resolving the problems of the families affected by the Dharali disaster and making arrangements for their rehabilitation, relief and livelihood is the top priority of the government. The CM directed that the committee headed by the secretary Revenue on the natural disaster should submit its report soon. He said that based on the report of the committee, rehabilitation and relief works would be undertaken on a large scale.

In the meeting, the CM also asked the State administration to undertake a mega Swadeshi campaign in the State. He said that this campaign would be an important step towards a self-reliant India. Dhami also called upon the ministers, officers and employees to promote local products. He directed that indigenous products and equipment should be given priority in government purchases. The CM expressed confidence that the recent changes in the GST slab will give further boost to indigenous products.

He said that special training programmes should be organised for Agniveers in the police training centres. The CM said that the government is working with full commitment to fulfil the promises made to the people of the state in the vision document. He averred that the State government is working with dedication while considering the public sentiments and aspirations.

U'khand to suffer Rs 1,500-3,000 crore loss from GST-II: Qazi

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ Dehradun

Uttarakhand is likely to suffer a revenue loss of Rs 1,500-3,000 crore per year after introduction of the two-tier Goods and Services Tax (GST) by the Union government claimed All India Congress Committee (AICC) secretary and Manglaur MLA Qazi Nizamuddin on Saturday. Interacting with the media-persons at the headquarters of the State Congress, Nizamuddin said that India has a system of cooperative federalism in which the State had an autonomy to decide taxes but the introduction of the GST gave a serious blow to cooperative federalism and the interests of the States. He said that the union government has conceded that the GST II regime will result in an annual loss of about Rs 48,000 crore which means that the share of the State in the GST will also reduce. He said that for a State like Uttarakhand with poor financial conditions it will be very difficult to compensate for the losses due to the GST rate cut. The Congress MLA said that 57 per cent of the State budget is spent on committed expenses. He demanded that the centre should announce a relief package for the states so that they are compensated for the losses under the GST-II regime.

He claimed that the government was forced to cut GST rates under pressure from the Congress party and the reduction has proved the Congress leader Rahul Gandhi correct who had termed GST as the 'Gabbbar Singh Tax'. Nizamuddin said that the GST I was introduced without any preparation which proved detrimental for small businesses in the country.

The Pradesh Congress Committee (PCC) president Karan Mahara said that the government should set up a mechanism to ensure that the benefit of the GST reduction reaches the general public. Questioning the silence of chief minister Pushkar Singh Dhami in the meeting of the GST council, Mahara said that the CM should have raised the concerns of the State and the loss in its revenue due to GST reduction.

Cabinet minister Dhan Singh Rawat has claimed that the Garhwal Commissioner and Inspector General (IG) police, Garhwal range will sit at least three days in a week in their offices in Pauri. Kaladhungi MLA, Haldwani mayor protest against police high handedness

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ Haldwani

Alleging mistreatment of a Bharatiya Janata Party councillor and objecting to the police keeping him in custody on Friday, Kaladhungi MLA Bansidhar Bhagat, the Haldwani mayor Gajraj Bisht and other party workers sat on a dharna outside the Haldwani Kotwali on Saturday. They ended their protest after Nainital senior superintendent of police Prahlad Narayan Meena assured them of action on their demand for taking action against police personnel found guilty.

Ward number 55 councillor Amit Bisht and some locals had an argument regarding the straightening of an electricity pole on Friday. The argument escalated into a violent altercation and its video went viral on social media. The police reached the site of the incident and took Bisht into custody. It was alleged that though the two sides had reached a compromise, the police kept Bisht in custody till past midnight and also allegedly mistreated him. He was purportedly released on the condition that his nephew remain in the Kotwali. When the councillor was called back to the Kotwali on Saturday, Bhagat called various police officers including the SSP. When no action was taken, he sat on dharna on the road outside the police station. The BJP workers raised slogans against the police during the protest and sought justice. Police officers including the circle officer (City) reached the site and tried to placate the MLA who maintained that he will not get up till the SSP comes and apologises. As the protest continued, the SSP reached the site and requested the MLA to come to the Kotwali and discuss the issue. During the talks, Bhagat demanded that the guilty personnel should apologise to the councillor and that they should also face action. Meena assured the MLA of action, after which the protesters dispersed.

North India bears brunt of heavy rain

RAJESH KUMAR
■ New Delhi

A landslide in Himachal Pradesh's Sirmour on Saturday morning shaved off a 200-metre swath from a hill, a house collapse likely triggered by rain killed a man and his five-year-old daughter in Jaipur and Indian Air Force (IAF) airlifted two critically ill patients from the flood and landslide-hit remote region in Udhampur district of Jammu and Kashmir.

India Meteorological Department (IMD)'s data shows India received 799.1 mm rainfall as against the normal of 734.8 mm, almost nine percent more this monsoon season so far while North India recorded 696.5 mm rainfall as compared to normal of 510.9 mm, accounting for 36 per cent higher of the region's usual quota for the entire four-month monsoon season. Northern India has been grappling with relentless heavy rainfall and devastating floods in recent days, causing significant loss of life and property across multiple states. The intense spell has put the north India region on course to registering its wettest monsoon in 37 years since 1988.

Even if the region gets normal rainfall for rest of the season, the total is likely to cross 750mm. That will put this season's rainfall as second-highest in north India in last 50 years, behind 813.5mm recorded in 1988 and ahead of 737mm logged in 1994. According to the India Meteorological Department's data, Delhi has already seen more rain this monsoon than the seasonal average. The city has logged 843.1 mm, against the normal of 640.04 mm, which is a surplus of about 32 per cent. Since June, the rainfall each month has been higher than the long-period average. IMD's data shows that of the total rainfall so far in this monsoon, nearly half — 400.1 mm — came in Aug. The month saw an excess rainfall of 72 per cent, with two days of heavy rainfall of 64.5 mm. This Aug was the wettest since 2010. In June, too, Delhi got excess rainfall of 45 percent. Safdarjung, the city's base station, logged 107.1 mm in June, against the normal of 74.1 mm. July was no different. That month, Delhi saw 259.3 mm of rainfall as against the July normal of 233.1 mm. This was an excess of 24%. In Sept so far, the city has logged 76.6 mm of rainfall already.

The normal monsoon withdrawal date for Delhi is Sept 25. The monsoon of 2023 and 2022 saw rainfall deficits. In 2023, the city received 660.8 mm. It got only 516.9 mm of rainfall in 2022. In a contrast, 2021 was the wettest monsoon since 1964 as Safdarjung logged 1,169.7 mm of rainfall. IMD's data shows except for east UP, the two-week spell caused extreme rain in all sub-divisions of northwest India. Punjab was most heavily impacted, logging 388 per cent surplus rain in the first week and 454 per cent in the second.

The subdivision of Punjab recorded 588.4 mm rainfall as against a normal of 382.8 mm, at least 54 per cent higher than usual quota for this region so far. Western UP recorded 711.1 mm rainfall as against the normal of 577.7 mm, almost 23 percent more so far. The subdivision of Haryana, Chandigarh and Delhi recorded 551.2 mm as against the normal of 374.3 mm, 24 percent more than the actual quota. Himachal Pradesh recorded 948.4 mm as against the normal of 643 mm this season. Uttarakhand recorded 1277mm rainfall as against the normal of 1029 mm. Eastern Rajasthan recorded 932.7 mm rainfall as against the normal of 562.1 mm.

This year, eastern Rajasthan recorded 66 percent more rainfall so far. Similarly Western Rajasthan recorded 77 percent more rainfall so far while J&K and Ladakh recorded 44 percent more rainfall so far. IMD's data also showed that in the past two weeks, the subdivision of Haryana, Delhi and Chandigarh recorded 325 per cent excess rainfall, Himachal Pradesh 314 per cent, west Rajasthan 285 per cent, J&K 240 per cent and Uttarakhand 190 per cent

Yamuna level recedes, still above danger mark

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

Yamuna in Delhi receded marginally on Saturday, coming down to 206.47 metres at the Old Railway Bridge (ORB) from the 207-metre-mark after several. Despite the marginal decline, the river continues to flow above the danger mark, leaving several parts of the Capital inundated.

The warning mark for the city is 204.50 metres, while the danger mark is 205.33 metres, and evacuation of people starts at 206 metres.

According to the flood control department, the Hathnikund barrage discharged 50,629 cusecs of water at 9 am on Saturday. The water discharge from the Wazirabad barrage is around 1,17,260 cusecs. Both are attributed as reasons for the swelling of Yamuna. According to the officials, the situation is being closely monitored and all the agencies concerned are on alert. Floodwaters have impacted several localities, including the upscale Civil Lines area, Monastery Market, Kashmere Gate ISBT, and Yamuna Bazaar, among others.

With floodwaters pushing wildlife out of their burrows and hiding spots, reptiles are increasingly turning up in unusual places across Delhi. From metro stations and offices to residential colonies, the city has seen a steady rise in the number of distress calls to wildlife rescuers this monsoon.

The staff at the Mayur Vihar-1 metro station spotted a monitor lizard inside the pantry area and contacted Wildlife SOS for assistance, according to a statement issued by the NGO.

A team from the NGO's Rapid Response Unit reached the spot, safely rescued the lizard and later, conducted a medical check-up of the reptile, before preparing it for release.

"Heavy rainfall and potential flooding force reptiles out of their natural homes, and they end up seeking dry corners in human spaces. Monitor lizards are harmless and vital to the ecosystem, but because of fear, people often mistake them for dangerous," said Kartick Satyanarayan, co-founder and CEO, Wildlife SOS.

In Delhi, sitting outside a tarpaulin tent at Delhi-Meerut Expressway, Ganga Devi wondered where the poor should go.

"It is either demolition, or rain, and now the flood. We hardly earn Rs 300 to 400 a day by cleaning Delhi's garbage. Someone is a rag-picker, some clean drains, some sell flowers, where will we go now?" she asked.

The 6x8 makeshift camp stretches along the edge of the expressway, which has been transformed into a "home" for families who recently had to be evacuated from their jhuggis or kucha houses near the Yamuna floodplains.

For a lot of families displaced by the Yamuna floods this year, it is a reminder of the 2023 Delhi floods, and they dread returning home as they know what awaits them — muddy rooms, damp floors, broken electricity metres and even snakes. Recalling the 2023 floods, 34-year-old Neelam Kumari said, "There was no electricity at that time. It was completely dark for a month. We had to rely on solar lights, candles, and battery-powered lights."

She said, "Many times, my children found snakes in the corners or hanging from trees, and we had to constantly keep a watch. In 2023, a girl was bitten by a snake." Residents recall how earlier floods left their houses cracked, appliances short-circuited, and furniture coated in mud. "The problem starts when we return. There is no electricity for months because the meters and wires get damaged. Power is only restored after all the meters are replaced, which takes nearly a month," Kumari added.

The Mumbai Police on Saturday arrested a man identified as Ashwini, 51, a resident of Noida, for allegedly sending a hoax terror threat claiming that 34 "human bombs" had arrived in Mumbai to carry out large-scale attacks. Officials said the accused wanted to frame a man who had filed a case against him and sought revenge. Seven mobile phones, three SIM cards, six memory card holders, one SIM slot external, two digital cards, four SIM card holders and one memory card holder were recovered from Ashwini's possession.

His arrest came hours after the Mumbai Traffic Police's official WhatsApp number received a message threatening that there were 34 "human bombs" planted across the city, and that 14 Pakistani terrorists had entered India. The timing of the terror threat was also alarming, as it came one day before Ganesh Visarjan celebrations in Mumbai. The city was on high alert and security had been amped on Friday after the threat message.

Police said the threatening message, received by Mumbai Police on Thursday, was traced to Noida. Following this, Sector 113 police launched an operation and arrested Kumar within hours. He described himself as an astrologer and vastu expert.

Poll panel plans voter roll exercise across...

Therefore, the Commission has now decided to begin the Special Intensive Revision across the country to fulfill its constitutional mandate to protect the integrity of electoral rolls. However, since Legislative Assembly elections are due later this year in Bihar, the Commission has decided to first conduct SIR in the State of Bihar as per the attached guidelines and schedule. The schedule for the rest of the country will be issued separately in due course," it said.

Amid allegations by opposition parties that the EC has fudged voter data to help the BJP, the poll panel has taken additional steps in the intensive revision to ensure illegal migrants do not get enrolled in the voters list. An additional 'declaration form' has been introduced for a category of applicants seeking to become electors or shifting from outside the State. They will have to undertake that they were born in India before July 1, 1987 and provide any document establishing date of birth and/or place of birth. One of the options listed in the declaration form is that they were born in India between July 1, 1987 and December 2, 2004. They will also have to submit documents about the date/place of birth of their parents.

But Bihar voters list revision has come under attack from. Opposition parties claiming crores of eligible citizens will be devoid of voting rights for want of documents. The Supreme Court has asked EC to ensure that no eligible citizen is left behind. Some of the State chief electoral officers have started putting out voters' list published after the last special intensive revision held in their States.

The website of Delhi CEO has the 2008 voters' list when the last intensive revision took place in the national capital. In Uttarakhand, the last special intensive revision took place in 2006 and that year's electoral roll is now on the State CEO website. Most of the States carried out revision of electoral rolls between 2002 and 2004.

Canada flags funding of Khalistani extremist...

The findings echo India's long-standing concerns about the activities of Khalistani separatist elements in Canada. For years, New Delhi has voiced alarm over what it sees as Canada's leniency toward extremists advocating for the secession of Punjab from India. These groups have been linked to hate speech, intimidation of Indian diplomats and even glorification of terrorists on Canadian soil.

The gravity of the issue is rooted in history. The 1985 bombing of Air India Flight 182, which killed 329 people — most of them Canadian citizens of Indian origin — was orchestrated by Khalistani extremists based in Canada. It remains the deadliest terrorist attack in Canadian history and a painful reminder for both nations of the potential consequences of allowing such ideologies to fester.

India has repeatedly protested events like so-called "Khalistan referendums" and anti-India rallies in Canada. New Delhi has consistently urged Ottawa to crack down on extremist groups and individuals fostering separatism under the guise of free speech and political activism.

Earlier this year, the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) further acknowledged the threat in its annual report to Parliament, identifying Canada-Based Khalistani Extremists (CBKEs) as a continuing national security concern. The new Finance Ministry report aligns with this assessment, marking a rare convergence of Canadian and Indian perspectives on an issue that has long divided the two Governments.

The report comes at a time when India-Canada relations appear to be on the mend after a period of diplomatic freeze during the tenure of former Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau. Tensions had peaked over accusations and counteraccusations related to Khalistani elements and interference in domestic affairs.

The report's findings may pave the way for greater cooperation between Ottawa and New Delhi on counterterrorism, intelligence sharing, and the regulation of nonprofit funding channels.

As the global focus sharpens on terror financing and extremism, Canada's new stance marks a critical shift that could reshape the contours of its domestic security policy and its international partnerships — especially with India.

PM speaks to French President Macron

The Horizon 2047 roadmap, adopted during President Macron's visit to India in 2023, serves as a long-term blueprint for bilateral cooperation as the two countries mark 100 years of diplomatic relations in 2047. During their conversation, the leaders also exchanged views on recent diplomatic efforts aimed at resolving the Ukraine conflict. Prime Minister Modi reiterated India's consistent position in favour of a peaceful resolution and the urgent need to restore peace and stability in the region.

"PM Modi reiterated India's consistent support for peaceful resolution of the conflict and early restoration of peace and stability," the official release noted.

In a gesture underscoring the growing importance of tech diplomacy, Modi thanked President Macron for accepting India's invitation to participate in the upcoming AI Impact Summit, scheduled for February 2026. The summit aims to bring together global leaders to deliberate on ethical and inclusive development of artificial intelligence.

Prime Minister Modi said he looked forward to welcoming Macron to India for the summit.

The conversation concluded with both leaders agreeing to maintain close contact and work together to advance mutual goals and promote global peace and stability.

Modi appreciates Trump's sentiments

White House trade adviser Peter Navarro accused India of becoming a "massive refining hub and oil money laundromat for the Kremlin." India strongly rejected Navarro's remarks, calling them "inaccurate and misleading."

The diplomatic strain underscores the delicate balancing act India is pursuing as it navigates complex energy needs, regional alliances and a shifting global order. Despite Washington's growing discomfort over India's oil ties with Russia, New Delhi has maintained that its energy purchases are guided by national interest and market realities.

While President Trump's tone suggests that personal chemistry with Modi remains intact, whether it will be enough to restore full confidence in the relationship remains to be seen.

Vaishnaw: GST cuts to boost economy, aid citizens

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

The GST rate cuts will not only benefit the common people but also boost India's economy, Union Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw asserted on Saturday and hit out at the Congress, alleging "heavy burden" of tax during its term at the Centre.

The GST Council's decision to bring all products, except those under the sin and luxury goods category, under five per cent and 18 per cent slabs, while reducing it to zero on a host of essential items, will come into effect from September 22, the first day of Navratri.

Addressing a press conference at the BJP headquarters here, Vaishnaw said, "The coming 22nd, the first day of Navratri, will bring a new happiness for all of us, for all middle-class families and for 140 crore citizens of this country." The GST reforms will also serve as a catalyst in the economic development of the country, he said.

"This reform has brought a big relief to the lives of 140 crore people of the country. Before 2014 (during Congress rule), there was a huge burden on common people due to the web of different types of taxes imposed on every item," the Information and Broadcasting Minister said.

Vaishnaw said the latest GST reforms and income tax exemption up to ₹12 lakh announced earlier reflected Prime Minister Narendra Modi's commitment to the welfare of common people, including middle-class families, in the country.

The BJP leader said the government was working on the GST reforms for about one and a half years, with the prime minister continuously following the exercise and giving "guidance" at every step.

Theaterisation will happen, says Army Chief General Dwivedi

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE

Army Chief General Upendra Dwivedi has asserted that theaterisation — or the integration of Army, Air Force and Navy capabilities — will definitely take place and the question is only about how long it would take to materialise.

If one has to deal with multiple agencies, "theaterisation is the answer", he said.

He made the remarks on Friday here while interacting with media after launching a book titled 'Operation Sindoor: The Untold Story of India's Deep Strikes Inside Pakistan' at Manekshaw Centre here. He was asked about his stand on theaterisation, after divergent views emerged recently on the move planned. "Theaterisation will come, today or tomorrow. We just have to see how long it will take. We have to go through certain steps to bring in theaterisation, which includes jointness, integration. A lot of things need to be discussed over for that," the Army chief said. He also explained why theaterisation is "necessary".

"When we fight a battle, an Army doesn't fight alone. We have Border Security Force and Indo-Tibetan Border Police. Then there are the tri-services, defence cyber agencies, defence space agencies, and now we are talking about cognitive warfare agencies. Besides, there are agencies such as the ISRO, Civil Defence, Civil Aviation, Railways, NCC, State and

A two-day 'karyashala' (workshop) of BJP MPs will begin on Sunday at the Parliament complex where Prime Minister Narendra Modi is likely to be felicitated for the GST reforms.

While the workshop was planned several days ago, sources said Modi may now participate as well.

A source said the prime minister is likely to be felicitated by the MPs for the announcement of the new

GST slabs which the BJP says will reduce the tax burden on the people and boost the economy.

The BJP and its allies are hopeful that the first flush of positive public sentiment among people over the fall in prices of a host of items will give them a boost in the Bihar elections, expected to be held in November.

The party's workshop includes several sessions, including on its history and evolution, and lessons for its parliamentarians on boosting efficiency.

BJP plans nationwide drive on GST reforms

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

The BJP has planned a nationwide outreach programme to apprise people, including traders, of the latest GST reforms brought in by the Modi government.

The GST Council approved a rate overhaul for all items, except those under the sin and luxury category, by limiting slabs to five per cent and 18 per cent effective from September 22, the first day of Navaratri.

GST tax rates on common use items ranging from hair oil to corn flakes, TVs, and personal health and life insurance policies were slashed after the all-powerful GST Council on Wednesday approved a complete overhaul of the tangled Goods and Services Tax regime.

"The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) has prepared a complete action plan regarding GST reforms. We have asked our units in the States and districts to inform the common people about the GST reforms," party chief spokesperson Anil Baluni said on Saturday while replying to a related query at a press conference at the BJP headquarters here.

"We have planned to organise 'choupals' in every district (to apprise people of the GST reforms)," the BJP MP said, adding, "We have also prepared plans to organise programmes to inform traders about simplified GST."

Baluni said the BJP is set to organise various programmes on the GST reforms at a "very large scale" across the country.

"Press conferences of our senior Union ministers, party national spokespersons and general secretaries will also be held in every State," he said.

The party will soon share further details in this connection, the BJP chief spokesperson added.

Finance Minister calls GST overhaul people's reform

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
■ New Delhi

Calling the landmark GST overhaul a 'people's reform', Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Saturday said that rationalisation of rates for a wide swath of products will benefit every family, boost consumption, and bolster the economy.

In an interview, the Finance Minister said she will personally monitor passing on of Goods and Services Tax (GST) rate cuts in the form of price reduction but hastened to add that industry has shown positivity towards such cuts.

Within days of the decision, from car makers to public sector insurance companies and shoe and apparel brands have already announced significant price cuts and the rest are likely to follow suit by the time new GST rates are implemented, she said.

Nearly 400 products — from soaps to cars, shampoos to tractors and air conditioners — will cost less when the rejig of the GST is effective from the first day of Navaratri on September 22.

Premium paid on individual health and life insurance will be tax-free.

A third rate of 40 per cent has been earmarked for a small list of sin goods and ultra-luxury items.

"This is a reform which touches the lives of all 140 crore people. There is no individual in this country who is untouched by GST. The poorest of the poor also have something small that they buy, touched by GST," she said.

Starting September 22, the GST slab structure will change — five per cent for common use goods and 18 per cent for everything else.

The existing slab of 12 and 28 per cent rates have been done away with.

In the revamped GST structure, most daily food and grocery items will fall under the five per cent GST slab with bread, milk and paneer attracting no tax at all.

Sitharaman said the reform — the single biggest since the 2017 rollout of the one-nation, one tax regime — has been carried out with a focus on the common man.

Every tax on daily use items has gone through a rigorous review and in most cases the rates have come down drastically.

While the significant relief in income tax that she gave in her Budget in February this year left more money in the hands of common people, the GST rejig will allow for greater spending, making things more affordable.

"People do understand from example, ₹100 with which they go to the shop to buy a thing. Today, the same ₹100 they can buy one and a half of the commodity. Earlier, they bought one," she said.

MoSPI begins domestic tourism survey in Andaman and Nicobar Islands

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ Port Blair

To develop better tourism policies and world-class infrastructure facilities, the Union Ministry of Statistics and Programme Implementation (MoSPI) has started Domestic Tourism Expenditure Survey (DTES) in Andaman and Nicobar Islands.

The main objective of the survey is to understand expenditure on domestic tourism along with information on household, visitors’ profile and trip characteristics in relation to domestic overnight trips, required for preparation of Tourism Satellite Account (TSA) by the Ministry of Tourism (MoT).

A senior official at the Directorate of Information, Publicity and Tourism Office (IP&T) said, “The DTES will help us understand better about tourism patterns and expenditure by travellers and their profile. It will also help us understand where we are lacking and what more needs to be done to make this archipelago a world-class tourism destination.”

“The Directorate of Economics & Statistics is participating in this survey along with National Sample Survey Office (NSSO), Field Operation Division in Port Blair. We would like to urge all the tourism stakeholders to extend their cooperation to enumerators and supervisors during the data collection exercise. We will keep all information confidential,” he said, while adding that the survey will continue till June 2026, but in Andaman and Nicobar Islands it may take some more time due to difficult terrain and remoteness.

While elaborating more on DTES, he said the objective is to collect data on household expenses on domestic travel and tourism activities.

Besides, we will also collect information on visitors’ profiles, the kind of trip they are opting for, and the amount they are spending on overnight, same-day leisure trips, on accommodation, local transport, food, and other services.

Once the DTES is done, it will feed all the data to the Tourism Satellite Account (TSA), which measures the economic contribution of tourism to a national economy. In 2024, the Andaman and Nicobar Islands recorded a growth of 120 per cent in domestic travellers and 27 per cent rise in foreign tourist footfall.

Major tourist attractions, such as the National Memorial Cellular Jail (in Port Blair) and Baratang Limestone Caves at North and Middle Andaman district, experienced higher footfall in 2024. The number of visitors attending the Sound and Light Show at the National Memorial Cellular Jail saw a substantial rise, with 4,17,944 people witnessing the show in 2024, compared to 2,67,327 in 2023, the IP&T official said.

As per the tourism department, a total of 2,35,061 domestic and 4,461 foreign tourists travelled to Andaman and Nicobar Islands in 2022, while in 2023 the figure went up to 3,23,619 (domestic) and 9,025 (foreign) travellers.

In 2024, the domestic travellers rose to 7,10,397, while foreign tourists were 11,497.

13.79-km Shimla ropeway approved: Deputy CM

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
■ Shimla

Himachal Pradesh Deputy Chief Minister Mukhes Agnihotri on Saturday said that the final approval has been granted for a 13.79 km ropeway project in Shimla, terming it a step towards turning the state into a tourism hub like Switzerland.

The project to be built at ₹1,734.70 crore will take four years to complete, he said, according to a statement.

Agnihotri said the Shimla ropeway, as others like it, will help reduce traffic congestion, cut greenhouse gas emissions and will be modern, eco-friendly mode of transport.

The ropeway will have three lines, 14 sections and 13 stations, linking the state Secretariat, hospitals, schools, the railway station, and the main bus stand in the State Capital.

Agnihotri said that under the Smart City Project, 19 infrastructure projects worth ₹50 crore and three more projects worth ₹25 crore would be built in Shimla by next December.

Other ropeways under construction in the state, he said, were the ₹65-crore Baba Balaknath temple ropeway, the ₹278.62-crore Bijli Mahadev ropeway and the ₹76.50 crore Mata Chintpurni Temple ropeway.

All these projects have been envisaged to be built by June 2027.

The country's first rural ropeway, the Baglamukhi ropeway, was inaugurated in December 2024.

The ropeway, built for ₹53.89 crore, caters to 69,000 passengers and presents itself as a lifeline for

Students hire chopper to reach exam centre in Uttarakhand

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
■ Pithoragarh (Uttarakhand)

Four BEd students from Rajasthan hired a helicopter to reach their exam centre in Munsiyari here as landslides caused by heavy rain have left many roads blocked in Uttarakhand.

Residents of Rajasthan's Balotra town, these students of Uttarakhand Open University had to reach RS Tolia PG College in Munsiyari to take the exam.

One of these students, Omaram Jat, said, "When we reached Haldwani on August 31, we came to know that all the roads leading to Munsiyari were closed due to landslides. We thought we would not be able to take our exam."

He said then they came to know about a company which provides helicopter service between Haldwani and Munsiyari. However, they found that the service was temporarily unavailable due to bad weather.

"Then we spoke to the CEO of Heritage Aviation and requested him to take us from Haldwani to Munsiyari. We told him that we would lose a year if we do not reach the examination centre. After this, he dispatched two pilots and a helicopter who safely took us to Munsiyari and brought us back to Haldwani," Omaram said.

The one-way fare for the helicopter ride was ₹5,200, he said.

Besides Omaram, the other three students are Mangaram Jat, Prakash Godara Jat and Narpat Kumar.

Somesh Kumar, in-charge of BED examination of Uttarakhand Open University, said the examination centre was selected by the candidates themselves.

NDA-ally AGP to move SC, seek exemption of Assam from immigrant foreigners'

TONY DAS ■ Guwahati

The Asom Gana Parishad (AGP), part of the BJP-led Government in Assam, on Saturday said it will approach the Supreme Court (SC) to exempt the Northeastern State from the Centre's recent directive on immigrant foreigners. The party asserted it was in Opposition to any step that goes against the spirit of the Assam Accord, including the recent order.

The Assam Accord was signed on August 15, 1985 after a violent anti-foreigner movement, which claimed the lives of thousands.

"We have decided to file a writ petition before the Supreme Court, asking for exemption of Assam from the order," AGP vice-president and former MP Kumar Deepak Das told a press conference here.

"Any step that seeks to dilute or is against the Assam Accord will be protested vehemently by our party," he said.

The Centre's order, issued under the recently implemented Immigration and Foreigners Act, 2025, allows Hindus, Sikhs, Buddhists, Jains, Parsis and Christians from Afghanistan, Bangladesh and Pakistan who entered India on or before December 31, 2024, to stay in the country without valid travel documents, if they fled religious persecution. In a departure from the Citizenship (Amendment)

Act, 2019 that earmarked December 31, 2014 as the entry deadline for non-Muslim immigrants to India as eligibility for granting of citizenship, the latest order extends the entry date for such immigrants by another 10 years as grounds for their non-prosecution. Asked whether the AGP will continue to remain part of the NDA, Das said no decision has been taken in this regard.

"Last evening, we had a party meeting in which it was decided to approach the apex court. We have full faith in the judiciary and believe it will rule in our favour," he said.

The AGP had earlier filed another writ petition before the Supreme Court, seeking similar exemption.

Sasikala paid ₹450 crore in old notes to buy sugar factory in TN during demonetisation: CBI

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

VK Sasikala, a close aide of former Tamil Nadu Chief Minister J Jayalalithaa, had allegedly paid ₹450 crore in old high-denomination currency notes to buy a sugar factory during demonetisation in 2016, according to an FIR lodged by the CBI. The Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) had registered the case on the Madras High Court's directions against Padmaadevi Sugars Limited (PSL) for allegedly causing a loss of ₹120 crore to the Indian Overseas Bank (IOB). The account was declared fraud in 2020. Sasikala is not named as an accused in the FIR.

The sugar factory of PSL (formerly known as SV Sugar Mills) that the bank had taken as collateral was attached by the income-tax department under the Benami Properties Transactions Act, according to the FIR. It is alleged that the I-T department's searches in connection with a case against Sasikala in 2017 resulted in a seizure of documents and loose sheets. The documents show that "during the period of demonetisation, an amount of ₹450 crore was paid for the purchase of a sugar mill belonging to the Patel Group", the bank has alleged in its complaint to the CBI. The complaint is now part of the FIR. Jayalalithaa passed away on December 5, 2016 at a private hospital in Chennai.

The IOB complaint has alleged that Hitesh Shivgan Patel, who was managing the financial affairs of PSL and was also the in-charge of Prabhat Group, had stated on oath that he had received a total of ₹450 crore in old high-denomination notes towards the sale of the sugar factory at Kancheepuram.

The Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) regarding the sale of the factory was entered into by Hitesh Shivgan Patel, his father Shivgan Patel and brother Dinesh Patel, the complaint has alleged. The MoU and original share certificates of SV Sugar Mills Limited, which were held by the Patels and entities of the Patel Group, were seized by the I-T department during searches on November 18, 2017.

The tax department termed it benami property as the Patel Group was holding it even after the payment of ₹450 crore towards the sale of PSL, along with shares and assets, for the alleged benefit of Sasikala, who paid the amount for the purchase.

The complaint alleges that Sasikala is the beneficial owner and the property in the instant case—the sugar factory of the PSL in Kancheepuram, along with the land, all the machinery,

DOMESTIC TOURISM EXPENDITURE SURVEY BEGINS IN ANDAMAN

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
■ Port Blair

To develop better tourism policies and world-class infrastructure facilities, the Union Ministry of Statistics and Programme Implementation (MoSPI) has started Domestic Tourism Expenditure Survey (DTES) in Andaman and Nicobar Islands, an official said.

The main objective of the survey is to understand expenditure on domestic tourism along with information on household, visitors' profile and trip characteristics in relation to domestic overnight trips, required for preparation of Tourism Satellite Account (TSA) by the Ministry of Tourism (MoT).

A senior official at the Directorate of Information, Publicity and Tourism Office (IP&T) said, "The DTES will help us understand better about tourism patterns and expenditure by travellers and their profile. It will also help us understand where we are lacking and what more needs to be done to make this archipelago a world-class tourism destination." "The Directorate of Economics & Statistics is participating in this survey along with National Sample Survey Office (NSSO), Field Operation Division in Port Blair. We would like to urge all the tourism stakeholders to extend their cooperation to enumerators and supervisors during the data collection exercise. We will keep all information confidential," he said, while adding that the survey will continue till June 2026, but in Andaman and Nicobar Islands it may take some more time due to difficult terrain and remoteness.

While elaborating more on DTES, he said the objective is to collect data on household expenses on domestic travel and tourism activities.

Israel calls Gaza City residents to leave

ASSOCIATED PRESS

■ Deir Al-Balah

Israel's Army called on Saturday that all the Palestinians in Gaza City to move to a humanitarian area it designated in the south as it expanded its operations in preparation for seizing the famine-stricken city, including targeting high-rise buildings. Parts of the city, home to nearly 1 million people, are already considered "red zones," where evacuation orders have been issued ahead of the expected offensive. Aid groups have repeatedly warned that a large-scale evacuation of Gaza City would exacerbate the dire humanitarian situation, after the world's leading authority on food crises declared the city to be gripped by famine, Palestinians have been uprooted and displaced multiple times during the nearly two-year-long war, with many being too weak to move and having nowhere to go.

Israeli military spokesperson Avichay Adraee wrote in X that the army declared Muwasi — a makeshift tent camp in southern Gaza Strip — a humanitarian area and urged everyone in the city, which it called a Hamas stronghold and specified as a combat zone, to leave. The army said they could travel in cars down a designated road without being searched. The military, in a statement, provided a map showing the area in Khan Younis that the humanitarian area encompasses, which includes the block where Nasser Hospital is located. The area around the hospital has been considered a red zone, though not the medical facility itself. Last week, Israel struck the hospital, killing 22 people, including Mariam Dagga, who worked for The Associated Press and other media outlets. The hospital was not under evacuation. The designated safe zone would include field hospitals, water pipelines, food and tents, and relief efforts "will continue on an ongoing basis in cooperation with the UN and international organisations," the statement said. The declaration of a so-called "humanitarian zone" in southern Gaza was done by the Israeli authorities unilaterally, and the UN and the wider humanitarian community are not part of that designation, said Olga Cherevko, a spokesperson for the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs. Israeli forces have struck such humanitarian areas throughout the war, including Muwasi, which they previously declared a safe zone, according to Gaza's Health Ministry. Israel on Saturday issued warnings for two high-rises in Gaza City and the tents around them, saying Hamas had infrastructure inside or near them. It comes a day after after Israel struck another high-rise building in Gaza City, saying Hamas used it for surveillance, without providing evidence. Despite Israel's warnings many Palestinians in Gaza

City say they won't leave. "They only order us to leave from one town to another? What are we going to do with our children? Those who have an ill person, or an elderly or a wounded, where are we going to take them?" said a woman who identified herself as Um Haitham. Israel's offensive has also sparked widespread protests among Israelis who fear it will endanger hostages still held in Gaza, some of whom are believed to be in Gaza City. There are 48 such hostages, 20 of them believed by Israel to be alive. Hamas released a propaganda video Friday of two hostages in Gaza City. The video shows Guy Gilboa-Dalal in a car, at one point joined by another hostage, Alon Ohel. Families of the hostages say the government isn't prioritising their loved ones, with most looking to US President Donald Trump to get the captives out. On Saturday, families of the hostages thanked Trump and his envoy Steve Witkoff for their "unwavering determination, courage and compassion" in advancing ceasefire negotiations. The statement, released by the Hostages and Missing Families Forum, said Trump demonstrates that "true leadership is measured by bold decisions." A lasting ceasefire has so far been elusive. Last month Hamas said it had accepted a proposal from Arab mediators for a ceasefire. Israel has not yet responded and says it is still committed to defeating the militant group.

Women dominate UK's top Cabinet posts

British PM Keir Starmer is on Saturday finalising a major reshuffle of all levels of ministerial jobs, which has resulted in women members of Parliament being appointed to the senior-most Cabinet posts. Pakistani origin Shabana Mahmood's promotion to the post of Home Secretary, and the former incumbent at the Home Office, Yvette Cooper, being appointed Foreign Secretary means that along with Chancellor Rachel Reeves, the top three Government jobs are now being steered by women for the first time. It follows the exit of key Labour Government figure, Angela Rayner, who was forced to step down from the Cabinet as deputy prime minister and housing secretary after a breach of the ministerial code of ethics over underpayment of tax on a new home. "It is the honour of my life to serve as Home Secretary. The first responsibility of Government is the safety of its citizens. Every day in this job, I will be devoted to that purpose," said Mahmood, as she took charge as Home

Secretary on Friday evening. The former justice secretary is widely seen as a no-nonsense minister who took a hardline approach in the Ministry of Justice to tackle a crisis of shortage in prison places. Her move to the Home Office is being viewed as a sign that the Starmer-led Government intends to get tougher on the illegal migration crisis amid a growing challenge from the anti-immigration Reform UK party led by Nigel Farage. Yvette move to the Foreign, Commonwealth and Development Office, replacing David Lammy.

Earthquake in Afghanistan's east wipes out homes, generations and livelihoods

ASSOCIATED PRESS

■ Jalalabad

Ahmad Khan Safi had a good life in Afghanistan. The farmer raised livestock in the Dewagal Valley of Kunar Province and people travelled from across the country to visit the area. Tourists marvelled at its verdant landscape, winding paths and formidable slopes. The valley appeared untouched. It was hard to reach, so inaccessible that people had to change cars four times from the city of Jalalabad, in neighbouring Nangarhar province and walk the rest of the way for several hours or ride a mule. Safi had built a 10-room house from mud and stone because wood and cement were too expensive and impractical to transport. The home collapsed as soon as a major earthquake that killed at least 2,000 people struck on August 31. His shock was quickly replaced by fear and panic. "I was trapped in the mud and couldn't breathe," he told The Associated Press from a Jalalabad hospital. "I struggled a lot to get out, but was hit by rocks and fell so hard that my leg was injured." He spent the night under the rubble, not knowing if his family was alive or dead. Help came the following morning, around 10 am, when people arrived on foot from other districts. Region's remoteness complicating rescue efforts The devastating quake was not the strongest or deadliest in Afghanistan's recent history. But remote and rugged Kunar has defied rescue efforts.

Iran paves over mass grave of 1979 revolution victims

ASSOCIATED PRESS

A desert-like patch of sand and scrawny trees in the largest cemetery in Iran's Capital has been the final resting place for decades for some of the thousands killed in the mass executions that followed Iran's 1979 Islamic Revolution.

Now, Lot 41 at the sprawling Behesht-e Zahra cemetery in Tehran is becoming a parking lot, with their remains likely beneath asphalt. Images from Planet Labs PBC show the parking lot being laid over the site, where opponents of Iran's nascent theocracy and others were rapidly buried following their executions at gunpoint or by hanging. The site, long monitored by surveillance cameras searching for any sign of dissent or remembrance at what officials have referred to as the "scorched section,"

FINAL RESTING PLACE FOR DECADES FOR SOME OF THE THOUSANDS KILLED IN THE MASS EXECUTIONS THAT FOLLOWED IRAN'S 1979 REVOLUTION

has seen State-sponsored demolition in the past, with grave markers vandalised and overturned. Iranian officials have acknowledged the recent decision to build the parking, without going into detail about those buried there. That's as a United Nations special rapporteur in 2024 described Iran's destruction of graveyards as an effort to "conceal or erase data that could serve as potential evidence to avoid legal accountability" over its actions. "Most of the graves and gravestones of dissidents were desecrated, and the trees in the section were deliberately dried out," said Shahin Nasiri, a lecturer at the University of Amsterdam who has researched Lot 41. "The decision to convert this section into a parking lot fits into this broader pattern and represents the final phase of the destruction process." Last week, both a Tehran deputy mayor and the cemetery's manager acknowledged the plans to create a parking lot on the site. "In this place, hypocrites of the early days of the revolution were buried and it has remained without change for years," Tehran's deputy mayor Davood told journalists in footage aired by State television. "We proposed that the authorities reorganise the space. Since we needed a parking lot, the permission for the preparation of the space was received. The job is ongoing in a precise and smart way." The satellite photos show the work began in earnest at the start of August. An August 18 image shows about half of Lot 41 freshly paved over, with construction material still on site. Trucks and piles of asphalt can be seen at the site, suggesting work continued. The reformist newspaper Shargh quote Javad Tajik, who oversees the Behesht-e Zahra cemetery, as saying the parking lot would help people visit a neighbouring lot, where authorities plan to bury those killed in the Iran-Israel war in June. A major airstrike campaign by Israel killed prominent military generals and others. The decision to re-purpose the graveyard appears to clash with Iran's own regulations, which allow for a cemetery to re-purpose land where internments took place after more than 30 years as long as families of the dead agree with the decision.

Imran Khan slams Army Chief Munir

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

■ Lahore

Pakistan's jailed former Prime Minister Imran Khan on Saturday launched a fresh attack on Army chief Field Marshal Asim Munir, accusing him of "inflicting oppression" on the people to prolong his rule. The patron-in-chief of Pakistan Tehreek-i-Insaf (PTI) has accused Munir of imposing an undeclared martial law, installing a puppet Government under Shehbaz Sharif by stealing people's mandate in last February's election, and committing atrocities against his party workers. "Today Asim Munir is inflicting oppression on the people of Pakistan to prolong his own rule, thus weakening the country," Khan said in a post on X.

The 72-year-old cricketer-turned politician has been in jail for over two years in multiple cases. "Those (Munir and company) who have stolen the people's mandate are gripped by fear. It is because of this fear that oppression against us is increasing," he said. Khan also alleged that he and his wife Bushra Bibi are being kept in "solitary confinement" and being subjected to "mental torture only in the hope that I will break down and abandon my ideology". "The real purpose of this attempt to break me is to silence the people's voice," Khan said, adding that this was the same conduct that General Yahya Khan adopted at the time of the fall of Dhaka in 1971. He was referring to former army chief General Yahya Khan, under whose regime East Pakistan witnessed a civil war, resulting in the rise of an independent State — Bangladesh. "The only difference between 1971 and today is that now the people are more aware. Social media has exposed all the facts before the public, and the people have learned to stand up for their rights against tyranny," he said. "That is why this oppressive system will soon come to an end. The time has come for the people's voice to be heard," said the former premier, who was ousted from power in April 2022 through a vote of no-confidence. Khan also strongly condemned the bomb blast at a rally in Balochistan held in connection with the death anniversary of Sardar Attaullah Mengal, in which at least 15 people were killed this week. "I express my condolences to (Balochistan National Party chief and Mengal's son) Akhtar Mengal. The situation in Balochistan is worsening by the day because elected representatives are not allowed to govern," he said. Khan called his party to "fully participate" in the strike called by Mahmood Achakzai in Balochistan on Monday. "The people of Balochistan deserve to be freed from terrorism and the hybrid system imposed on them," he said. Khan said that in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province, an operation has been launched to weaken the PTI Government. "This must be immediately stopped by the provincial Government. I direct KP CM Gandapur in particular to strongly resist and halt this operation, as the people of the province are already suffering due to the floods" he said.

Government proscribed Palestine Action in July after activists broke into a Royal Air Force base and vandalized planes to protest against what they called Britain's support for Israel's offensive against Hamas in the Gaza Strip.

Floods kill 50, impact 4 million in Pak's Punjab province: Official

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
■ Lahore

Floods in Pakistan's Punjab province have killed 50 people and impacted around four million others since August 23, officials said on Saturday.

The province with a population of 130 million people has been witnessing torrential rainfall since mid-August, resulting in almost all rivers and tributaries flowing over danger levels.

"Around four million people in Punjab have been affected/displaced by the floods so far. Around 1.84 million people trapped in floodwaters have been relocated to safety, while 1.34 million animals have been relocated," Punjab's Provincial Disaster Management Authority (PDMA) Director General Irfan Ali Kathia told a press conference here. "The floods have claimed 50 lives in the affected areas of Punjab and financial assistance of PKR 1 million each will be provided to the families of the deceased," Kathia said. He said 3,900 villages have been submerged in floodwater from three rivers -- Ravi, Chenab and Sutlej -- and crops on thousands of acres have also washed away. Kathia said Sialkot and Gujrat are the worst-hit districts by floods, and added that more rainfall is forecast across various divisions of Punjab. "The flood situation remains critical, with water levels at dangerous highs at Ganda Singh Wala, Head Sulaimanki, Head Qadirabad, Khanki, and Muhammadwala," he said. He, however, said that no new alert has been issued for any river in the last 18 to 22 hours, and water levels in the Sutlej have been receding over the past 24 hours. "At Ganda Singh Wala, the water level is also decreasing," he said.

"Currently, 71,000 cusecs are flowing at Jassar, 110,000 cusecs at Ravi Siphon, 107,000 cusecs at Shahdara, and 170,000 cusecs at Sadhnai," he said, adding that water levels at Multan and Sher Shah have also dropped. The National Disaster Management Authority (NDMA) has said a low-pressure system is currently located over Madhya Pradesh and is likely to move west-northwest, and may reach Rajasthan and adjoining parts of Sindh on Saturday.

Under the influence of this weather system, Punjab, Sindh and Islamabad may face heavy to very heavy rains, it said. Train operations in Pakistan are also affected as five rail sections in the Punjab province have been suspended due to the damage caused to the railway tracks by floods.

Because of floods and heavy rains, power distribution companies, including the Lahore Electric Supply Company (Lesco) and Gujranwala Electric Power Company also faced a massive loss of electricity supply infrastructure. According to NDMA data, between June 26 when the monsoon rains started till August 31,

NEPAL'S INDRA JATRA FESTIVAL BEGINS

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
■ Kathmandu

The biggest festival of Kathmandu Valley, Indra Jatra, began on Saturday with the worshipping of Indra, the King of Heaven, also known as the God of rains. Nepal President Ramchandra Paudel, Prime Minister KP Sharma Oli, Kathmandu Mayor Balendra Shah and other dignitaries visited Basantapur to observe the festival and offer prayers.

Chariots of living deities Kumari, Bhairav and Ganesh were also pulled at Hanumandhoka, Basantapur and other parts of Kathmandu. President Paudel amidst a special ceremony worshipped Goddess Kumari and received her blessings as per centuries old tradition.

The eight-day festival starts on Bhadra Shukla Chaturdashi as per the lunar calendar. On Thursday, two days before the festival, a wooden pole known as Indradhwoja with flags on its top, was erected in Hanumandhoka.

On Sunday, the second day of the festival, known as Yanya Punhi, the Newar community of Kathmandu enjoy a traditional feast consisting mainly of beaten rice, meat, egg, beans and bara, a kind of bread made of black lentil.

In addition to Kathmandu, the festival is also observed in Lalitpur, Bhaktapur, Dhulikhel and Dolakha districts in central Nepal. During the festival, various cultural items -- including Mahakali dance, Lakhe dance, Pulukisi dance and Bhakku dance -- are performed and Dasavata is shown in the core areas of Basantapur and Hanumandhoka complex. There is a legend behind the Indra Jatra festival.

Oncologist welcome proposal for cancer notification

ASSOCIATED PRESS
■ New York

An eminent New York-based oncologist has welcomed the recent recommendation by a parliamentary committee that cancer should be declared a notifiable disease across India, saying it marks a turning-point in the fight against cancer.

Last month, a parliamentary committee recommended that cancer should be declared a notifiable disease across all States and Union Territories.

Headed by Narain Dass Gupta, the Committee on Petitions, Rajya Sabha, in its 163rd report, said reliable data is vital for assessing public health issues, particularly cancer, where comprehensive information is essential to track trends, design policies and plan infrastructure. "The recent recommendation by the Rajya Sabha committee is both timely and essential. It marks a turning-point in India's fight against cancer," Dr Dattatreya Nuri said.

"As an Indian-American cancer doctor, I firmly believe this step will catalyse stronger surveillance, targeted prevention, fairer resource distribution, and ultimately -- better outcomes for millions," he said.

Padma Shri awardee Nuri has held various academic, clinical, research, and administrative positions at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Centre and as Professor and Director of the Cancer Centre at New York Presbyterian Hospital, Cornell University.

Currently, he is an advisor to the Governments of Andhra Pradesh and Telangana for cancer care services. He said that mandating the reporting of cancer cases would dramatically enhance the quality and authenticity of incidence data, a foundational step for informed policy. "This step has already been taken by several state Governments in India, but a national step has been anticipated by many," he said.

Nuri added that in India, the National Cancer Registry Programme (NCRP), managed by ICMR-NCIDR, currently covers just 16-18 per cent of the population. Without legal backing, data collection remains fragmented and opaque, he said. "Only through a notifiable disease framework -- legally obligating hospitals and practitioners to report cancer -- can we hope to build a truly comprehensive national database," he said. He further said that enhanced surveillance yields immediate dividends and robust, realtime epidemiological data enable precise identification of high-incidence regions, detection of changes in demographic patterns (such as the concerning rise of oral cancer among those under 40), and the ability to link emerging trends to risk-factor exposures.

"These insights empower policymakers to deploy targeted prevention strategies -- tobacco control, HPV vaccination, anti-pollution measures, and regionally tailored screening programmes -- with real confidence," he said.

Argentina's Milei embroiled in bribery scandal

ASSOCIATED PRESS ■ Buenos Aires

Argentines are so used to the corruption in their political system that even Peronists -- supporters of the populist movement that dominated Argentina's politics for decades -- employ a fatalistic maxim to describe their politicians: "Roban, pero hacen," or, "They steal, but they get it done." But for the past two weeks, Argentines have been riveted by a ballooning graft scandal drawing in close associates of libertarian President Javier Milei, the wild-haired economist who won Argentina's 2023 election in part by campaigning as an outsider against the corrupt, Peronist-dominated elite -- "the caste," he calls it -- whose unbridled spending helped precipitate Argentina's economic crisis. At a time of extreme fiscal austerity, the allegations that his powerful sister and chief of staff, Karina Milei, Hundreds of ordinary admirers and VIPs paid their last respects on Saturday to Giorgio Armani, remembered by Milan's mayor as a "man of extraordinary elegance" who left an indelible mark on the city and the global fashion world. Armani died Thursday at 91 at his home in central Milan surrounded by loved ones. His fashion house said he worked up to the end. One of his final projects was a runway show marking 50 years of his signature Giorgio Armani brand, which is due to close Milan Fashion Week later this month. Mourners filed into the Armani Theater, where Armani regularly showed his ready-to-wear runway collections. Rows of candles in paper bags cast a shimmering light and piano music by Italian composer Ludovico Einaudi played softly in the background.

UNLOCK INLAND STATES' SEAFOOD EXPORT POTENTIAL TO DIVERSIFY PORTFOLIO: FISHERIES MINISTER

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

Fisheries Minister Rajiv Ranjan Singh on Saturday called for unlocking the export potential of inland states to diversify the country's seafood export portfolio, while urging stakeholders to boost fish productivity.

Speaking at a virtual stakeholders' consultation meeting, Singh said collective efforts were needed to increase fish productivity from 5 tonnes per hectare to 7 tonnes per hectare to remain globally competitive.

The minister emphasised export market diversification, produce certification, technology integration in fish processing, cold chain infrastructure development and establishing robust traceability systems to meet global standards, an official statement said. Singh said the fisheries sector directly and indirectly supports over 80 million livelihoods in India.

tric project will critically meet Bhutan's peak winter demand, when hydro power generation is low. During the summer months, it would export power to India," said SB Khyalia, CEO, Adani Power.

The Wangchhu is the first hydroelectric project to be taken up under an MoU signed in May 2025 between Adani Group and DGPC for jointly developing 5,000 MW of hydropower in Bhutan.

Adani Group and DGPC are engaged in further discussions for future projects under this strategic partnership. Adani Power is the largest private thermal power producer in India.

DGPC is the sole generation utility of Bhutan with a current generation portfolio of a little over 2,500 MW and growing fast with Bhutan's aspirations to achieve 25,000 MW in generation capacity by 2040. Druk Holding & Investments, the commercial arm of the Royal Government of Bhutan, is DGPC's shareholder.

Established in 2008 to take a lead role in developing Bhutan's hydropower resources, it has recently diversified beyond hydropower into tapping solar resources also.

Consultation workshop to address India's coal phase-down, climate goals

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

The Ashoka Centre for a People-centric Energy Transition (ACPET), Ashoka University, will host a high-level consultation workshop on 10 September 2025 at the India International Centre, New Delhi, to examine the future of coal in India's energy mix and its linkages with national development and climate goals.

Titled "Viksit Bharat @2047 and Net Zero @2070 Trajectory - Delayed Thermal Coal Phase-Down in India", the day-long workshop will run from 10 AM to 4 PM, bringing together policymakers, researchers, industry experts and civil society representatives for in-depth deliberations on India's energy transition pathway. India has set two ambitious targets, to become a developed economy by 2047 and to achieve net zero carbon emissions by 2070. With coal currently accounting for more than 70 per cent of the country's electricity generation, striking a balance between sustaining rapid economic growth and meeting climate commitments remains a critical challenge. ACPET has been examining this question through its Energy Future's Lab, which has developed an AI and machine learning backed Coal Economy Model and Energy Chatbot.

Early insights suggest that a meaningful phase-down of thermal coal in India is unlikely before 2047 if the country is to maintain its growth trajectory while pursuing the vision of Viksit Bharat.

The workshop will open with addresses from senior policymakers and energy experts. Session I will focus on the macroeconomic impacts of coal transition under Viksit Bharat and Net Zero pathways. Session II will convene a round-table on policy and action areas, covering electricity demand, coal and renewable infrastructure and welfare measures for coal-dependent communities.

Expected outcomes include the sharing of ACPET's modelling insights on coal demand, electricity requirements and renewable expansion, along with evidence-based perspectives on how India could time its coal phase-down without compromising energy security and development. Participants will also discuss just transition strategies, with an emphasis on employment, reskilling and welfare for communities reliant on the coaleconomy. Distinguished speakers include Dr Anil Kumar Jain, Chairperson of the Petroleum and Natural Gas Regulatory Board (PNGRB), alongside experts from ACPET, the Central Electricity Authority, TERI, WRI, Prayas, and CEEW, among others.

Modi's next-gen GST reform: A diwali gift that reshapes bharat's economy

DR ASEERVATHAM
ACHARY

September 3, 2025, will be remembered as a landmark day in Bharat's economic journey. The Modi Government has once again demonstrated its commitment to the welfare of the common man by delivering on its promise of a true Diwali bonanza through the announcement of bold and visionary Goods and Services Tax (GST) reforms.

After an extensive day-long deliberation attended by all members of the GST Council, significant reforms were unveiled with the clear objective of moving to a simplified two-slab rate structure of 5 percent and 18 percent. The intent behind these reforms is beyond question: to ease the burden on the common man, empower domestic industries, and strengthen Bharat's economic foundation.

Introducing such sweeping changes at a time when the global economy is under socio-economic pressures is a testament to the foresight and courage of the Modi Government.

This bold move reflects the emergence of a confident and resilient Indian economy, underlining the fact that Bharat is firmly set on the path of progress and growth. The Government has invested enormous effort to ensure that essentials such as food, agriculture, fertilizer, renewable energy, textiles, health, education, items of daily use, consumer electronics, and transportation reach the common man.

Relief for Households and Common Man

The most visible impact is on everyday essentials. Products like Ultra-High Temperature (UHT) milk, Pre-packaged and labelled chena or paneer, all the Indian Breads will see NIL rates.

Food and FMCG items such as dairy products, packaged snacks, soaps, shampoos, toothbrushes, toiletries and bicycles now attract just 5 per cent GST, directly reducing household expenses. Health care receives a huge boost with life-saving drugs, diagnostic kits, and medical devices either exempted or moved to the 5 percent slab. Education becomes more affordable with zero GST on exercise books, pencils, erasers, and other basic learning materials. For millions of families, this means direct savings and higher disposable income.

Healthcare and Insurance Made Affordable

In a landmark decision, the Modi Government has extended massive relief in the healthcare and insurance sectors through GST rationalisation. GST on 33 life-saving drugs and medicines has been completely removed, dropping from 12 per cent to 0 per cent, while 3 critical drugs used in the treatment of cancer, rare diseases, and other chronic ailments have also been exempted from the existing 5 per cent. Several other essential medicines have seen their GST rate reduced from 12 per cent to just 5 per cent, making healthcare more accessible and affordable for millions.

In parallel, the Government has taken a historic step to make insurance truly affordable for the common man by exempting all individual life insurance policies whether term life, ULIP, or endowment from GST, along with reinsurance. Similarly, all individual health insurance products, including family floater plans and senior citizen policies, now carry zero GST. These reforms not only ease the burden of medical expenses but also expand financial protection, strengthening the vision of "Insurance for All by 2047."

Aspirational Goods Made Affordable

A key highlight of the reforms is the reduction in rates for aspirational goods. Small cars, two-wheelers, televisions, and dishwashers have all moved from 28 percent to 18 percent. This means passenger vehicles are now cheaper by ₹50,000 to ₹1 lakh depending on the model. Motorcycle prices have dropped by ₹5,000 to ₹15,000. Auto experts project a 10 percent rise in small car sales this financial year. Consumer durables like ACs and large TVs are now more affordable, boosting demand and expanding the domestic electronics market.

Agriculture and Rural Bharat Empowered

For farmers, the benefits are unprecedented. Tractors have moved from 12 percent to 5 percent, tires and parts from 18 percent to 5 percent. Harvesters, threshers, sprinklers, drip irrigation equipment, poultry and bee-keeping machines, and bio-pesticides are now taxed at just 5 percent. Fertilizer inputs have been corrected under the inverted duty structure, boosting domestic production and reducing import dependence. These changes will reduce costs for farmers, enhance productivity, and fuel rural demand.

Benefits of GST Rationalisation for MSMEs

The next-generation GST reforms provide a direct boost to India's MSMEs by lowering costs, improving liquidity, and enhancing competitiveness. With GST rates on key raw materials like paper, packaging, textiles, leather, wood, and handicrafts reduced from 12-18 per cent to just 5 per cent, small businesses now face lower input costs, making their products more competitive both in domestic and international markets.

The correction of inverted duty structures in textiles, food processing, and other MSME-intensive sectors will smoothen refund procedures and ease cash flow pressures that often hinder small manufacturers. The removal of the value threshold for GST refunds on low-value e-commerce consignments ensures that even small exporters can claim timely refunds, unlocking working capital and allowing them to scale their businesses with confidence.

Simpler compliance and faster refunds reduce working capital blockages, freeing resources for expansion, innovation, and job creation. With GST on delivery vans and trucks reduced from 28 per cent to 18 per cent, logistics and freight costs for MSMEs are significantly lowered, strengthening supply chains and improving efficiency.

Digitalisation and Compliance Ease

Equally transformative are the structural reforms in compliance. Small traders, startups, and MSMEs will now face less paperwork and lower compliance costs, thanks to the integration of GST filings with the Government's digital platforms. AI-driven invoice matching, faceless assessments and automatic refunds will reduce harassment, plug leakages, and improve ease of doing business. The threshold for GST registration has been raised, freeing lakhs of small traders and street vendors from cumbersome filings. These measures directly support the Government's goal of "Minimum Government, Maximum Governance."

States Empowered, Cooperative Federalism Strengthened

The reforms are also a triumph of cooperative federalism. For the first time, every state supported the GST Council's recommendations, cutting across political divides. This consensus underlines the political maturity and strong leadership of Prime Minister Modi, who has united diverse states under a shared vision of growth.

Global Signal of Confidence

At a time when advanced economies are facing stagflation, Bharat has chosen to unleash domestic demand, empower households, and boost industry through tax rationalisation. Global investors view this as a bold structural reform that improves competitiveness and simplifies the business environment.

Ratings agencies and global trade bodies are already hailing Bharat's reform as a model for emerging economies. The move sends a clear signal that Bharat under Modi is determined to stay on the path of high growth, innovation, and resilience.

Congress's Lost Decade, VAT Confusion, and Modi's Decisive Leadership

It must not be forgotten that GST was first proposed in 2006 by the UPA, but for nearly a decade, the Congress-led Government failed to build consensus, draft a workable framework, or show the political will to implement it. Instead, they imposed a chaotic VAT system where every state had its own tax rates, creating a maze of multiple levies, cascading taxation, and corruption. Goods would get taxed at checkpoints across states, trucks wasted hours at inter-state borders, and ordinary consumers ended up paying higher prices because of double taxation.

VAT became a symbol of inefficiency and red tape. It was only under Prime Minister Modi's leadership that GST became a reality in 2017, transforming Bharat into a unified market. Where the UPA drowned GST in indecision, Prime Minister Modi built consensus with all states and delivered "One Nation, One Tax."

Today, Modi has gone even further - implementing the most far-reaching reforms in GST's history, simplifying its structure, empowering every sector of the economy, and bringing relief to every household. The contrast is stark: where Congress delayed, Modi delivered; where Congress created confusion, Modi created clarity; where Congress sowed division, Modi built consensus.

India thrash China 7-0 to reach final

To face Korea in Asia Cup hockey final

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
■ Raigir (Bihar)

A ruthless India thrashed China 7-0 in their final Super 4s match to storm into the final of the men's Asia Cup hockey tournament here on Saturday.

The Indians controlled the game from start to finish and scored through Shilanand Lakra (4th minute), Dilpreet Singh (7th), Mandeep Singh (18th), Raj Kumar Pal (37th), Sukhjeet Singh (39th) and Abhishek (46th, 50th).

India, thus, topped the Super 4s standings with seven points ahead of defending champions Korea, who were second with four points.

India will play five-time champions Korea in Sunday's final for a place in next year's World Cup to be jointly hosted by Belgium and the Netherlands.

China and Malaysia will lock horns in the third-fourth place match, also on Sunday.

Korea had earlier produced a spirited performance to register a come-from-behind 4-3 win over Malaysia in a must-win Super 4 match.

Against China on Saturday, it was complete domination from the Indians throughout the match as the play was mostly inside the Chinese half.

The Indian defence was hardly tested in the match as China found it difficult to penetrate the hosts circle. India did not concede a single penalty corner in the match.

The Indians didn't waste to assert their supremacy in the match as they pressed hard from the word go. Their efforts paid dividends in the fourth minute when Shilanand broke the deadlock.

It was skipper Harmanpreet Singh's inch-perfect aerial ball from half line that found Jarmanpreet Singh on the right flank, whose pass was neatly stopped and pushed in by Shilanand.

It was relentless from the Indians as, after scoring, Shilanand earned a penalty corner for his side minutes later.

Harmanpreet's initial flick was saved by Chinese goalkeeper Weihao Wang, but Dilpreet stationed himself at the right place to find the net from the rebound and double India's lead.

In the 13th minute, Sanjay came tantalisingly close to adding another but his slap shot from the left corner went just wide.

India secured their second penalty corner in the 18th minute and Mandeep made the scoreline 3-0 by scoring from a rebound after Vivek Sagar Prasad's shot was saved by the Chinese custodian.

The Indian attackers were all over the Chinese circle, and in the 23rd minute, Hardik Singh's fierce shot was kept at bay by an alert Wang.

India continued in the same vein after the change of ends and came close to scoring but Dilpreet's powerful high shot was acrobatically saved by the Chinese goalkeeper's extended hands.

But it didn't take long for India to find the net again with assist from Dilpreet. The goal was set up by Vivek Sagar Prasad, who found Shilanand on the left. Shilanand passed it on to Dilpreet, whose high ball from the left was neatly tapped in by Raj Kumar in the 37th minute.

Minutes later, India earned a penalty corner but wasted the chance.

But in the 39th minute, India made it 5-0 through Sukhjeet, who scored with a diving slap shot after being set up Sumit and Dilpreet.

It was raining goals from India as Abhishek registered his name in the scoresheet just after the start of the final quarter after being set up by a fine one-to-one play from Dilpreet and Sukhjeet.

Abhishek scored his second of the day with a fierce reverse hit four minutes later after receiving a fine deflection from Shilanand.

Earlier, the defeat against Korea threw Malaysia out of the final race.

Korea's goals were scored by Hyenhong Kim (24th, 51st), Seyong Oh (44th) and Jungjun Lee (50th).

Malaysia scored through Fitri Saari (9th), Aiman Rozemi (29th) and Syed Cholan (31st).

Korea were trailing for most part of the first three quarters, but they didn't give up and pressed hard in the final 15 minutes, which resulted in two goals in a span of one minute to surge ahead for the first time in the match.

Korea were trailing 1-2 at half-time before being down 1-2 in the opening minute of the third quarter. But their fortunes turned in the 44th minute when Oh brought down the equation to 2-3.

That was the impetus Korea needed as they pumped in two quick goals in the final quarter to seal the match in their favour.

Navneet Kaur struck from a penalty corner seconds before the final hooter as India came from behind twice to hold defending champions Japan to a 2-2 draw in their second pool match of the women's Asia Cup hockey tournament here Saturday.

India, who had thrashed Thailand 11-0 in their opening match, play against Singapore in their final pool B match on September 8.

India are currently ranked 10th in the world while Japan are placed at 12th.

India squad flexes muscles ahead of Asia Cup

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Indian skipper Suryakumar Yadav has lauded the energy and commitment of his teammates on the opening day of training ahead of the Asia Cup, saying their intensity and skill sets gave him confidence going into the tournament.

India will begin their campaign against hosts UAE on September 10, followed by the marquee clash with Pakistan on September 14 and against Oman on September 19. The play-offs will begin on September 20.

Defending champions India had a full-fledged practice session at the ICC Academy here on Friday as they put the finishing touches to their Asia Cup preparations.

"To have such a brilliant bunch around with unbelievable skill sets, I always have a smile on my face when I see those boys on the ground," Suryakumar, returning to action after undergoing surgery for a sports hernia, said in a video posted by BCCI on 'X'. "Because the way they put their body on the line, that's what I want from them. And they just enjoy on the ground."

Vice-captain Shubman Gill, who recently captained India to a 2-2 draw in the England Test series, echoed his skipper's sentiment.

"Very excited obviously. I think it's a great group. And the way we have been playing in the T20s is nothing short of entertaining and terrific cricket. So, very excited to join the group," said Gill.

The 25-year-old from Punjab attracted plenty of attention during fitness drills and net sessions, with Sanju Samson, Jitesh Sharma, Tilak Varma and Abhishek Sharma also having extended batting stints on day one of their training on Friday.

This is the first time the team has assembled together since the 2-2 Test series draw in England. Several players, including Gill, Jasprit Bumrah, Arshdeep Singh and Kuldeep Yadav, had a month's rest before rejoining the squad.

Among the senior players, Bumrah was also upbeat after returning to the T20I squad since the 2024 World Cup final in Bridgetown.

"It feels really good to join the T20 group after a long time. This three-week window was really good, got some time at home," said the pace spearhead, who last played three Tests at the England series.

"Young energy, young people in our team, so yeah, looking forward to it, exciting times ahead."

All-rounder Hardik Pandya, sporting a new blonde hairdo, said he had used the break to focus on family time.

"This time I really took some time out for my son, spent a lot of time with him. At the same time, I thought I will start my sports training earlier, this feels like a good bunch of people around and exciting talent," he said.

Left-arm pacer Arshdeep said the team environment remained vibrant from the outset.

"It is a lively environment. Laughter and banter going around and it's day one so we will get into it. By the time we play the first match we will have full intensity," he said. Shivam Dube revealed the motivational words of head coach Gautam Gambhir that set the tone in training.

"There is always one thing which the coach has said to every player – whenever you play for your country, you get an opportunity to do something new. Usme achcha utilise kiya hai, training kiya hai, better cricketer banne ka try kiya," Dube said.

India have won the Asia Cup a record eight times. They are the designated hosts of the tournament, being staged across UAE venues.

Group A comprises India, Pakistan, UAE and Oman, while Group B features Sri Lanka, Bangladesh, Afghanistan and Hong Kong.

Sinner faces Alcaraz for a 3rd Grand Slam final in a row

Jannik Sinner took a medical timeout because of a bothersome abdominal muscle during a mid-match lull before retaking control for a 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory over Felix Auger-Aliassime in the US Open semifinals on Friday night, moving closer to a second consecutive title at Flushing Meadows.

No one has repeated as the men's champion in New York since Roger Federer took five trophies in a row from 2004-08.

The Number 1-seeded Sinner, a 24-year-old from Italy, will face Number 2 Carlos Alcaraz, a 22-year-old from Spain, on Sunday, making them the first men in tennis history to meet in three straight Grand Slam finals within a single season, according to the ATP.

"It's great for the sport having rivalries, having hopefully great matches in front of us," Sinner said. "I'm someone who loves these challenges, and I love to put myself in these positions and to see how it goes."

The top spot in the rankings will be on the line, too, in front of an Arthur Ashe Stadium audience that is expected to include President Donald Trump. "It's a very special day," Sinner said about Sunday's matchup. "It's a very amazing final again."

Alcaraz got there by defeating 24-time major champion Novak Djokovic 6-4, 7-6 (4), 6-2 earlier Friday.

Sinner advanced to his fifth consecutive title match at a Slam. He beat Taylor Fritz at Flushing Meadows 12 months ago and Alexander Zverev at the Australian Open in January, then lost to Alcaraz at the French Open in June, before beating his rival at Wimbledon in July.

Meanwhile, Aryna Sabalenka will be seeking her fourth Grand Slam title overall and second straight at the US Open when she faces Amanda Anisimova in the women's final.

DABROWSKI, ROUTLIFFE WIN DOUBLES TITLE

ASSOCIATED PRESS ■ New York

Gabriela Dabrowski and Erin Routliffe won the US Open women's doubles title for the second time in three years, ending Taylor Townsend's whirlwind stint in Flushing Meadows one victory short of what would have been the American's third Grand Slam championship with Katerina Siniakova.

Seeded third, Dabrowski and Routliffe beat the top-ranked pair of Townsend and Siniakova 6-4, 6-4 in an entertaining final Friday at Arthur Ashe Stadium.

Dabrowski and Routliffe embraced afterward, celebrating Dabrowski's first major triumph since undergoing treatment for breast cancer. She delayed part of that treatment so she could compete at Wimbledon last year, where she and Routliffe reached the final, where they lost to Townsend and Siniakova.

"Wild ride: Cancer, broken ribs for both of us," Dabrowski said. "It was crazy, honestly. I'm really proud of us. It was not easy." Townsend became one of the faces of the tournament, thanks to a post-match altercation early in singles play that she wishes never happened. Townsend, who is Black, said Latvian opponent Jelena Ostapenko told her she had "no class" and "no education," an interaction that became a hot button topic with questions about whether the comments had racial undertones.

My best is yet to come, says shooter Naruka

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
■ Bengaluru

His professional career showing a remarkable upswing in the last couple of years, India's top skeet marksman Anantjeet Singh Naruka says his best is yet to come and credits the discipline and hard work put into training since junior days for the recent results.

The 27-year-old Jaipur shooter, who recently claimed his maiden individual gold at the Asian Championships in Kazakhstan, believes the athlete winning an Olympic quota should represent the country at the Games, effectively challenging the federation's policy of holding trials months before the quadrennial event. The victory came on the back of a World Cup Finals bronze last year and silver at the Hangzhou Asian Games in 2023.

Had it not been for a missed clay target, the marksman would have won an Olympic bronze in 2024 Paris alongside Maheshwari Chauhan in the skeet mixed team event.

In a sport that rarely draws as much spotlight as trap, pistol or rifle, Jaipur shooter Anantjeet Singh Naruka has carved his path to the top by following his instincts and learning from his father.

"I think the highest point has just started in my career. I am really interested in my sport. Every morning when I am waking up, I am like, 'okay, I need to go and shoot,'" said Naruka in an interaction with PTI on his return from Kazakhstan.

With his transition from junior to senior level slowed by the challenges of Covid, Naruka put in extra effort to sharpen his game. Weighing just 60kg, he also faced the task of adding muscle to his lanky 6'2" frame.

"When Covid hit, everything was halted. After Covid also, there were challenges. I started working out a lot. I wanted to gain muscle because in shooting we need endurance... There is a lot of recoil. To handle that and to compete with international-level athletes, you need physical strength," he said. "If you have the

that, you will be able to control your mind better. So, I changed that and then a lot of discipline."

Here's where Italian coach Ennio Falco's guidance came in handy.

"My coach told me, if you have made a plan that you have to shoot (competitively) the next week, you have to go for training for the next five days. I have changed myself discipline-wise, and put in a lot of hard work after 2022. It has helped me mentally," Naruka said.

"When I transitioned from junior to senior level around 2019, I saw that it's a different ball game. I immediately knew I can't be lenient. I have to be perfect."

Explaining the challenges of increasing the bodyweight, Naruka said, "In 2020, I told my trainer that I need to work on my body. I gained 12-13 kgs. And when I started shooting back in 2021, I saw the change. I could train for a longer time and put in the extra effort."

Missing bronze at the Paris Olympics by one shot has taught Naruka a lesson – to turn setbacks into motivation. "We need to take disappointment as a motivation that 'okay, we reached this far and we are not going to make the same mistake again'. All the experiences gained over the years, I've been using them in competition.

The disappointment in Paris was overpowering but realisation dawned soon that it could be used for future success.

"For a few months, I was regretting everything. I could have done better, we could have performed better. It (final) happened so quickly. It was like it started and stopped. It hits you that you lost a big opportunity. But I told myself that if we were so close, maybe next time we can get the medal. I am grateful to be in the final."

Chopra-Nadeem rematch set for Tokyo Worlds

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
■ New Delhi

Top Indian athlete Neeraj Chopra and Pakistan's reigning Olympic champion Arshad Nadeem are set for a high-profile rematch of their Paris Games javelin final at the World Athletics Championships in Tokyo later this month.

Chopra, the reigning world champion, is leading a 19-member Indian team in the September 13-21 showdown while Nadeem is the lone athlete from Pakistan.

Nadeem had beaten Chopra for gold at the Paris Games in August 2024 with a monster throw of 92.97m, an Olympic record.

Since then, the two rivals have not met each other on a javelin arena, but after more than a year, they are set to have a showdown in Tokyo in what will be a clash between Olympic and world champions.

The 27-year-old Chopra is a wild card entrant in the men's javelin event by virtue of being the defending champion. He has also thrown past the 85.50m direct qualifying mark many times during the qualifying period.

Nadeem, 28, breached the qualifying mark with his throw of 86.40m while winning gold in the Asian Championships in South Korea in May. Incidentally, that's the lone event he has competed after the Paris Olympics final. The Pakistani athlete underwent a calf muscle surgery in England in July.

The men's javelin qualifying round of the world championships will be held on September 17 and the final the next day.

The rivals were to have a showdown at the Diamond League Meeting in Silesia, Poland, on August 16 but both pulled out of the event after the organisers initially confirmed their participation. In fact, Nadeem did not compete in any four of this year's DL meetings which had men's javelin in the roster while Chopra competed in two and also finished second in the Diamond League Finals in Zurich on August 28.

Three other Indians – Sachin Yadav, Yashvir Singh and Rohit Yadav – are also featuring in the event in Tokyo, as India will have the most number of men's javelin throwers among competing countries.

With the expected return of Nadeem, the men's javelin event in Tokyo will have the best of the lot in the business in action.

Diamond League Trophy winner Julian Weber of Germany will enter the event as favourite after three 90m-plus throws this year. He is also the world leader this season with his 91.51m while winning the DL Trophy in Zurich.

Chopra's 90.23m throw, his first 90m-plus effort in his career, while finishing second in the Doha DL in May is in the third in the season's top list.

SCO: Shifting Fulcrum to the East

The Shanghai Cooperation Organisation (SCO) is emerging as a stage where a new world order quietly takes shape — one less tethered to the influence of the United States. Through the convergence of India, China, Russia, and Central Asian nations, the SCO signals a shift towards multipolarity, where trade, security, and diplomacy are negotiated on shared interests rather than dictated by a single power. In its unfolding, the SCO reflects not just strategic realignments, but a poetic reimagining of global balance — a space where diverse voices collectively script the rules of tomorrow, heralding a world of interwoven ambitions beyond traditional hierarchies

Modi-Xi Kazan Meet: Resetting India-China Ties Amid Tensions and Global Shifts

On October 23, 2024, Prime Minister Narendra Modi and President Xi Jinping, on the sidelines of the BRICS Summit in Kazan, decided to bury the hatchet and work expeditiously and sincerely to resolve various bilateral issues, especially the breach of trust stemming from China’s unsuccessful incursion in Galwan in 2020. Since then, frequent interactions between India and China have been conducted at the level of foreign and defence ministers, Special Representatives (NSA), and through institutionalised arrangements like the Working Mechanism for Consultation and Coordination on India-China Border Affairs (WCMCC). Incremental progress regarding de-escalation has been made along the borders, with gradual easing of restrictions envisaged.

China permitted and facilitated the Kailash Mansarovar Yatra for Indian pilgrims, while India agreed to ease visas for Chinese businesses and resume direct flights between the two countries.

The last major interaction before this summit was held between Chinese Foreign Minister and Politburo member Wang Yi (August 18-19) and Indian External Affairs Minister and National Security Adviser, co-chair of the Special Representatives Mechanism, less than two weeks prior to Prime Minister Modi’s visit to Tianjin for the 25th SCO Summit (August 30-September 1). Three working groups were established to deal with border issues and management, and additional cross-border points were agreed upon to expand trade. While the Summit was the largest gathering with over twenty leaders and ten international organisations — providing Beijing an opportunity to showcase the efficacy and outreach of alternative non-Western institutional mechanisms — the bilateral dimension between India and China remained at the forefront. Apart from giving PM Modi a red-carpet welcome with an Indian touch, the first interaction between the two leaders happened almost immediately. President Xi described the relationship as a “vital partnership” in the 21st century.

Both sides agreed to proceed with developing trust and confidence-building measures and to address concrete issues such as trade imbalance, market access (especially NTBs), border management and resolution, river water management and data sharing, and maintaining overall peace and tranquillity. They also discussed further de-escalation and disengagement, given that both sides still maintain at least 50,000 forces each in a face-to-face deployment. Both leaders exchanged views on potential cooperation to navigate an uncertain and unpredictable global situation, particularly in the context of the Global South. President Xi also criticised bullying behaviour and practices, obliquely referring to Trump-era tactics.

In his opening remarks, PM Modi reiterated: “Last year in Kazan, we had very productive discussions, which gave a positive direction to our relations. After the disengagement at the border, an atmosphere of peace and stability is now in place. Our Special Representatives have also reached an agreement on border management.

Our cooperation is linked to the interests of 2.8 billion people in our two countries. This will also pave the way for the welfare of all humanity. We are committed to advancing our relations based on mutual trust, respect, and sensitivity.”

A picture-perfect moment occurred when PM Modi, President Putin, and President Xi were seen conversing jovially and intensely, creating what many observers termed the “RIC moment,” while Pakistani Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif appeared alone in the backdrop.

This, however, does not diminish the reality that the Sino-Pak axis remains a significant challenge for India. The policy of competition coupled with cooperation, while avoiding conflict, will likely continue in India-China relations in the near future. The camaraderie between PM Modi and President Putin in Tianjin, including a private ride in Putin’s limousine to avoid eavesdropping — likely to discuss the Putin-Trump Alaska meet — was also on full display. PM Modi once again urged President Putin to work towards ending the Ukraine war, emphasising that humanity longs for its conclusion.

World Trade Turbulence: India-US Relations Tested Amid Tariffs and Geopolitical Shifts

World trade is navigating turbulent times, with the global landscape appearing increasingly unpredictable. The past week, in particular, has witnessed a series of significant events directly affecting India-US trade relations, highlighting the growing complexity of global commerce and strategic alignments.

Heavy Tariffs on Indian Exports Over Russian Oil

Another significant development occurred on August 27, 2025, when the US imposed an additional 25 per cent tariff on India for purchasing Russian oil. Combined with earlier tariff increases, the total tariff burden on Indian goods now exceeds 50 per cent. This places India among the most heavily tariffed US trading partners — a status that threatens core Indian export sectors, particularly labour-intensive industries such as textiles, apparel, leather, footwear, gems and jewellery, and shrimp. Many of these sectors, already grappling with rising operational costs and post-pandemic recovery challenges, now face severely reduced access to the US market. Consequently, India risks ceding market share in critical categories to competitors such as Vietnam, Bangladesh, and Indonesia, who benefit from significantly lower tariffs

Judicial Blow to US Presidential Tariff Authority

In a landmark ruling, the US government suffered a setback in federal court concerning the scope of presidential authority to impose tariffs under the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (IEEPA). Historically, IEEPA has been widely used by US Presidents to implement trade sanctions and tariffs, most notably during the Trump administration. The federal court’s decision casts doubt over the US’s ability to use tariffs as a strategic tool — not only for economic purposes but also for foreign policy objectives. Should the Supreme Court uphold this verdict, the era of leveraging tariffs as a blunt instrument of national policy may be nearing its end. Such a development would have far-reaching consequences for the international business community, compelling companies and countries to rethink investment and supply chain strategies centred on the US market.

Trade Talks Still Alive

Despite rising tensions, there are signs of ongoing diplomatic engagement. Indian Commerce Minister Piyush Goyal recently reaffirmed that the long-negotiated India-US trade deal could be finalised by November 2025, offering reassurance that dialogue continues. The willingness of both nations to persist in negotiations reflects a shared recognition of the mutual benefits of restoring stability and expanding bilateral trade. It demonstrates that, even amid heated rhetoric and protectionist measures, both democracies remain committed to maintaining open channels for negotiation and compromise.

The months ahead remain fraught with uncertainty. If the US Supreme Court upholds limitations on presidential authority under IEEPA, it could signal the end of tariffs as a quick-fix tool for strategic pressure. Such a precedent would reshape US trade policy and undermine a key Trump-era tactic, requiring investors and global exporters to recalibrate risk and investment strategies.

Trans-Himalayan Corridors: India’s Answer to China’s BRI

BY RITIKA JOSHI

At the recent SCO Summit, India once again refused to endorse China’s Belt and Road Initiative (BRI). To many, it may have appeared as just another diplomatic gesture. But for India, it was more than that. It was a statement — a reminder that Asia’s future cannot be built on debt and dominance, but must rest on trust, memory, and shared history.

When India says “no” to BRI, it is also reminding the world of something much older. Long before Beijing drew maps of corridors, the Himalayas were alive with trade and pilgrimage. They were not barriers. They were bridges. Ask an old man in Munsiyari — a remote Uttarakhand town bordering China — what he remembers about Tibet. He will tell you about caravans: mules packed with jaggery and cloth climbing the steep trails, returning months later with backs heavy with wool and salt. In the bazaars, people recall how Tibetan traders stayed in stone houses, bringing turquoise, borax, and wool. The air was filled with the smell of roasted barley and butter tea. In return, Kumaoni families sent rice, grains, and jaggery, which sustained Tibetan households through winter.

These were not faceless transactions. They were personal exchanges. Traders tied knots of friendship. Families remembered each other’s festivals. For the people of Kumaon, Tibet was never “foreign.” It was part of their rhythm of life. The same was true elsewhere. In Ladakh, Leh’s market was a bustling crossroads. Pashmina wool arrived from the high plateau, while silk and carpets came from Central Asia. The streets echoed with Persian, Tibetan, Kashmiri, and Hindi. A traveller could walk through Leh and feel the pulse of half of Asia. In Sikkim, the Nathu La pass tied Lhasa to Gangtok and Calcutta. Wool and gold dust travelled south; rice, salt, and cloth went north. Pilgrims joined these caravans as well — Hindus walked to Kailash-Mansarovar, while Buddhists crossed over to Bodhi Gaya.

The mountains did not divide; they connected. They carried goods, but also gods. Then came 1962. The border war froze these arteries. Caravans vanished. Families in Almora and Ladakh still speak of the silence that followed. For them, the loss was not only of trade but of kinship. A world they belonged to had shut its doors.

WHY INDIA SAYS NO TO BRI

Now consider China’s Belt and Road. On paper, it looks ambitious: roads, pipelines, railways, ports, maps filled with arrows. But behind the gloss lie harsh realities. In Sri Lanka, loans for Hambantota Port became a burden. When Colombo could not repay, the port was leased to China for 99 years — an asset turned into a liability. In Pakistan, the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) promised jobs and growth.

But today, Baloch voices speak of exclusion, while Islamabad faces mounting bills it cannot pay. Even in Nepal and Myanmar, governments tread carefully, having seen what debt can do. India’s objections are clear. Sovereignty comes first — BRI cuts through Pakistan-occupied Kashmir, disregarding India’s claims. Transparency matters — Chinese projects are negotiated behind closed doors, sidelining local communities. And development must be sustainable — debt is not growth. So when India rejects BRI, it is not out of stubbornness, but principle. It is the conviction that true connectivity should not come with chains.

INDIA’S OWN CORRIDORS

India does not oppose connections; it opposes coercion. Its own initiatives show the difference. Take Chabahar in Iran.

With Indian support, the port provides Afghanistan and Central Asia with access to the sea. Afghan traders no longer rely solely on Karachi. For them, Chabahar is freedom.

TEAM AGENDA

There are moments in music when sound ceases to be entertainment and becomes something deeper — a living, breathing invocation. Treekam, released last week under the Namma Music Label, is one such moment. An immersive, all — instrumental album, it is a sonic journey that binds the intricate grammar of Carnatic ragas with the earthbound soul of Naga chant-inspired guitar, carried on expansive global soundscapes. Crafted with cinematic precision and spiritual depth, Treekam emerges as a rare convergence of traditions, where ancestral voices are channelled through modern strings and rhythms that cross continents.

The name itself draws from the Sanskrit root Trikam, meaning a triad or convergence, and the album embodies this perfectly, the mathematical elegance of South Indian Carnatic music, the ritualistic pulse of Naga tribal chants, and the fluid global groove of jazz, soul, and ambient textures. At its heart lies the vision of two cultural architects. Co-Produced by Sandeep Chowta, celebrated for his genre-bending productions. “My goal was to create a space where ancient voices could speak in modern tongues,” he reflects.

Alongside him, cultural catalyst Arpito Gope co-conceptualised the project, bringing his deep understanding of tribal traditions and cultural policy, he has worked with North East Indian governments for over 15 years, preserving regional heritage. He has built brand communities for global names like Harley Davidson, Jack Daniel’s, Ray-Ban, Raymond, and Taj, and created IPs such as Harley Rock Riders, Never Hide Sounds, RS Metal Awards, and Kasauli Rhythm & Blues Festival. As Chief Consultant to Nagaland’s Task Force for

Between Carnatic Strings and Tribal Memory

Strings breathe, chants rise, and global grooves converge — Treekam is music crossing borders & time

Music & Arts, he drives innovation and cultural enterprise through design thinking. As he notes, “Treekam is not about fusion — it is about dignity, dialogue, and deep listening.”

At the centre of this collaboration stand two guitarists whose contrasting styles illuminate the album. From Mumbai, Abhay Nayampally translates Carnatic precision into the emotional language of the guitar. A senior disciple of the late Mandolin Vidwan U Srinivas, Abhay has carried the revered U Srinivas Bani onto the electric guitar, his raag-based playing flowing like a meditative current throughout the record. In 2021, his debut solo Carnatic Guitar album reached the number one spot on iTunes India, marking his presence as a pioneering voice. He has also made his mark as a film background scorer, with his work recognised at the Delhi International Film Festival. “I wanted each note to feel like a breath-both rooted and free,” he says.

From the mountainous state of Nagaland comes Arenlong Longkumer, whose guitar playing channels the oral chant traditions of his tribe. His sound is percussive, layered, and deeply soulful, evoking forest rhythms, spirit dances, and fireside storytelling. A recipient of the prestigious TaFMA Award, he now endorses Strandberg Guitars, SIT Strings, and Hotone Audio. “Our chants are not melodies. They’re memories. I tried to play from that place,” he says, anchoring the album in a sense of cultural continuity.

The global dimension of Treekam is amplified by collaborators who bring their own brilliance. Jerrod “J-Rod” Sullivan, the powerhouse drummer from the United States and a regular in Janet Jackson’s touring band, injects groove and dynamic fire. Seb Read from the UK provides subtle, grounding basslines that give cohesion and emotional weight.

And on the luminous track Swan Song, jazz fusion legend Tom Schuman of Spyro Gyra brings his signature fluidity on keyboards, layering atmosphere and jazz harmony with sunrise optimism. A founding member of Spyro Gyra, with over sixty compositions and thirteen Grammy nominations to his credit, Schuman’s presence elevates the album to a space of timeless resonance.

Together, these musicians create a record that feels like a conversation across cultures and centuries. Each track carries its own character, from groove-driven energy to meditative stillness, yet all are united by a sense of reverence — for land, for memory, for sound itself. With nearly fifty albums already produced under Namma Music, Chowta’s vision for non-film music finds one of its most compelling

Surviving the Chaos: One butterfly flap at a time!

Are we, as a human race, doomed?

No, I do not think so!

What we are witnessing happening around the world, around us in our country, in our cities, within our families, and even within our own minds, might be chaotic, frightening, sad, and depressing, but humanity has endured and survived worse circumstances.

Circumstances brought about by ignorance, lack of modern scientific and technological solutions (and later due to some of the very same solutions which earlier appeared magical!), and by the greed and deceit of powerful people and powerful nations. Humanity survived all of that, and without doubt, we will live through the present chaos also!

The war and destruction going on and on is not self-sustaining — it cannot be! It is being fed by a war-mongering mentality which seeks power and profits, and domination at any cost, by any means fair or foul — mostly foul. However, I feel this phase of so much kinetic violence will get reduced in a decade or two to manageable levels. The struggle for domination, however, will metamorphose into unique ways of control and subjugation — some of which must already be developed and on trial here and there. We have to be prepared for them and then for some more.

But how? Addressing the survival concerns of the last denomination of a nation — the individual human being — is very important. A great amount of work is yet to be done to eliminate abject poverty, debilitating disease, and to counter the ill effects of modernity. The fury of monsoons which we see in the Himalayan rivers and valleys is just a symptom of unplanned and unscientific growth. Development has to be designed to be environment-friendly. Moreover, eventual return to our philosophical moorings to distil age-old wisdom into relevant strategy for the future is too crucial to be neglected. How the population can be organised, motivated, and mobilised, and their inherent potential harnessed for national good needs to be kept in mind by all echelons of leaders within their respective domains.

Is it too much to ask for?

Under the prevailing circumstances, yes, it definitely appears to be too much to ask for!

However, we have no choice but to continue to educate, motivate, and elevate them; eventually the efforts will bear fruit. The Butterfly Flap illustrates a core principle of Chaos Theory: That unnatural flapping of wings by a butterfly anywhere in the universe can have a disproportional effect on the overall world environment.

So the efforts have to go on to change the world — one butterfly flap at a time!

Modi-Xi Kazan Meet: Resetting India-China...

Earlier, President Zelensky had also reached out to PM Modi on this issue. Despite Trump’s accusations against India, PM Modi has consistently played a constructive role as a facilitator, aiming to bring an end to this devastating Eurasian conflict. New Delhi could potentially serve as a neutral venue for negotiations between the warring parties. The SCO Summit itself was a statement of intent, articulating a new vision of development strategies for the Global South and global governance with multipolarity and strengthened multilateral institutions. SCO sought to expand its remit from security to include trade, investment, AI, technology, and people-to-people connectivity across the Eurasian landscape. Several new mechanisms were announced, and the proposed establishment of an SCO Bank and related financial architecture gains significance as US unilateralism, particularly regarding tariffs and sanctions, continues.

In his intervention, PM Modi redefined the contours of SCO: S stands for Security, with zero tolerance for terrorism without double standards; C stands for Connectivity, respecting sovereignty while subtly critiquing BRI and fostering the International North-South Transport Corridor (INSTC); and O stands for Opportunities for all, proposing a new Civilisational Dialogue Forum to showcase the richness of ancient civilizations, art, literature, and traditions on a global stage. India, during its 2023 SCO Presidency, had already promoted start-ups and innovation, traditional medicine, youth empowerment, digital inclusion, and shared Buddhist heritage, adopting a “beyond government” approach.

Countering terrorism remains one of SCO’s top priorities. In the presence of Pakistani Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif, whose complicity in cross-border terrorism against India is well-documented, PM Modi directly called out Pakistan:

“For the past four decades, India has borne the grave scars of ruthless terrorism. Countless mothers have lost their children, and innumerable children have been left orphaned. Recently, we witnessed the most heinous face of terrorism in Pahalgam. I express my deep gratitude to all friendly nations that stood by us during this moment of grief. This attack was not only an assault on the conscience of India but also an open challenge to every nation and every individual who believes in humanity. In such circumstances, it is natural to ask: Can the open support for terrorism by certain countries ever be acceptable to us?”

Indeed, Rawalpindi has been emboldened by global complicity and double standards. It is imperative to expose such hypocrisy, as with prevailing myopic geopolitical interests, the fight against terrorism risks being undermined. India, however, must remain vigilant and respond decisively to safeguard its people and security.

For now, India-China relations appear to be on a positive trajectory, but the proof of the pudding is in the eating. Both sides must make a realistic assessment of the benefits of cooperation over conflict, especially as global disorder persists and unilateral, hegemonistic approaches remain the preferred strategy of major powers.

World Trade Turbulence: India-US Relations...

Countries deemed “strategic threats” might find themselves with fewer avenues for ad hoc US retaliation.

For India, the newly imposed tariffs threaten the viability of key export sectors that employ millions and rely on seamless access to the US market. On the broader diplomatic stage, the SCO Summit highlights India’s growing engagement with multipolar frameworks — a consequence partly driven by escalating trade tensions. Yet, public reassurances from Indian officials regarding a potential bilateral trade deal suggest that India-US relations may bend under pressure, but are unlikely to break.

The events of the past week illustrate the intricate intersection of commerce, geopolitics, and law. India-US trade relations, once seen as a cornerstone of global economic integration, now face formidable challenges. Yet, each crisis also presents opportunities — for diplomacy to prevail, for commerce to discover new pathways, and for both nations to reaffirm the common ground underlying their partnership.

For India, these developments underscore the urgent need to accelerate domestic reforms: reducing red tape, lowering manufacturing costs, fostering innovation, and building resilient local supply chains. Strengthening homegrown industries, reducing import dependence, and creating jobs will not only buffer India against external shocks but also position it as a more competitive force in global trade. Amid continuing turbulence, India’s long-term interests will be best served by balancing external engagement with an inward focus on transformative, growth-oriented policies.

Trans-Himalayan Corridors: India’s...

Or look at the International North-South Transport Corridor (INSTC). A train from Mumbai can now reach Moscow faster and cheaper via this route than any existing alternative. This is not a dream; goods are already moving along it.

In the Himalayas, small revivals are taking place. Nathu La reopened in 2006 after forty-four years. Pilgrims now travel through Lipulekh to Kailash.

Cross-border railways with Nepal are being built. With Bhutan, India’s hydroelectric projects light up homes. These projects are not flashy. They don’t make global headlines like BRI. But they matter. They are steady. They involve border communities. They respect sovereignty. They are partnerships, not traps.

The SCO is often described as China’s platform. But it is also India’s stage. By rejecting BRI there, India delivers a wider message: Asia does not need one master-plan dictated from Beijing. It needs many corridors, shaped by local voices and rooted in history.

Central Asian states are listening. They know the burden of debt. They also remember their historic ties with India. From Bukhara to Banaras, merchants and mystics once crossed paths. Spices and ideas moved alongside caravans. India’s civilisa-tional influence still resonates. The question is: how can India turn memory into policy?

THE PATH FORWARD IS CLEAR

First, reopen more border passes for trade-Lipulekh, Shipki La, Nathu La — where caravans can return, this time with trucks and digital networks. Not just pilgrims, but traders too. Border families will benefit, and trust will grow.

Second, scale up regional partnerships. Chabahar should not remain a token project. INSTC must evolve into the backbone of Eurasian trade. Central Asia should see India not as a hesitant participant but as a reliable partner.

Third, invest in soft infrastructure. Highways are important, but so are universities, cultural exchanges, and digital corridors. Connectivity is not just about moving goods — it is about moving people, knowledge, and ideas.

This is how India can stand apart. China’s BRI is about concrete and control. India’s corridors can be about trust and roots. By tying modern projects to ancient trade routes, New Delhi can offer Asia something better. The Himalayas remind us of that. They were never just mountains; they were bridges. Reviving these arteries means restoring that legacy.

So when India says no to BRI, it is not shutting the door. It is opening another. It is stepping forward with an alternative — one where connectivity means cooperation, not coercion. One where the past inspires the future. One where the trans-Himalayan corridors live again, not as relics, but as routes of renewal.

Himachal Pradesh: Imposing Landscape, Heritage and Cuisine!

ANIL
RAJPUT

It's the abode of the Gods — the 'Dev Bhoomi'. The region has been given a special place in our sacred texts, and is home to numerous ancient temples, sacred sites, having a strong cultural connection with spirituality and peace. Himachal Pradesh is indeed a jewel that occupies a deeply historical position in Bharat's journey through the ages. The earliest prehistoric evidence (nearly two million years ago) in Himachal Pradesh points to human settlement in the Bangana Valley (Kangra), Sirsa Valley (Nalagarh), and Markanda Valley (Sirmour), with stone tools from the Paleolithic era found there. These valleys, particularly Bangana, provided resources like fertile soil and water, which attracted early hunter-gatherer communities for habitation. In the pre-historic times, the Indo-Gangetic plains were inhabited by the Proto-Australoid or Munda — speaking 'Kolarian' people (Kol or Munda tribe), and when the people of the Indus valley spread through the Gangetic plains, they pushed northwards — towards the Kolarian people in the Himachal valleys.

The greatest sages in our history have been associated with this expanse, Rishi Jamdagni is associated with the Renuka lake in Sirmaur, Rishi Vashisht with the Vshisht Kund in the Kullu valley, Parshuram is associated with Nirmand in Kullu and Sage Vyas with the Beas cave in Bilaspur. One of the most prominent relationship of the state with our ancient history is through Hatkoti in the Jubbal area of Shimla, and Hidimba Goddess temple in the Kullu valley, both of which are associated with the Pandavas of the epic Mahabharata. According to the Mahabharata, the Himalayan region that now forms Himachal Pradesh was divided into a number of small tribal republics called 'Janapadas', which was a type of 'Sangha Janapadas' or 'Ayudhajivi Sanghas'- meaning those that lived by the profession of arms.

In fact, the legendary grammarian 'Panini' in his iconic work 'Ashtadhyayi' which was written in the 6th-5th century BCE, mentioned the 'Trigarta Janapada', located in the foothills of what is now Himachal Pradesh. This is one of the first historical mentions of Trigarta, highlighting its significance in ancient Indian history. These Janapadas included 'Audumbras' — the most prominent ancient tribes of Himachal who lived in the lower hills between Pathankot and Jwalamukhi, and formed a separate state in 2 BC, 'Trigarta' — the state lay in the foothills drained by three rivers, which included, Ravi, Beas and Satluj and hence the name, it is believed to have been an independent republic. 'Kuluta' — the kingdom of Kuluta was situated in the upper Beas valley which is also known as the Kullu valley, with its capital at Naggar, 'Kulinda'- this kingdom covered the area lying between the Beas, Satluj and Yamuna rivers, the region of Shimla and Sirmour hills. Their administration resembled a republic with members of a central assembly sharing the powers of the king. During the Mauryan period (322 BCE- 185 BCE), Chandragupta Maurya slowly subdued most of the republics of

HIMACHALI CUISINE IS INDEED A TREAT FOR ALL FOOD LOVERS. IT OFFERS A VARIETY OF DISHES THAT APPEAL TO EVERY TASTE BUD, AND LIKE IN MANY OTHER STATES — THE CUISINE IS IN COMPLETE HARMONY WITH THE CLIMATIC CONDITIONS OF THE REGION

Himachal by show of strength or use of force though he usually did not rule them directly. Ashoka, the grandson of Chandragupta Maurya, extended his boundaries to the Himalayan region. He introduced Buddhism to this tract and built many stupas, one of which was in the Kullu valley — this is stated in the account of the Chinese traveller, Huien Tsang. Moving on, after the collapse of Gupta empire (320 CE- 550 CE), and before the rise of Harshavardhana of the Pushyabhuti dynasty, this area was again ruled by local chiefs known as Thakurs and Ranas. With the rise of Harshavardhana in the early 7th century CE, most of these small states acknowledged his overall supremacy, though many local powers remained with the local chiefs. In the medieval era, Himachal Pradesh comprised independent and tributary hill states like Kangra, Chamba, and Bushahr, which were often caught between larger empires like the Mughals and later the Sikhs. British influence grew after the Gurkha War of 1814-15, culminating in their control of the region by the mid-19th century.

Post-independence, the region evolved from a Chief Commissioner's Province to a Union Territory, and finally became India's 18th state on January 25, 1971. When talking about Himachal Pradesh, I would also like to deep dive into something that is as lofty as the mountains that define its landscape — the state's cuisine! And what better to start off with, than the absolutely smashing and sublime 'Dham', a gastronomic delight that displays the wide spectrum of Himachali cuisine- signifying celebration and hospitality in the state's culture. Different regions of the state have separate elements that are reflected in the Dham, I will focus on what is usually found in this 'crown jewel' from the hill state. The feast generally includes plain rice, a flavourful dal (lentil) curry like 'Sepu Badi' (made from black lentils), a vegetable curry such as 'Rajma Madra' and 'Chana Madra' (kidney beans/chickpeas in yogurt), a spiced buttermilk soup called 'Himachali Redu', and a sweet dish called 'Meetha Bhaat' (sweet rice). It is traditionally cooked by community cooks called 'Botis', and slow-cooked over wood fires in special brass vessels called 'Charoti or Batloi'. The food is finally served on leafy plates known as 'Pattal' or 'Pattlu'.

Rice is served thrice, first with 'Madra'- sometimes two or three types of Madra is cooked and served, then with 'Teliya Maah' — a very old and a traditional recipe from Himachal Pradesh that is almost lost. It is a delicious and a creamy lentil (black gram or urad dal) curry made of whole green gram, yogurt, milk, cream and much more cooked in mustard oil. The flavour treat of 'Mahni' follows — a traditional sweet and sour dish, primarily a tangy curry made from ingredients like raw mangoes, tamarind, or black chickpeas (kala chana). The blend of spices, from degi mirch to turmeric, creates a sweet and sour taste that elevates any meal. The string of dishes, continue with another flavour treat, the 'Himachali Chana

Dal' — it is prepared using split chickpeas as the main ingredient, along with mustard oil, turmeric, and various whole and ground spices such as coriander seeds, fennel seeds, cumin, cloves, green and black cardamom, and cinnamon. It also often includes other aromatic spices like bay leaves, ginger, green chillies, and sometimes kasoori methi (dried fenugreek leaves) and hing (asafoetida). 'Himachali Redu' comes next, it is also called 'Kheru' or 'Dahi Tadka', it is a simple, quick, and comforting yogurt dish featuring dahi (yogurt) tempered with whole and ground spices like fenugreek seeds, cumin seeds, coriander seeds in mustard oil — sometimes onions and garlic are added for extra flavour. This versatile dish serves as a side dish for rice or parathas and can be a satisfying meal, especially during warmer months. The balance of flavours reflected through this thali are substantially complemented by 'Mittha' or 'Himachali Meetha Bhaat' — an integral part of the state's celebrations, it's a sweet rice prepared with rice, milk, jaggery or sugar, flavoured with cardamom, saffron, raisins and other dry fruits, along with a touch of turmeric powder for colour.

The most tantalising 'Babru' is yet another dish that highlights the exquisite flavour profile of the state. Similar to kachoris in taste, Babru is a distinctive culinary treat. It differs from kachoris in that it may be made both savoury and sweet. The kneaded dough is filled with ground black gram paste, giving it the appearance of a deep-fried poori. The sweet variation contains a jaggery filling. It is a well-liked breakfast item with a distinctive flavour and aroma. It is typically served with mouth-watering tamarind chutney, making for a much-loved regional dish. A signature offering from the state is 'Kaddu Ka Khatta' — it is prepared with chunks of pumpkin tempered in mustard oil and aromatic spices. It is then topped with tamarind or 'amchur' powder and jaggery for a tangy and sweet flavour. 'Patrode' is a dish that incorporates arbi (Colocasia) leaves, it is one of the most well-known afternoon tea snacks in the hills, you may even enjoy the snack with your evening meal. Colocasia leaves and besan (gram flour) are used to prepare this. The besan and spice mixture is wrapped around the leaves, formed into little rolls, steamed, and then sliced into slices for deep or shallow-frying. 'Taro' or "Colocasia esculenta" is thought to be a native plant of Southern India, and over time this dish has been adopted by various states in India. Another distinctly flavoured dish is 'Bhey' — it involves thinly slicing and washing the lotus stems, then boiling and stir-frying them with ingredients like ginger, garlic, onion, gram flour, and spices to create a flavourful and crunchy vegetable preparation. The food of this area is incomplete without mentioning 'Siddu'- it is prepared with wheat flour, the flour is set aside after being kneaded, which gives the dough time to rise. The bread is then placed directly over the flames of a campfire to partially cook and then steam it. Siddu generally has a lentil or potato filling, and this ghee-based Himachali side dish goes great with mutton or veggies as a main meal. Although the preparation of this is intricate and time-consuming, the taste is worth every effort.

The most interesting 'Patande' cannot be missed in any food article related to the state. It is a breakfast dish which originates in the Sirmour district of Himachal Pradesh. Also referred to as the pancake of India, patande is prepared by cooking a batter made of wheat flour, sugar, milk, baking powder in spices like cardamom and cinnamon.

Now, let's shift our focus towards the non-vegetarian Himachali dishes. It's the 'Kullu Trout Fish' that makes quite a big flavour splash. It is one of the best traditional dishes of Himachal Pradesh, in which marinated trout fish (found only in the waters of the state) is cooked with raw spices like crushed coriander seeds, dill leaves (fresh or dried), chilli flakes, lemon, salt, and sometimes mustard seeds. The goal is to use minimal spices to highlight the trout's fresh and mild flavour, a little lemon-onion sauce is drizzled on top after the fish has been pan-fried in mustard oil — to enhance flavour. 'Chicken Anardaana' is another dish relished in the state, it is characterised by its sweet, tangy, and sour flavour profile from dried pomegranate seeds (anardana), and often has a distinctive pinkish-red colour. In this the Chicken pieces are typically marinated with a mixture of spices like coriander, cumin, red chillies, yoghurt, and anardana powder before being cooked in a gravy with onions, ginger-garlic paste, and yogurt cooked in a fragrant gravy- offering a unique blend of flavours influenced by the Persian cuisine. And finally, 'Chha Gosh' is considered a classic and traditional Himachali dish, it is known for its rich flavours of marinated mutton cooked slowly in a gravy of yogurt and gram flour with aromatic spices like coriander, green and red chilli powder and cardamom. It is a prominent part of Himachal Pradesh's culinary heritage, often prepared for special occasions, and is characterised by its unique sweet, savoury, and tangy taste.

Himachali cuisine is indeed a treat for all food lovers. It offers a variety of dishes that appeal to every taste bud, and like in many other states — the cuisine is in complete harmony with the climatic conditions of the region. Its sad, that our most important food ambassadors, the children and youth, are even today, not well-informed about the state's immense food offerings. Our focus undoubtedly has to be on getting them familiarised with our regional (in this case Himachali) cuisines, ensuring that in the times to come — it reflects naturally and strongly with the current and future generations food choices!

Baked with love, served with warmth

Step into a Tokyo like bakehouse with complete pastel walls, desserts as light as cotton and coffee for your boost, says ABHI SINGHAL

Japan café's aesthetic charm has found a new home in West Delhi, as Harajuku expands with its Bakehouse in Punjabi Bagh. It has been designed with the dreamy flair of a cloud café, the interiors are a visual delight with pastel shades of pink and blue dominate the space, with soft lighting that makes it instantly Instagrammable.

The décor feels playful yet calming, blending the whimsy of Japanese pop culture with the comfort of a neighbourhood café. Walls adorned with Dragon Ball Z artwork and comic-inspired graphics make it a family-friendly destination, where parents can happily bring their children to soak in the ambience while indulging in treats.

The Seal Deal

The showstopper or the seal deal here is the Japanese Cotton Cheesecake. Light as air, this delicacy offers a perfect balance between flavour and texture. With every bite, it melts almost instantly on the tongue, leaving behind a subtle sweetness and a pillowy softness that feels more like a cloud than cake. Few desserts achieve that level of finesse, and Harajuku executes it beautifully.

Cute and Chewy

Equally mouth-watering is the Mochi, a Japanese rice cake made from steamed glutinous rice, sugar, water, and a touch of cornstarch. The preparation is both traditional and playful: Rice is pounded into a smooth paste before being moulded into adorable shapes — think teddy bear faces and cute round dumplings. This makes them not just a tasty indulgence but also visually delightful for younger visitors. It's no surprise that kids walking in with their parents gravitate towards these sweet, chewy treasures.

Beyond Sweets

But Harajuku Bakehouse doesn't stop at cakes and mochi. The menu is vast and inventive, offering a line-up that spans Japanese street-style bakes to European-inspired comfort food. Mochi Pancakes, Rainbow Slice, and Sakura Yuzu Basque Cheesecake all make their presence felt, while savoury lovers can dig into Yakisoba Buns, generously stuffed with stir-fried noodles, or the crisp Curry Pan, fried golden with a rich, spiced filling.

The Croque Monsieur adds a French twist, layered with cheese and ham, while the Chicken Floss Buns deliver a sweet-savoury balance unique to Asian bakeries. The Miso Chicken Puffs, flaky and filled with umami depth, are another standout. For a heartier meal, the fluffy baos, steamed gyozas, and refreshing poke bowls ensure the menu offers something filling and flavourful.

Bubble Teas and Brews

To complete the experience, their beverage selection stands out as much as the food. Bubble tea remains a crowd favourite, with chewy tapioca pearls adding fun texture to every sip. Flavours range from classic milk teas to fruity options, making it a versatile choice for both kids and adults.

Artisanal coffee caters to purists who enjoy their brews strong and aromatic, while the ceremonial matcha blends bring earthy bitterness balanced with creaminess — an authentic Japanese touch.

For those seeking something soothing, the roasted richness of the hojicha lattes delivers a comforting depth. On warmer afternoons, signature coolers such as Tokyo Blue, with its vibrant, citrusy profile, and Lychee Lemongrass Ginger, offering a sweet yet zesty punch, provide refreshing contrasts to the richness of desserts and savouries alike.

Each drink is crafted to complement the bakes, ensuring no element feels like an afterthought. Harajuku Bakehouse is about experiencing a slice of Tokyo in Delhi.

Invoke the Valour: Know that you are Needed

There’s nothing one can do after a loved one has already taken his/her life, but we can definitely prevent suicide by giving them the right wisdom, the right support, at the right time. We need to show them the big picture

BY SRI SRI RAVI SHANKAR

Life is very precious, and we must learn to value it. When we don’t do that, we either turn to depression or get into aggression and violence. We have to prevent suicides from happening and protect those vulnerable to them.

One takes this extreme step when they feel alone and defeated. We have to give people a larger context for life. Human values are still present on this planet, and there are a lot of good people here who support each other. No problem is insurmountable.

There’s nothing one can do after a loved one has already taken his/her life, but we can definitely prevent suicide by giving them the right wisdom, the right support, at the right time. We need to show them the big picture. Let us help people to get to know themselves and find out who they really are. We are connected to the Universal Spirit. When we know this, we realise we are much bigger than our physical body.

Let’s Talk Mental Health

Often, people do not speak openly about their experience of depression or other mental health challenges. Just as one would discuss physical ailments like diabetes or hypertension without hesitation, it is equally important to talk about mental health without any reluctance. We must encourage people to speak about their mental well-being.

You are not Alone

We need to assure everyone around us that they are not alone. Humanity and human values are abundant in our society, and many are ready to offer their support. Even if others do not speak about their problems, we can still be of help by being vigilant on this matter. When you sense someone might not be happy, don’t just pass them by. Stop and ask, “Is everything okay? Can I help you in any way?” Connecting with people and offering help is essential. By doing so, we can lighten the hearts and minds of many, to begin with. Back in 2014, we initiated a Happiness Survey. Our volunteers went door to door, asking people one simple question: Are you happy? Many people shared that this was the first time someone had asked them whether or not they were truly happy or if they needed anything. So, this is something that the entire society should be ready for-supporting one another and being there for each other.

Why Suicide is a Mistake

People commit suicide to escape misery, but they do not realise it puts them in greater misery. It is like someone who is already shivering in the cold, further removing their jacket. Will the cold become any less? No!

Obsession, restlessness, and desires can create intense agony, and it is only through your body that you can dispel agony and get rid of misery. Instead, you destroy the very instrument by which you can get rid of agony.

“EVERY CHALLENGE OR MISERY THAT YOU HAVE EXPERIENCED HAS MADE YOU STRONGER AND MORE SENSITIVE, AND THE PLEASANT EXPERIENCES HAVE GIVEN YOU A SENSE OF EXPANSION”

— GURUDEV

Do you know why suicides really happen?

Now, how do you feel when someone compliments you? You feel a sense of expansion, and you feel happy. And when someone insults you, you have a shrinking feeling. This is something which expands and contracts in you and is worth knowing! I am talking about our subtle body, which expands and shrinks. In the normal state, the subtle body is bigger than the physical body. When the subtle body keeps shrinking and becomes smaller than the physical body, you feel that you are unable to carry your body, and you just want to get out of it. So what can you do to get out of this feeling? The answer lies only in increasing your prana level.

Ways to get the Prana Level up

Multiple things can enhance the prana. Firstly, the age-old practices of yoga and meditation have consistently been shown to be powerful tools. They not only revitalise our energy but also offer a deeper understanding of our inner selves. Music, too, can elevate the prana. The rhythmic patterns, melodies, and harmonies resonate with our mind and heart, inducing a sense of well-being.

Spending time in the company of happy people or spending time with children can significantly uplift one’s spirit, too. When we as adults connect with children, it uplifts us, giving an instant boost to our energy levels.

Spiritual knowledge is like the manual for life. Just as we learn to use a car’s steering, clutch, and brake, we need to study and use this understanding of our life energy to retain a calm mind in the midst of chaos. This is what pranayama teaches us. When our energy isn’t steady, our feelings can be all over the place.

Spending just a few minutes understanding how our breath works can be life-transforming. Techniques like Sudarshan Kriya help balance our energy, which then helps steady the mind. When we meditate, it positively impacts every part of our lives. As our energy increases, we naturally begin to feel better, think creatively, and have better control over our feelings and thoughts.

Ask, “What can I do for you?”

Whenever you feel low or negative, see if you can go out and help others. Go out and ask someone, “What can I do for you?” and see the shift in your emotions. Getting involved in some type of seva or service is a powerful way to increase one’s life force and turn the negative feelings on their head.

Know that you’re needed

Remember that you are here for a unique purpose and cause that are far bigger than just to eat, sleep, or talk. You have all come here to do something very specific. You don’t need to be concerned about anything. Life is like a movie that has already been shot. What you experience in the present moment is only a replay.

FIRSTLY, THE AGE-OLD PRACTICES OF YOGA AND MEDITATION HAVE CONSISTENTLY BEEN SHOWN TO BE POWERFUL TOOLS. THEY NOT ONLY REVITALISE OUR ENERGY BUT ALSO OFFER A DEEPER UNDERSTANDING OF OUR INNER SELVES

When we serve and commit to a larger mission, it changes our life’s perspective. This eliminates small personal worries and broadens the canvas of our life, putting the focus on the bigger picture. Societies where service, sacrifice, and community participation are valued see fewer incidences of depression and suicides.

Invoke the valour in you

Come on, wake up! You have been afraid many times in the past. Life still goes on. Invoke the valor inside you. Remember, you faced many difficulties in the past when you thought this was the end of it. You overcame those challenges, and you are here, complete.

Every storm that has come into your life has widened your horizon and brought you more depth. When things that you don’t like happen to you, they make you stronger somewhere. Every challenge or misery that you have experienced has made you stronger and more sensitive, and the pleasant experiences have given you a sense of expansion. And life is a blend of both pleasant and unpleasant situations. Take life in its totality.

Prevention of suicide, much like any public health problem, requires a systematic approach, and imparting people with tools to manage stress and uplift their spirit is the way forward. Just as we teach children dental hygiene, it is equally essential to introduce mental hygiene from an early age.

Pitru Paksha: Genetics, Gratitude, and Cosmic Balance

Pitru Paksha or Shraad originates from the word Shraddha. This sacred fortnight, dedicated to honouring our ancestors, has long been viewed through a spiritual lens. Yet, when examined closely, these rituals also reflect profound insights into biology, psychology, ecology, and astronomy. What our sages intuited thousands of years ago is increasingly echoed by modern science.

Genetics and Ancestral Memory

We are living embodiments of our lineage. Science tells us that our DNA is not merely a blueprint for physical traits but also carries predispositions to health, behaviour, and even resilience.

- Epigenetics, a field studying how life experiences alter gene expression, has shown that trauma, stress, and lifestyle habits can be passed down through generations (Yehuda & Lehrner, Biological Psychiatry, 2018).
- This means the “memories” of our ancestors live within us — not as metaphors, but as biological imprints.

Pitru Paksha, in remembering and offering gratitude, can be seen as a cultural acknowledgment of this genetic continuum.

Gratitude as Emotional Healin

- Rituals of remembrance serve a deep psychological function.
- Family systems theory (Bowen, Family Therapy in Clinical Practice, 1978) highlights that unresolved ancestral conflicts can influence present generations. Honouring ancestors allows for emotional closure and healing. Our connection with our ancestors is not limited to those of DNA and genes but is far deeper, an invisible connection of Karma, of past unpaid debts.
 - Modern psychology affirms that gratitude practices improve mental health, reduce anxiety, and enhance well-being. Pitru Paksha thus becomes a structured form of collective gratitude-releasing burdens while cultivating peace.

Cosmic Balance and Lunar Rhythms

Pitru Paksha aligns with the Krishna Paksha (waning moon) of Bhadrapada. This is not incidental

- Chronobiology research shows that lunar phases influence human sleep cycles, mood, and metabolic changes (Cajochen et al., Current Biology, 2013).
- Ancient seers designed tarpan (water offerings) during this time of natural withdrawal, harmonising inner human cycles with outer cosmic rhythms.
- Seasonal transition from monsoon to autumn (Ritu Sandhi in Ayurveda) is also critical. Fasting and satvic eating during this period detoxify the body and strengthen immunity (Dopico et al., Nature Reviews Immunology, 2015).

Ecological Wisdom in Rituals

The materials used in Pitru Paksha rituals — water, rice, sesame, and seasonal fruits — are all biodegradable and drawn directly from nature. Unlike modern excess, these offerings teach ecological balance, reminding us that reverence for ancestors goes hand in hand with reverence for the Earth.

Beyond Rituals: A Science of Continuity

Pitru Paksha is not a superstition but a sophisticated synthesis of genetics, gratitude, and cosmic awareness. By remembering our ancestors, we acknowledge the invisible threads that connect past, present, and future. We honour not only our lineage but also the universal balance in which we exist. It is a reciprocal relationship, whereby in honouring our ancestors, we seek blessings of health and protection from our forebears.

In the end, Pitru Paksha teaches us this timeless truth: We are not isolated individuals, but living bridges-carrying forward the legacy of those who came before us while shaping the world for those who will follow.

Astronomical Alignment and Human Physiology

Pitru Paksha coincides with the waning moon, when gravitational influences of the sun and moon are known to affect water cycles on Earth.

Mastering Healthspan: Lessons from ‘Outlive’

Peter Attia’s Outlive presents health and longevity concepts, explores major diseases with clarity, and offers actionable strategies to improve lifespan, healthspan, and overall well-being

Most people have something that they pursue with an almost obsessive passion: For me it is basketball. While I loved the game and played as often as I could, I relied on my ability to ‘power through’ rather than on my skills to continue playing.

With age, I noticed that the ‘powering through’ was getting increasingly intense. As 2025 rolled in, I decided to finally work on getting fitter off the court so that I could do better on it.

As I embarked upon this journey, the sheer volume of information (and contradictions) available from various sources left me clueless about where the starting point even should be. To cut a long story short, I anchored myself (on a friend’s recommendation) to this book on health and longevity by Peter Attia: Outlive.

I found the book’s approach refreshing: The first few pages underlining how one should approach health and longevity, the next section talking about the workings of the major diseases plaguing modern mankind in a ‘biology for non-biologists’ manner; and the last section detailing actions that individuals can/should take to prevent, recover and/or delay disease.

This note talks about Part 1: Concepts and frameworks that should form the basis of our outlook on health and longevity. The book obviously does a much better job of this than the next few paragraphs would; I am only putting down concepts and thoughts that strongly resonated with me.

LIFESPAN... HEALTHSPAN... WHAT IS (OR SHOULD BE) THE GOAL?

Most folks are familiar with lifespan: The number of years one lives. The book introduced a very interesting vector to this: Healthspan. Healthspan can be thought of as the quality of one’s life, in terms of what their body can afford them.

When I am X years old (as X keeps increasing), can I climb up a flight of stairs, can I hold a spoon and eat cereal by myself, can I play basketball for 30 minutes and still have a grand old time?

While most of medical science focuses on extending lifespan, maintaining healthspan as life progresses is something that is slowly coming to the forefront. This evolution can be thought of as three phases of medicine:

THE EVOLUTION OF MEDICINE CAN BE UNDERSTOOD IN THREE PHASES:

- Medicine 1.0 (Until early 19th century):
 - Relied on philosophical thinking and observation.
 - If the doctor, healer, or elder had seen, heard, or read about an ailment and its management, that is what they would prescribe.
- Medicine 2.0 (Mid-19th century - Present):
 - Relies on the scientific method.
 - A hypothesis is formed (based on philosophies, observations, or even a hunch) and then tested to prove or disprove it.

- This experimentation leads to proven methods of diagnosis, treatment, and cure.
- It has been highly effective for acute illnesses (such as flu and cholera) and for injuries.

Medicine 3.0 (Future of medicine?):

- Relies on root cause analysis and early prevention.
